REAFFIRMS POLICY

Ike Warns Reds U.S. Intends To Defend Islands

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Eisenhower administration reasserted Saturday its determination to defend the Chinese islands of Quemoy and Matsu against any Chinese Communist attack directed beyond them at Formosa.

In speaking out through the presidential press secretary, James C. Hagerty, the White House thus apparently sought to give a domestic political boost to Vice President Richard M. Nixon in his campaign dispute with Sen. John F. Kennedy.

At the same time, the action served as a reminder to Red China that despite the argument between the Republican and Democratic presidential nominees, basic U.S. policy on Quemoy and Matsu stands.

NOMINEES DIFFER

The policy affirmation is good until the Eisenhower administration leaves office next January. Nixon says that if elected he will continue the same line. Kennedy has sharply assailed the present U.S. commitment on Quemoy and Matsu and declared it should be revised.

The Quemoy - Matsu argument has developed the only sharply defined foreign policy disagreement between the presidential contenders so far in the campaign.

The White House stepped into the debate over Quemoy and Matsu after the contenders had stated clashing views in their television-radio debates and in campaign speeches.

Hagerty told reporters "the position of the President and the vice president on this matter is exactly as stated" in a letter which Eisenhower sent to Sen. Theodore Francis Green, D-R. I., in October 1958. Green was then chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. He was critical of administration policy on Quemoy and Matsu.

Kennedy, in a statement issued Saturday night, interpreted Hagerty's remarks as a retreat by Nixon.

"I think it is in the best interests of national security that Mr. Nixon has now retreated to the administration's view on Quemoy-Matsu, as contained in the 1955 treaty and resolution which I have supported ever since," Kennedy declared.

Kennedy in his debate with Nixon Thursday night quoted a sentence from the President's letter, evidently to support his contention that Quemoy and Matsu are not important enough to justify U.S. military involvement. He noted Eisenhower had written to Green: "Neither you nor any other Amer-

J. O. Willett Dies; Rites Are Pending

A prominent figure in the pipeline industry, J. O. Willett, died yesterday afternoon in Mercy Hospital in Miami, Fla., after a brief illness.

Willett, 52 - year - old pipeline soverign, had been on a trip with a friend when he suffered a stroke in Miami Monday. He had been ill off and on during the past two years, according to friends.

25 - YEAR RESIDENT

A native of Claiborne Parish, Willett had been a resident of Monroe for the past 25 years and became widely known in the pipeline stringing business.

His pipeline business, which he built from one truck, extended all over the United States and into Canada, is known as one of the three largest pipeline contractor businesses in the United States.

Willett's business, which he recently sold, was located on U. S. Highway 80 east of Monroe. Before going into the pipeline industry, which he was in for 20 years, Willett served as a superintendent with the State Highway Department and worked as an oil field hauler.

He was prominent in civic affairs, and founded and operated what is now the KLSE - TV station. It was formerly known as the KFAZ - TV station, but Willett sold it to the state.

United Nations Forces Triple Congo Patrols

LEOPOLDVILLE (UPI) — United Nations forces tripled their patrols here Saturday in a bid to curb a growing outbreak of street terrorism believed launched by deposed Premier Patrice Lumumba.

The heavily reinforced patrols of U.N Ghanaian troops and police roved through the European and African sectors of the capital afoot and on jeeps.

The move came as strongman Col. Joseph Mobutu's regime struck back at supporters of Lumumba by ordering the roundup of persons it considers "undesirable."

The high commission declared Nathaniel Welbeck, special envoy of Ghana President Kwame Nkrumah, an "outlaw" and ordered him "shot on sight." Guinea's mission chief, J. Tourkara, was told to get out of the Congo but refused to obey the order on grounds it had to be signed by President Joseph Kasavubu.

Both Ghana and Guinea have strongly supported Lumumba.

The U.N. beefing up followed after an attempt by 20 Lumumba backers to kill Albert Ndele, vice commissioner of the College of High Commissioners named by Mobutu to run the chaotic Congo.

Ndele was hospitalized with a deep cut on the back of his head and a slashed eyebrow but doctors said he would live.

The street violence increased Saturday. A group of Lumumbists attacked six Abako Party members and left them bleeding. The Lumumbists were in turn beaten up by police.

Falling Trees Fatal For Two

YOSEMITE NATIONAL Park, Calif (UPI)—Two persons were crushed to death and one was injured Saturday under falling trees as strong winds whipped through famed Yosemite Valley.

Park rangers immediately declared an emergency and began moving people out of the campgrounds. They also warned visitors at entrance stations that wind conditions were expected to make outings dangerous.

Those killed were Kenneth C. Miner, 19, Fresno, Calif., and Margaret Gnall, 41, Roselle Park, N.J. They were killed while sleeping about 6 a.m. when a heavy gust buckled nearby trees.

'SON' RETURNS

Joyful Family Receives Jolt

PEARRKIRCHEN, Germany (UPI) — The Bachmeier family was so overjoyed to have their son Franz, missing since World War II, home again that they did not notice anything strange about him.

True, his face looked different. But he said he had been blown up by a shell and had undergone plastic surgery. His voice was different too. He seemed to have trouble recognizing some of his old friends.

But the Bachmeiers were so pleased to have him back they did not worry.

It was not until Franz had been home for six months, living off his relatives and showing no signs of going to work, that they became suspicious.

Police began to take an interest in "Franz" about that time too.

Saturday they arrested him under his real name of Rudolf Willeitner and hauled him back to the jail in Dortmund from which he escaped six months ago.

Willetner said he met Franz in the Army in 1943 and they became close friends. The imposter said that when he broke jail he decided to cash in on his general physical resemblance to his long dead friend, and hide in this tiny Bavarian town until the heat of the search died down.

ON BERLIN PROBLEM

Macmillan Asks Spring Summit

SCARBOROUGH, England (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Macmillan called Saturday for a summit conference in the spring to remove the sputtering fuse from the German and Berlin problem.

The British leader implied that he and Soviet Premier Khrushchev already have agreed on the need for such top-level negotiations to be held after a new president has taken over direction of the American government.

Addressing a meeting of 5,000 enthusiastic Conservative party workers, Macmillan declared Britain had a key role in improving the international climate. He said the world situation "has substantially worsened" since Khrushchev torpedoed the summit talks in Paris last May.

SELECTS WARDS

Carefully selecting his words, Macmillan declared big power negotiations on Germany and Berlin must be resumed, as this constitutes "a potentially dangerous problem, from the point of view of East and West alike."

Macmillan also called for a resumption of disarmament negotiations. To get things going in this field he suggested Eastern and Western scientists begin by joining in technical studies of arms problems.

In his wide-ranging speech, Macmillan also made it plain Britain hopes now to come to terms with the French-led Common Market and thus end the present commercial division of free Europe.

He promised that his government—in dealing with the remaining dependent British territories in Africa—will seek to meet the legitimate aspirations for self-government of native Africans while also protecting legitimate rights of white settlers in those areas.

Navy Searching In Pacific For Mysterious Sub

HONOLULU (UPI) — A Navy "hunter - killer" force knifed through the Pacific Saturday to investigate a suspected foreign submarine that has been sighted off and on for more than a week.

The anti-submarine aircraft carrier Kearsarge and four destroyers were expected to reach the area of the sighting soon.

"Then they'll begin a search, but it may be a matter of hours, days or even weeks before they report," a spokesman said. "It's a big ocean."

Patrol planes were continuing a lookout for the sub.

The mystery object was first sighted by an Air Force plane, but the Navy would not say where. However, the fact the flotilla was ordered out of San Diego indicated it was between California and Hawaii rather than west of the islands.

"The contact was an 'on again off again Finnigan' sort of thing for over a week, but persistent enough for us to decide to check it out," the spokesman said.

The Kearsarge with its three squadrons of planes left San Diego early Friday with the destroyers Thomason, Boles, Lofberg and Evans. Their mission was to identify the sub, keep it under surveillance and photograph it, but to take no further action unless it becomes warlike.

Sagging Lights Endanger Nixon

SPRINGFIELD (UPI)—Secret Service agents interrupted Vice President Richard M. Nixon's speech before more than 20,000 people here Saturday night when a string of heavy lights over Nixon's head began to sag dangerously toward him.

Nixon, addressing a mass Republican rally at the Illinois State Fair Grounds, had just began his speech when a row of ten heavy flood lights about 10 feet over his head began to slump down toward him. One of the supporting cables holding the lights had broken.

Jack Sherwood, chief of the Secret Service detail assigned to Nixon, moved quickly onto the center of the stage and ushered the Republican presidential candidate from under the string of lights and off to one side of the stage.

Charges Fly In Speeches By Nominees

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"Leap year liberalism" was attributed to the Republican presidential candidate, and he charged his Democratic opponent with "frightening foolishness" in Saturday's lively climax to a week of intense campaigning.

Republican Richard M. Nixon's political character was assailed by both John F. Kennedy, the Democratic nominee, and former President Harry S. Truman. Nixon, in turn, said that every day Kennedy holds to his policy on the Chinese islands of Quemoy and Matsu "he increases the risk of war."

PRESSING CASE

Pressing his case for Pennsylvania's big bloc of 32 electoral votes, Kennedy put his principal jibes largely in the form of questions before an audience of 10,000 at New Castle. He noted that Nixon Friday described himself as a "practical progressive." But, the Massachusetts senator said, the vice president five months ago called himself an "economic conservative."

Then Kennedy asked the laughing crowd: "What is Mr. Nixon? The practical progressive? The outspoken conservative? The old Nixon? The new Nixon? The modern Republican? The old-fashioned Republican?"

The Massachusetts senator went on to assail Nixon's position on minimum wages, old age health insurance and depressed area aid and concluded, "The people are not interested in leap year liberalism."

Truman, speaking at Abingdon, Va., was more direct in his verbal blows, calling Nixon "a political hatchet man" whose only reputation, he said, is that of "a shrewd and calculating politician."

Nixon made a cross-country swing with stops in Arizona, Oklahoma and Illinois en route to an overnight stop at Hartford, Conn., and a Sunday strategy session with Henry Cabot Lodge, his vice-presidential running mate, and other party leaders.

Rain helped hold Nixon's crowd to 6,000 in a 14,000-seat stadium at Phoenix as he returned again to his criticism of Kennedy's position that the little Chinese islands of Quemoy and Matsu are not worth a U.S. defensive effort he

Twisters, Hail, Rain Batter Areas In Texas

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — At least two small tornadoes smashed at widely separated Texas farm areas and massive rains, often mixed with hail, battered the rich south plains cotton belt in west Texas Saturday.

One twister pounced on a rural area of Karnes County in south central Texas in the afternoon Mrs. Richard Rudolph of the Fashing community reported it ripped off several roofs in the Peggy community to the west, also knocking down power lines and wrecking farm buildings. Heavy rain accompanied the storm.

Mrs. Walter Tom Hurt said the same tornado lifted a 50,000-pound grain bin, hurled it back to earth and shattered the bin on her Karnes County farm. Felix Henke measured 4 inches of rain in 30 minutes on his farm in the same neighborhood.

Another baby tornado struck in the forenoon near Muleshoe, 70 miles northwest of Lubbock, during a 3.5-inch downpour. Floydada, 50 miles northeast of Lubbock, measured 3.15 inches of rain in two hours.

Showers, Mild Weather Seen

Scattered showers and thundershowers are in the Twin Cities weather outlook through tonight.

The weatherman says that temperatures will not change much with an expected high today of 75 and an overnight low of 60.

The showers are expected to be mostly in the afternoon and early evening — widely scattered.

Showers are also predicted around the state.

The Saturday high reading here was 80 with a low of 57.

MAY STILL BE HELD

Mystery Cloaks Two Americans

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — The whereabouts of two Americans who had been held incommunicado by Soviet authorities for seven weeks was still shrouded in mystery Saturday night.

The Soviet Foreign Office had told the U.S. Embassy in Moscow that Harvey C. Bennett, of Bath, Maine, and Mark I. Kaminsky, of Cass County, Mich., had been expelled to Czechoslovakia at the Uzhgorod crossing point.

The U.S. Embassy in Prague said the two Americans have not yet contacted American officials there.

UNHEARD FROM

"We do not even know whether they have actually crossed the border," an embassy spokesman said.

Officials at the U.S. Embassy in Vienna and the legation in Budapest said they had not heard from Bennett and Kaminsky.

There was some speculation here that the two Americans might still be held at Uzhgorod awaiting Czechoslovak clearance to proceed to the West. The Czechs might even take them directly to the frontiers of either West Germany or Austria under escort.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman in Vienna said the two Americans had no instructions to report to U.S. authorities and might not do so on their own. So they might be on this side of the Iron Curtain without knowing that American officials wanted to talk to them.

The United States was expected to protest to the Soviet Union against their detention and officials wanted to get a full report from Bennett and Kaminsky before taking any action.

Police Battle Tokyo Rioters, Scores Injured

TOKYO (UPI) — Nearly 2,000 riot police battled fanatical, snake-dancing leftist students Saturday in a downtown Tokyo brawl that injured scores of persons.

The students retreated, reformed their ranks and were finally dispersed with the aid of party goers on Tokyo's "Great White Way."

Club-swinging police smashed back a spearhead of 500 Zengakuren students seeking to infiltrate a peaceful demonstration staged by some 30,000 Soyo labor unionists mourning the assassination of Socialist chief Inejiro Asanuma.

At least 30 policemen and 40 students were injured in the clash.

Police drove the students back to Shimbashi station where the demonstrators set up barricades. They then outfeinted the authorities and turned up suddenly to lead a chanting snake dance along the Ginza, Tokyo's Broadway.

Shortly afterward, a hundred Saturday night merrymakers achieved what the riot squads had been trying to do all day, and dispersed the mob.

AT MIAMI AIRPORT

Cuba Escapees Get Rousing Welcome

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A rousing welcome was given at Miami International Airport Saturday to 21 Cuban refugees, including 15 former political prisoners who escaped from the Morro Castle prison across the bay from Havana.

A key figure in the well-engineered escape to political asylum in the United States was Jose Lopez Franco, who met the rest of the group near the prison with a 28-foot boat three nights ago.

Five Cuban sailors, assigned to the prison as guards, joined 15 prisoners in the escape. As they reached open water, two Cuban gunboats sprayed machine gun fire at the escapees, but Franco steered his boat to safety in the darkness.

The refugees spent the three days en route to Key West without food. They arrived early Saturday and came on to Miami aboard a National Air Lines plane.

An attractive Cuban woman, wearing black toreador pants and a leopard skin blouse, rushed from the crowd of greeters and hugged and kissed the refugees. She gave her name as Pepita Riera of Miami.

As the group, described as mostly in their 20s, walked to the airport terminal many other Cubans shook their hands and shouted words of encouragement.

One of the former prisoners, Dioniseo Suarez of Havana, was carrying a Bible. He said, "We believe in God and the Bible. We came to this country to fight for freedom in our own country."

Suarez said the men had been in Castro's army and had opposed former dictator Fulgencio Batista.

55 ON BALLOT

Amendments Face General Election

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first in a series of articles on the proposed Louisiana Constitutional Amendments, which will be voted on November 8. The first article pertains to Amendments 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5.)

By SAM HANNA
Staff Writer

Louisiana voters will find a crowded ballot on November 8 when they go to the polls to vote on a President and 55 Constitutional Amendments.

All 55 amendments were adopted last summer by the Legislature and must be approved by the people before they become law. The voter, of course, has the option of voting for or against any or all of the proposed amendments.

The first five amendments have attracted more attention than any of the other proposals.

No. 1, which is the result of a bill co-sponsored by Rep. T. T Fields of Farmerville, calls for changes in the LSU Board of Supervisors while No. 2-5 deals with the so - called "Blue Ribbon" boards.

Gov. Jimmie H. Davis declares he has hands - off on No. 1, but is the chief supporter of a move to change the "Blue Ribbon" boards created in 1952 when Gov. Robert F. Kennon was in office.

Principally, No. 1 would increase the number of members on the LSU Board of Supervisors from 15 to 20 while reducing the terms of office from 14 to nine years.

In addition, the 9-year terms would be staggered so that two new members would be appointed each year on June 1. No mem-

"Leap year liberalism" was attributed to the Republican presidential candidate, and he charged his Democratic opponent with "frightening foolishness" in Saturday's lively climax to a week of intense campaigning.

Republican Richard M. Nixon's political character was assailed by both John F. Kennedy, the Democratic nominee, and former President Harry S. Truman. Nixon, in turn, said that every day Kennedy holds to his policy on the Chinese islands of Quemoy and Matsu "he increases the risk of war."

PRESSING CASE

Pressing his case for Pennsylvania's big bloc of 32 electoral votes, Kennedy put his principal jibes largely in the form of questions before an audience of 10,000 at New Castle. He noted that Nixon Friday described himself as a "practical progressive." But, the Massachusetts senator said, the vice president five months ago called himself an "economic conservative."

Then Kennedy asked the laughing crowd: "What is Mr. Nixon? The practical progressive? The outspoken conservative? The old Nixon? The new Nixon? The modern Republican? The old-fashioned Republican?"

The Massachusetts senator went on to assail Nixon's position on minimum wages, old age health insurance and depressed area aid and concluded, "The people are not interested in leap year liberalism."

Truman, speaking at Abingdon, Va., was more direct in his verbal blows, calling Nixon "a political hatchet man" whose only reputation, he said, is that of "a shrewd and calculating politician."

Nixon made a cross-country swing with stops in Arizona, Oklahoma and Illinois en route to an overnight stop at Hartford, Conn., and a Sunday strategy session with Henry Cabot Lodge, his vice-presidential running mate, and other party leaders.

Rain helped hold Nixon's crowd to 6,000 in a 14,000-seat stadium at Phoenix as he returned again to his criticism of Kennedy's position that the little Chinese islands of Quemoy and Matsu are not worth a U.S. defensive effort he

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — At least two small tornadoes smashed at widely separated Texas farm areas and massive rains, often mixed with hail, battered the rich south plains cotton belt in west Texas Saturday.

One twister pounced on a rural area of Karnes County in south central Texas in the afternoon Mrs. Richard Rudolph of the Fashing community reported it ripped off several roofs in the Peggy community to the west, also knocking down power lines and wrecking farm buildings. Heavy rain accompanied the storm.

Mrs. Walter Tom Hurt said the same tornado lifted a 50,000-pound grain bin, hurled it back to earth and shattered the bin on her Karnes County farm. Felix Henke measured 4 inches of rain in 30 minutes on his farm in the same neighborhood.

Another baby tornado struck in the forenoon near Muleshoe, 70 miles northwest of Lubbock, during a 3.5-inch downpour. Floydada, 50 miles northeast of Lubbock, measured 3.15 inches of rain in two hours.

Showers, Mild Weather Seen

Scattered showers and thundershowers are in the Twin Cities weather outlook through tonight.

The weatherman says that temperatures will not change much with an expected high today of 75 and an overnight low of 60.

The showers are expected to be mostly in the afternoon and early evening — widely scattered.

Showers are also predicted around the state.

The Saturday high reading here was 80 with a low of 57.

MAY STILL BE HELD

Mystery Cloaks Two Americans

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — The whereabouts of two Americans who had been held incommunicado by Soviet authorities for seven weeks was still shrouded in mystery Saturday night.

The Soviet Foreign Office had told the U.S. Embassy in Moscow that Harvey C. Bennett, of Bath, Maine, and Mark I. Kaminsky, of Cass County, Mich., had been expelled to Czechoslovakia at the Uzhgorod crossing point.

The U.S. Embassy in Prague said the two Americans have not yet contacted American officials there.

UNHEARD FROM

"We do not even know whether they have actually crossed the border," an embassy spokesman said.

Officials at the U.S. Embassy in Vienna and the legation in Budapest said they had not heard from Bennett and Kaminsky.

There was some speculation here that the two Americans might still be held at Uzhgorod awaiting Czechoslovak clearance to proceed to the West. The Czechs might even take them directly to the frontiers of either West Germany or Austria under escort.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman in Vienna said the two Americans had no instructions to report to U.S. authorities and might not do so on their own. So they might be on this side of the Iron Curtain without knowing that American officials wanted to talk to them.

The United States was expected to protest to the Soviet Union against their detention and officials wanted to get a full report from Bennett and Kaminsky before taking any action.

Police Battle Tokyo Rioters, Scores Injured

TOKYO (UPI) — Nearly 2,000 riot police battled fanatical, snake-dancing leftist students Saturday in a downtown Tokyo brawl that injured scores of persons.

The students retreated, reformed their ranks and were finally dispersed with the aid of party goers on Tokyo's "Great White Way."

Club-swinging police smashed back a spearhead of 500 Zengakuren students seeking to infiltrate a peaceful demonstration staged by some 30,000 Soyo labor unionists mourning the assassination of Socialist chief Inejiro Asanuma.

At least 30 policemen and 40 students were injured in the clash.

Police drove the students back to Shimbashi station where the demonstrators set up barricades. They then outfeinted the authorities and turned up suddenly to lead a chanting snake dance along the Ginza, Tokyo's Broadway.

Shortly afterward, a hundred Saturday night merrymakers achieved what the riot squads had been trying to do all day, and dispersed the mob.

Cuba Escapees Get Rousing Welcome

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A rousing welcome was given at Miami International Airport Saturday to 21 Cuban refugees, including 15 former political prisoners who escaped from the Morro Castle prison across the bay from Havana.

A key figure in the well-engineered escape to political asylum in the United States was Jose Lopez Franco, who met the rest of the group near the prison with a 28-foot boat three nights ago.

Five Cuban sailors, assigned to the prison as guards, joined 15 prisoners in the escape. As they reached open water, two Cuban gunboats sprayed machine gun fire at the escapees, but Franco steered his boat to safety in the darkness.

The refugees spent the three days en route to Key West without food. They arrived early Saturday and came on to Miami aboard a National Air Lines plane.

An attractive Cuban woman, wearing black toreador pants and a leopard skin blouse, rushed from the crowd of greeters and hugged and kissed the refugees. She gave her name as Pepita Riera of Miami.

As the group, described as mostly in their 20s, walked to the airport terminal many other Cubans shook their hands and shouted words of encouragement.

One of the former prisoners, Dioniseo Suarez of Havana, was carrying a Bible. He said, "We believe in God and the Bible. We came to this country to fight for freedom in our own country."

Suarez said the men had been in Castro's army and had opposed former dictator Fulgencio Batista.

Executions Are Set For Early Today

HAVANA (AP) — A military tribunal Saturday night sentenced two Americans to die at Santiago. A superior tribunal rejected their appeals for clemency, and they were ordered to be shot early Sunday.

The two are Robert O. Fuller of Miami, Fla., and Allan Thompson of Queen City, Tex., members of a 27-man expedition from Miami, Fla., that landed last week on the northeast coast of Cuba.

Thus Prime Minister Fidel Castro's military courts handed out the same swift sentences they meted out last week to a third American member of the expedition, Anthony Zarba of Somerville, Mass.

FROM LOUISIANA

Thompson who also gave a Mooringsport, La., address, and Fuller were picked up only Friday in the hills of eastern Cuba, birthplace of Castro's own revolution, army sources reported.

The court found them guilty of armed revolt against the state.

Seven Cuban members of the band were shot Thursday with Zarba.

The Cuban members of the expedition captured with Fuller and Thompson were given 30-year terms. They are Juan Gonzalez and Angel Rivero Sanchez.

During the trial Fuller admitted having come with the expedition, asserting that land his father had acquired and owned "honorably" in eastern Cuba had been taken from him. His father, William O. Fuller, now lives in Miami. He formerly operated a large farm near San German in eastern Oriente Province.

Thompson refused to testify.

Harvey Summ, U.S. consul in Santiago attended the trial.

Meanwhile, another military tri-

Louisiana Kin Of Thompson Gives Up Hope

MOORINGSPORT, La. (AP) — "I guess it will be all over soon."

Mrs. O. C. Corn, 67-year-old Louisiana woman whose nephew was one of two Americans sentenced Saturday night to die in Cuba, spoke in a faint voice.

Allan Thompson, who may face a firing squad Sunday, was convicted of conspiring to overthrow the Cuban government. He listed Mrs. Corn as his next-to-kin.

She and her 72-year-old husband raised him from childhood and saw him through two years of high school. They are now retired from their commercial fishing business.

Earlier in the evening, Mrs. Corn said she thought Thompson should have an American lawyer.

"Is there any way I can get help?" she asked. "I think he should be defended by an American lawyer, someone who knows our way not by a Cuban who is close to Castro."

Even as she spoke, Thompson was being tried and convicted. He was captured Friday.

"He is not an outlaw," Mrs. Corn said. "I can't understand it. We saw him just last summer in the Florida Keys where he worked in a resort. And there was never any talk about Cuba or overthrowing a government."

Thompson, a bachelor, was born in Queen City, Tex. His mother reportedly is dead. His father, John Thompson, is a commercial

55 ON BALLOT

Amendments Face General Election

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first in a series of articles on the proposed Louisiana Constitutional Amendments, which will be voted on November 8. The first article pertains to Amendments 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5.)

By SAM HANNA

Louisiana voters will find a crowded ballot on November 8 when they go to the polls to vote on a President and 55 Constitutional Amendments.

All 55 amendments were adopted last summer by the Legislature and must be approved by the people before they become law. The voter, of course, has the option of voting for or against any or all of the proposed amendments.

The first five amendments have attracted more attention than any of the other proposals.

No. 1, which is the result of a bill co-sponsored by Rep. T. T Fields of Farmerville, calls for changes in the LSU Board of Supervisors while No. 2-5 deals with the so - called "Blue Ribbon" boards.

Gov. Jimmie H. Davis declares he has hands - off on No. 1, but is the chief supporter of a move to change the "Blue Ribbon" boards created in 1952 when Gov. Robert F. Kennon was in office.

Principally, No. 1 would increase the number of members on the LSU Board of Supervisors from 15 to 20 while reducing the terms of office from 14 to nine years.

In addition, the 9-year terms would be staggered so that two new members would be appointed each year on June 1. No mem-

Ike Warns Reds U.S. Intends To Defend Islands

ican need feel that the United States will be involved in military hostilities merely in defense of Quemoy or Matsu."

Hagerty emphasized that the entire letter should be considered in any discussion of the offshore islands.

The two islands are only a few miles off the Chinese Communist coast. They are 100 miles from Formosa. Like Formosa, they are held by Nationalist forces under President Chiang Kai-shek. In the decade since the Reds drove Chiang to Formosa Quemoy and Matsu have been subjected to periodic Communist bombardment.

In January 1955, during one of the recurrent Formosan crises, Congress passed a resolution authorizing the President to defend Formosa and the nearby Pescadores Islands and other positions which in his judgment might be necessary to their defense.

In the letter to Green which was reaffirmed by Hagerty's statement Saturday, Eisenhower cited the Formosa resolution, saying it authorized "the securing and protection of such positions as Quemoy and Matsu only if the President judges that to be required or appropriate in assuring the defense of Formosa and the Pescadores."

"I shall scrupulously observe that limitation contained in the congressional authority granted me," Eisenhower said.

Over the years administration officials have sometimes emphasized the two islands could be defended only if an attack was found by the President to be directed against Formosa; at other times they have argued that it was difficult to conceive of an attack by the Reds against Quemoy and Matsu which would not be directed at Formosa.

The late Secretary of State John Foster Dulles said repeatedly the Red Chinese did not seem to be interested in the islands except as they related to Formosa and that the conquest of Formosa was the objective of Peiping policy.

When the Eisenhower administration was developing its present Formosa policy in late 1954 it was widely understood that the purpose was to obtain withdrawal of Chinese Nationalist forces generally from the islands along the Communist-held mainland and to concentrate on Formosa.

Despite U.S. urgings, Chiang refused to abandon any of the positions directly opposite Formosa although he did agree to withdraw from the Tachen Islands about 200 miles from Formosa to the north.

Dulles and Eisenhower then evolved the policy providing for defense of the offshore islands at the President's discretion, not as positions important in themselves but as related to the protection of Formosa.

says could lead to World War III.

"The United States is not going to make the mistake of turning over free territory to a dictator at the point of a gun," Nixon said. He pursued his theme with fresh vigor at Springfield, Ill., where he used the "frightening foolishness" term and warned of war risk.

The vice president received support from President Eisenhower on the Quemoy-Matsu issue when the White House released a 1959 Eisenhower letter outlining the administration position. In this, the President said defense of Quemoy and Matsu, which lie four and five miles from the Red China mainland, might be necessary if an attack on them were regarded as preliminary to an attack on Formosa.

Lodge told a Williamsport, Pa., rally that on the Quemoy-Matsu question "instead of giving us a new frontier, Kennedy is rolling back the frontier that we've got." The former U.S. ambassador to the United Nations went on to question Kennedy's ability to deal with international communism.

"Let's don't wear our heart on our sleeves where the Communists can see it. It is dangerous to retreat. You get shot that way," he said.

The question: "Can he handle the Communists?" wasn't asked only by the Republicans. Kennedy said Nixon has been talking about his ability to stand up to Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev. But, Kennedy said, Nixon hasn't been saying much about Cuba and Prime Minister Fidel Castro and asked, "If you can't stand up to Castro, how can you expect to stand up to Khrushchev?"

The Democratic nominee then outlined a five-point program on Cuba, with a broad pattern of tougher policy toward the Moscow-oriented Castro government.

Kennedy flatly predicted a Democratic victory Nov. 8 and Southern Democratic leaders called the South solid for their party again in the wake of a swing through Dixie by Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, their vice-presidential nominee.

In a television interview recorded for NBC Oct. 12 Nixon was more cautious. He predicted a very close race likely to be decided in the final three weeks of the campaign.

Asked if he was confident of winning, he replied: "I am never confident in an election. That's one of the reasons why I've never lost one."

Plans for one of the big features of the final three weeks of the battle for ballots remained indefinite after a Washington meeting of representatives of the two candidates with TV and radio network officials.

Remaining to be settled, probably Monday, is a three-way question—whether to 1. end the TV-radio series next Friday night as scheduled, 2. have the Friday program and add a fifth encounter closer to the election or 3. postpone the Friday show until a later date.

Castro Decrees Urban Reforms

HAVANA (AP) — Prime Minister Fidel Castro's Cabinet Saturday announced the adoption of an urban reform law designed to give every Cuban an opportunity to own his own home. The law in effect makes the government the sole real estate operator in the country.

It stipulates that Cubans may apply their rent for apartments or homes toward the purchase of the dwellings over a period ranging from 5 to 20 years. Urban reform councils will be set up to administer the program and collect the rents, passing them on to landlords after certain deductions.

The decree comes as a followup to Cuba's agrarian reform laws and the nationalization of hundreds of millions of dollars worth of commercial and industrial enterprises.

ber would be eligible for reappointment if he had served five years or more.

Proponents of No. 1 contend that the terms of the present LSU board members are too long and that there are no restrictions on reappointment.

Thus, supporters of the change argue that present members can serve indefinitely.

The LSU board is against No. 1, as well as numerous top staffers on the university campus. LSU president Troy H. Middleton has spoken out against the amendment too.

On the other hand, the Davis administration is sponsoring Amendments No. 2, 3, 4 and 5 to abolish Kennon's constitutional boards.

Those boards include the Wild Life and Fisheries Commission, Board of Highways, Board of Institutions and Board of Public Welfare.

This is what the proposed changes would do:

1. No. 2 would re-create the present seven-man Wild Life and Fisheries Commission but the commission would function in an advisory capacity only.

2. No. 3 would create an eight-man highway board, all to be appointed by the governor, to serve in an advisory capacity only.

3. No. 4 would create an eight-man board of institutions to serve in an advisory capacity only. These members would be appointed by the governor too.

4. No. 5 also would create eight-man board of public welfare to adopt rules and policies for the department of welfare. This board would be more than an advisory group.

In effect, the present Wild Life and Fisheries Commission, Highway Board and Board of Institutions would lose their present status, which is policy making.

In addition, all of the present members of these boards are serving under overlapping terms.

But, the Davis amendments would make their terms run concurrent with the governor.

Four years ago the late Earl K. Long, then governor, attempted to abolish the constitutional board, but was defeated.

CALDWELL PARISH

Festival Expands To Books, Poetry

By JOHN CALE
Staff Writer

COLUMBIA — A poets' and writers' corner and an extra half-acre of exhibition space for paintings were noteworthy additions to the 5th annual Caldwell Parish Art Festival held here yesterday.

Harnett T. Kane, Louisiana author, was guest speaker for the event, an annual project sponsored by the parish library board. Kane laced humorous comments into his review of a recent book: "Have Pen, Will Autograph."

The author called for more careful reading by the public, pointing out how often he was credited with books which he did not write. He recalled one woman in particular who said she had "enjoyed ever so much his 'Gone with the Wind.'" Commented Kane, "There's one book I wish I really had written."

REGIONAL INTEREST

Following his talk, the author told reporters he was impressed by the great number of entries in what had been described to him as a rural art festival. "The people here seem to be part of this exhibition," he said. "They're not just outsiders looking in."

Work from as far west as Vivian in Caddo Parish and as far east as Ferriday was included in the displays on the grounds of the Caldwell Parish Community Center. Approximately 3,000 persons attended.

For the first time, a gold ribbon sweepstakes award was presented to the artist whose work was considered "best in the show" by the judges. A still life oil painting by Mrs. O. G. Squires of Winn Parish received the award at yesterday's festival.

Serving as judges were Mark Harris and Miss Cora Hoffpauir, both of the Louisiana Tech Art Department; and Mrs. Thurla Bordelon, supervisor of art in the Monroe City Elementary School system. Mrs. O. N. Reynolds, Miss Willie Mae Seab and Mrs. George Cotton served as festival co-chairmen.

Donald Thornton, teacher at North Caddo Parish High School, Vivian, and Lee Holland, Ruston, authors of a recent collection of poems published under the title "Outcry," read several examples of their work during the morning portion of the program.

A guided tour through a special gallery exhibition inside the center which included works by five prominent state artists rounded out the day's program.

RIBBON AWARDS

The panel of judges noted the growth of the festival over a five - year period and called attention to the difficult task of placing ribbons on particular pieces of work. A spokesman for the judges said, "With such a great number of pictures to judge within a short period of time, we based the ribbon awards on works which appeared to us to come from persons young and old who were seriously interested in art." All three judges recommended that next year's festival include a definite set of categories for entries.

Blue ribbons were awarded to the following:

Mrs. Maude Mayo, Glen Gore, Reba Wiley, Jerry Haynes, Helen Haynes, Carl Mittell, Mary Silverton, Mrs. Thelma Oseland, Hilda Colert, Mrs. S. H. Trammell, Katherine Magruder, Nell Haynes, Vorice George, Sandie Harkness, Ernie Schram, Mrs. Drew Hays, Mrs. Inez Faust, Mrs. Ted Brode.

Mrs. D. Rabun Smith, Don Thornton, Betty Mostyn, Jimmy Sheek, Wayne Anderson, Wayne Rader, Jan Spurlock, Hazel Blazier, Mrs. Vorice George class, Monroe City Elementary School group, Robert E. The following were awarded ribbons:

J. H. Washburn, Mrs. Virginia Cookston, Mrs. O. G. Squires, 1st Grade Columbia group, Debbie Grayson, Suzette Lindsey, Mona Kay Lindsey, Nancy Loker, Hazel Blazier, Jean Slaughter, Margaret Wren, Mary Jane Sims, Mrs. Debbie Legrone, Peggy Folds.

White ribbons were awarded to the following persons:

Jay Wren, Mrs. Dan O'Neal, Nellie Neal, Jan Hallmark, Betty Brown, Gloria Alford, Mary A. Moore, Don Thornton, Beatrice Fortenberry, Vera Speece, Mrs. Marjry A. Newcomb and The Haven.

Included in the awards were 18 ribbons in all categories by students in the Monroe Recreation Center art classes, according to Mrs. Courtney Oliver, instructor.

Mrs. Sarah Agnes Brooks, 88 - year - old Monroe resident, died in a local hospital Saturday night after a brief illness.

bunal at Havana's La Cabana military fortress completed hearings in a case involving another American, Leslie Bradley of Minneapolis.

Bradley and 12 others are accused of collaborating in a fake plot to invade Nicaragua from Cuba with official sanction of the United States in order to embarrass the Cuban regime.

The prosecution in the closing argument reiterated a demand for 16-year terms for Bradley and Nicaraguan exile Chester Lacayo.

The Havana military tribunal said the sentences would be announced at 6 p.m. Monday.

Modifying his original demands, the prosecution called for only five years for Dominican Miguel Angelo Ramirez and five Cubans and acquittal for five other Cubans. He had originally asked for 16 years for all.

At about the time the sentences were being passed at Santiago, Castro went on a nationwide TV hookup denouncing the United States and accusing it of aiding and abetting counterrevolutionaries.

Referring to the invaders that included the three Americans, Castro charged they were headed for the big U.S. naval base at Guantanamo when they were caught.

Castro declared there still were a few armed counterrevolutionaries operating in Cuba but predicted they soon would be liquidated.

Last week, his military tribunal at Santa Clara, and the one at Santiago tried 195 persons on counterrevolutionary charges in less than 4 hours. Thirteen defendants were executed in the two trials.

Another American, Richard Pecoraro of Staten Island, N.Y., drew a 20-year sentence at the Santa Clara trial.

The Santiago trial of Fuller and Thompson followed the same swift pattern.

There was some confusion earlier as to the identity of Fuller. The armed forces ministry and government press reports first listed him as Paul Hughes and said a third American, Robert Full, was still at large. The court at Santiago later identified one of the American defendants as Fuller and said he is the son of American parents.

In Miami, William O. Fuller said the two Americans being tried in Santiago are his son, Robert, 25, and Dale Thompson, about

Mrs. Corn said she didn't know he went to Cuba.

"I was shocked to death when the state department called today and told me about this," she said.

Mrs. Corn said she was trying to reach Louisiana Rep. Overton Brooks.

"I think it's terrible the way we're letting those dictators do the things they're doing," she said.

30. Fuller said Hughes had visited him Friday.

"Bobby may have given his name as Hughes because he didn't want his mother to worry," said the elder Fuller, who formerly operated a plantation in Cuba.

Ike Warns Reds U.S. Intends To Defend Islands

ican need feel that the United States will be involved in military hostilities merely in defense of Quemoy or Matsu."

Hagerty emphasized that the entire letter should be considered in any discussion of the offshore islands.

The two islands are only a few miles off the Chinese Communist coast. They are 100 miles from Formosa. Like Formosa, they are held by Nationalist forces under President Chiang Kai-shek. In the decade since the Reds drove Chiang to Formosa Quemoy and Matsu have been subjected to periodic Communist bombardment.

In January 1955, during one of the recurrent Formosan crises, Congress passed a resolution authorizing the President to defend Formosa and the nearby Pescadores Islands and other positions which in his judgment might be necessary to their defense.

In the letter to Green which was reaffirmed by Hagerty's statement Saturday, Eisenhower cited the Formosa resolution, saying it authorized "the securing and protection of such positions as Quemoy and Matsu only if the President judges that to be required or appropriate in assuring the defense of Formosa and the Pescadores."

"I shall scrupulously observe that limitation contained in the congressional authority granted me," Eisenhower said.

Over the years administration officials have sometimes emphasized the two islands could be defended only if an attack was found by the President to be directed against Formosa; at other times they have argued that it was difficult to conceive of an attack by the Reds against Quemoy and Matsu which would not be directed at Formosa.

The late Secretary of State John Foster Dulles said repeatedly the Red Chinese did not seem to be interested in the islands except as they related to Formosa and that the conquest of Formosa was the objective of Peiping policy.

When the Eisenhower administration was developing its present Formosa policy in late 1954 it was widely understood that the purpose was to obtain withdrawal of Chinese Nationalist forces generally from the islands along the Communist-held mainland and to concentrate on Formosa.

Despite U.S. urgings, Chiang refused to abandon any of the positions directly opposite Formosa although he did agree to withdraw from the Tachen Islands about 200 miles from Formosa to the north.

Dulles and Eisenhower then evolved the policy providing for defense of the offshore islands at the President's discretion, not as positions important in themselves but as related to the protection of Formosa.

Charges Fly In Speeches By Nominees

says could lead to World War III.

"The United States is not going to make the mistake of turning over free territory to a dictator at the point of a gun," Nixon said. He pursued his theme with fresh vigor at Springfield, Ill., where he used the "frightening foolishness" term and warned of war risk.

The vice president received support from President Eisenhower on the Quemoy-Matsu issue when the White House released a 1958 Eisenhower letter outlining the administration position. In this, the President said defense of Quemoy and Matsu, which lie four and five miles from the Red China mainland, might be necessary if an attack on them were regarded as preliminary to an attack on Formosa.

Lodge told a Williamsport, Pa., rally that on the Quemoy-Matsu question "instead of giving us a new frontier, Kennedy is rolling back the frontier that we've got." The former U.S. ambassador to to the United Nations went on to question Kennedy's ability to deal with international communism.

"Let's don't wear our heart on our sleeves where the Communists can see it. It is dangerous to retreat. You get shot that way," he said.

The question: "Can he handle the Communists?" wasn't asked only by the Republicans. Kennedy said Nixon has been talking about his ability to stand up to Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev. But, Kennedy said, Nixon hasn't been saying much about Cuba and Prime Minister Fidel Castro and asked, "If you can't stand up to Castro, how can you expect to stand up to Khrushchev?"

The Democratic nominee then outlined a five-point program on Cuba, with a broad pattern of tougher policy toward the Moscow-oriented Castro government.

Kennedy flatly predicted a Democratic victory Nov. 8 and Southern Democratic leaders called the South solid for their party again in the wake of a swing through Dixie by Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, their vice-presidential nominee.

In a television interview recorded for NBC Oct. 12 Nixon was more cautious. He predicted a very close race likely to be decided in the final three weeks of the campaign.

Asked if he was confident of winning, he replied: "I am never confident in an election. That's one of the reasons why I've never lost one."

Plans for one of the big features of the final three weeks of the battle for ballots remained indefinite after a Washington meeting of representatives of the two candidates with TV and radio network officials.

Remaining to be settled, probably Monday, is a three-way question—whether to 1. end the TV-radio series next Friday night as scheduled, 2. have the Friday program and add a fifth encounter closer to the election or 3. postpone the Friday show until a later date.

Needlework was judged by Miss Lola Caldwell, parish home agent in Columbia schools.

A style show was held at 1 p.m. and at 2 p.m. Harnett T. Kane, noted author of New Orleans, reviewed his latest book.

Stories were told as an afternoon feature and the many works of art were rated as to their skill.

Tea was served at 4 p.m., sponsored by the Columbia Garden Club.

The festival sponsored yearly by the Caldwell Parish library has been given great impetus by Mrs. O. N. Reynolds, known by her unnumbered friends as "Miss Jennie" and by Miss Willie Mae Seab and Mrs. George Cotton, all co-chairmen of the great autumn festival.

Castro Decrees Urban Reforms

HAVANA (AP) — Prime Minister Fidel Castro's Cabinet Saturday announced the adoption of an urban reform law designed to give every Cuban an opportunity to own his own home. The law in effect makes the government the sole real estate operator in the country.

It stipulates that Cubans may apply their rent for apartments or homes toward the purchase of the dwellings over a period ranging from 5 to 20 years. Urban reform councils will be set up to administer the program and collect the rents, passing them on to landlords after certain deductions.

The decree comes as a followup to Cuba's agrarian reform laws and the nationalization of hundreds of millions of dollars worth of commercial and industrial enterprises.

Ruins Of Fort Adams Found

WOODVILLE, Miss. (UPI)—Officials of the Smithsonian Institution said Saturday they have uncovered ruins of Fort Adams, "the most important military garrison in Mississippi."

The fort was constructed in 1798 by the United States to keep an eye on Spanish territory across the Mississippi River near here.

Amendments Face General Election

ber would be eligible for reappointment if he had served five years or more.

Proponents of No. 1 contend that the terms of the present LSU board members are too long and that there are no restrictions on reappointment.

Thus, supporters of the change argue that present members can serve indefinitely.

The LSU board is against No. 1, as well as numerous top staffers on the university campus. LSU president Troy H. Middleton has spoken out against the amendment too.

On the other hand, the Davis administration is sponsoring Amendments No. 2, 3, 4 and 5 to abolish Kennon's constitutional boards.

Those boards include the Wild Life and Fisheries Commission, Board of Highways, Board of Institutions and Board of Public Welfare.

This is what the proposed changes would do:

1. No. 2 would re-create the present seven-man Wild Life and Fisheries Commission but the commission would function in an advisory capacity only.

2. No. 3 would create an eight-man highway board, all to be appointed by the governor, to serve in an advisory capacity only.

3. No. 4 would create an eight-man board of institutions to serve in an advisory capacity only. These members would be appointed by the governor too.

4. No. 5 also would create eight-man board of public welfare to adopt rules and policies for the department of welfare. This board would be more than an advisory group.

In effect, the present Wild Life and Fisheries Commission, Highway Board and Board of Institutions would lose their present status, which is policy making.

In addition, all of the present members of these boards are serving under overlapping terms.

But, the Davis amendments would make their terms run concurrent with the governor.

Four years ago the late Earl K. Long, then governor, attempted to abolish the constitutional board, but was defeated.

CALDWELL PARISH

Festival Expands To Books, Poetry

By JOHN CALE
Staff Writer

COLUMBIA — A poets' and writers' corner and an extra half-acre of exhibition space for paintings were noteworthy additions to the 5th annual Caldwell Parish Art Festival held here yesterday.

Harnett T. Kane, Louisiana author, was guest speaker for the event, an annual project sponsored by the parish library board. Kane laced humorous comments into his review of a recent book: "Have Pen, Will Autograph."

The author called for more careful reading by the public, pointing out how often he was credited with books which he did not write. He recalled one woman in particular who said she had "enjoyed ever so much his 'Gone with the Wind.'" Commented Kane, "There's one book I wish I really had written."

REGIONAL INTEREST

Following his talk, the author told reporters he was impressed by the great number of entries in what had been described to him as a rural art festival. "The people here seem to be part of this exhibition," he said. "They're not just outsiders looking in."

Work from as far west as Vivian in Caddo Parish and as far east as Ferriday was included in the displays on the grounds of the Caldwell Parish Community Center. Approximately 3,000 persons attended.

For the first time, a gold ribbon sweepstakes award was presented to the artist whose work was considered "best in the show" by the judges. A still life oil painting by Mrs. O. G. Squires of Winn Parish received the award at yesterday's festival.

Serving as judges were Mark Harris and Miss Cora Hoffpaur, both of the Louisiana Tech Art Department; and Mrs. Thurla Bordelon, supervisor of art in the Monroe City Elementary School system. Mrs. O. N. Reynolds, Miss Willie Mae Seab and Mrs. George Cotton served as festival co-chairmen.

Donald Thornton, teacher at North Caddo Parish High School, Vivian, and Lee Holland, Ruston, authors of a recent collection of poems published under the title "Outcry," read several examples of their work during the morning portion of the program.

A guided tour through a special gallery exhibition inside the center which included works by five prominent state artists rounded out the day's program.

RIBBON AWARDS

The panel of judges noted the growth of the festival over a five - year period and called attention to the difficult task of placing ribbons on particular pieces of work. A spokesman for the judges said, "With such a great number of pictures to judge within a short period of time, we based the ribbon awards on works which appeared to us to come from persons young and old who were seriously interested in art." All three judges recommended that next year's festival include a definite set of categories for entries.

Blue ribbons were awarded to the following:

Mrs. Maude Mayo, Glen Gore, Reba Wiley, Jerry Haynes, Helen Haynes, Carl Mittell, Mary Silverton, Mrs. Thelma Oseland, Hilda Colert, Mrs. S. H. Trammell, Katherine Magruder, Nell Haynes, Vorice George, Sandie Harkness, Ernie Schram, Mrs. Drew Hays, Mrs. Inez Faust, Mrs. Ted Brode.

Mrs. D. Rabun Smith, Don Thornton, Betty Mostyn, Jimmy Sheek, Wayne Anderson, Wayne Rader, Jan Spurlock, Hazel Blazier, Mrs. Vorice George class, Monroe City Elementary School group, Robert E. Lee Junior High group, 2nd Grade Columbia group, Mrs. O. G. Squires, Mrs. H. M. James, 7th Grade Robert E. Lee Junior High group, Silver Waters Girl Scout group, The Haven, Mrs. W. N. Reynolds, Eloessia Rietzell and Mrs. E. L. Craft.

The following were awarded ribbons:

J. H. Washburn, Mrs. Virginia Cookston, Mrs. O. G. Squires, 1st Grade Columbia group, Debbie Grayson, Suzette Lindsey, Mona Kay Lindsey, Nancy Loker, Hazel Blazier, Jean Slaughter, Margaret Wren, Mary Jane Sims, Mrs. Debbie Legrone, Peggy Folds.

Estelle Kirste, student mobile from North Caddo, wire sculpture from North Caddo, Don Thornton, Mrs. Ted Brode, Gilstrap, Mrs. Tom Henderson, Miss Eleona Brinsmade, Reba Wiley, Monita Allen, Mrs. Earnest Dunn and Mrs. W. N. Reynolds.

White ribbons were awarded to the following persons:

Jay Wren, Mrs. Dan O'Neal, Nellie Neal, Jan Hallmark, Betty Brown, Gloria Alford, Mary A. Moore, Don Thornton, Beatrice Fortenberry, Vera Speece, Mrs. Marjry A. Newcomb and The Haven.

Included in the awards were 18 ribbons in all categories by students in the Monroe Recreation Center art classes, according to Mrs. Courtney Oliver, instructor.

Brooks Rites Are Pending

Mrs. Sarah Agnes Brooks, 88 - year - old Monroe resident, died in a local hospital Saturday night after a brief illness.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete, but will be under the direction of Mulhearn's Funeral Home. Burial will be in the St. Matthew's Cemetery.

She is survived by one son, C. F. Brooks, Plaquemine; two half sisters; and nine granchidlren.

bunal at Havana's La Cabana military fortress completed hearings in a case involving another American, Leslie Bradley of Minneapolis.

Bradley and 12 others are accused of collaborating in a fake plot to invade Nicaragua from Cuba with official sanction of the United States in order to embarrass the Cuban regime.

The prosecution in the closing argument reiterated a demand for 16-year terms for Bradley and Nicaraguan exile Chester Lacayo.

The Havana military tribunal said the sentences would be announced at 6 p.m. Monday.

Modifying his original demands, the prosecution called for only five years for Dominican Miguel Angelo Ramirez and five Cubans and acquittal for five other Cubans. He had originally asked for 16 years for all.

At about the time the sentences were being passed at Santiago, Castro went on a nationwide TV hookup denouncing the United States and accusing it of aiding and abetting counterrevolutionaries.

Referring to the invaders that included the three Americans, Castro charged they were headed for the big U.S. naval base at Guantanamo when they were caught.

Castro declared there still were a few armed counterrevolutionaries operating in Cuba but predicted they soon would be liquidated.

Last week, his military tribunal at Santa Clara, and the one at Santiago tried 195 persons on counterrevolutionary charges in less than 4 hours. Thirteen defendants were executed in the two trials.

Another American, Richard Pecoraro of Staten Island, N.Y., drew a 20-year sentence at the Santa Clara trial.

The Santiago trial of Fuller and Thompson followed the same swift pattern.

There was some confusion earlier as to the identity of Fuller. The armed forces ministry and government press reports first listed him as Paul Hughes and said a third American, Robert Full, was still at large. The court at Santiago later identified one of the American defendants as Fuller and said he is the son of American parents.

In Miami, William O. Fuller said the two Americans being tried in Santiago are his son, Robert, 25, and Dale Thompson, about 30. Fuller said Hughes had visited him Friday.

"Bobby may have given his name as Hughes because he didn't want his mother to worry," said the elder Fuller, who formerly operated a plantation in Cuba.

fisherman believed living in Saint Maurice in Central Louisiana.

Mrs. Corn believes Thompson listed her as next-of-kin because she raised him.

Thompson—thought to be about 31 or 32—worked in fishing camps in northwest Louisiana. He left for the Florida Keys about two years ago, and worked in a fishing resort there.

Mrs. Corn said she didn't know he went to Cuba.

"I was shocked to death when the state department called today and told me about this," she said.

Mrs. Corn said she was trying to reach Louisiana Rep. Overton Brooks.

"I think it's terrible the way we're letting those dictators do the things they're doing," she said.

Supreme Court To Rule In Blue Law Squabbles

By SID MOODY
Associated Press Writer

This story is about Sunday—with a little Saturday thrown in.

Sunday, a rather quiet day to write about, you say? Don't let Sunday fool you.

It lies there helplessly on the calendar, its peace shattered by arguments and hog-tied by a maze of laws more tangled than a spider web in a hurricane.

What started out as a day of rest and worship has become a day of such heated squabbling that the Supreme Court has been called in to referee.

Cause of the rumpus is the so-called blue laws. The court agreed last August to decide during its present term on the constitutionality of blue laws in three states.

The decision—the first in this field by the Supreme Court in this century—could wipe out blue laws, uphold them or compromise.

Blue laws start at a peak of confusion in Massachusetts and gradually peter out as the Sunday traveller moves west until they subside with scarcely a murmur in Hawaii.

In Massachusetts public dancing is forbidden. But you can dance at your wedding providing you don't charge admission. It's lawful to golf on a regulation course but miniature golf is taboo.

Oil and gas for a Sunday trip? Sure but it's illegal for the garageman to change your oil or grease the old bus. You'll find the bars closed on Sunday. But if you are thirsty waiting around for Monday, you can be served a drink in a restaurant or hotel. But only at your table.

The law says you can't work—unless it's an act of necessity or charity. Or unless you observe the Sabbath on some other day, in which case Sunday labor is all right.

And so on through the statute books.

In Hawaii, the only blue law on the blue Pacific forbids sale of bulk liquor on Sundays.

This contrast lends support to a law a student of blue laws tends to formulate: The older the state, the bluer the laws.

Now Mississippi has been around quite a while. Under its blue laws most grocery stores must close on Sunday but drive-in markets may do business. They can sell butter, but not oleomargarine; beer, but not cat food.

In fact, the state was embarrassed to learn recently that its churches were operating illegally because they were not specifically exempted in the blue laws. The legislature corrected this oversight in 1958.

Nevada, one of the newer and most tolerant states, has only one blue law. It forbids dog and horse racing on Sundays. This seems hardly oppressive. Nevada has no dog or horse tracks.

The last word from the Supreme Court on Sunday came—during a weekday—in 1900, when the tribunal ruled Minnesota was within its federal rights to close barber shops on Sunday.

For no readily explainable reason, barbers are a pet target of blue laws. Blue laws are also hard on pugilists and roosters, outlawing boxing matches and cock fights on Sundays in a number of states. And dog shows may not take place in Connecticut before 10 a.m. Sundays.

Since the court's 1900 decision, America has changed mightily and Sunday has gone along with it. Churches are still crowded but the automobile has revolutionized the Sabbath "rest."

More than likely it's now spent behind the wheel of a car en route to mountain, lake or ocean rather than on a hammock on the porch. The lure of so many customers on the road has spurred merchants to build vast highway shopping centers that stay open Sunday.

This in turn, has brought squawks from the city merchants who habitually close Sundays.

Drug stores, generally allowed to open, have aggravated the problem because of the large number of nonpharmaceutical items they now carry.

Faced with the competition, downtown merchants have campaigned for enforcement of blue laws. They have found allies in church groups, who argue for religious reasons.

The highway operators protest that the laws discriminate against them. Jewish and Seventh Day Adventist merchants, who observe their Sabbath on Saturdays, protest that they, too, are discriminated against by having to close Sundays.

At least three states—Ohio, Maine and Texas—have compromised by permitting any storekeeper to stay open on Sunday who observes his Sabbath on another day.

But Sunday laws are, or recently have been, at issue in Virginia, Maryland, Iowa, Arkansas, South Carolina, Oklahoma, North Carolina, New York, Louisiana, Ohio, Nebraska, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Mississippi, Texas, Kentucky and New Jersey.

The cases now before the Supreme Court are typical. Plaintiff in two of them is a chain store called Two Guys from Harrison, which operates outlets in New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Maryland.

Two Guys was found guilty of selling forbidden articles, including staples and floor wax at its stores in Glen Burnie, Md., and Allentown, Pa. The Maryland law forbids all but necessary labor and sale of anything but essentials.

Fines are up to $50 for a first offense and up to a 30-day jail term for repeaters. Under Maryland's first blue laws, an offender could be fined 200 pounds of tobacco or have a "B" burned in his forehead if he blasphemed.

Pennsylvania's law bans sale of a long list of items.

One of the two Massachusetts cases involves Harold Chernock of Springfield, who kept his crown kosher supermarket opened Sunday but closed it Saturday. He appealed a conviction for blue law violation and was upheld 2-1 by a U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals. The state has appealed to the Supreme Court.

Now a little history.

The Roman emperor, Constantine, first declared "no work" laws in 321 after his conversion to Christianity. Jews, of course, had been observing the Sabbath according to the Commandments long before that.

By the time the Pilgrims came to the United States, Sunday was set aside for church, period.

As best can be determined, blue laws became blue in early colonial days. At that time the poorer colonists wore cotton stockings, the rich silk. The wealthy dyed their hose black, the poor used a cheap blue dye. Somehow the austerity of the laws became associated with the rough, Spartan cotton hose, hence blue laws.

A sampling from an Associated Press state-by-state survey shows how far we've come since then.

NEW JERSEY—The seashore community of Ocean Grove closes up tighter than a clam on Sunday. Cars are banned and chains strung across streets into the community, causing motorists passing through to detour several miles.

LOUISIANA — The legislature, which has passed a number of blue laws, is often Criticized by upholders of the Sabbath because it convenes generally Sunday night. Legislators explain this helps them get home to their private businesses by the end of the week.

DELAWARE—There were a raft of blue laws until 1939 when an attorney general began strictly enforcing the long neglected statutes. Delaware reacted promptly by repealing them.

NORTH DAKOTA—No bowling before 1 p.m. Sunday. No baseball within 500 feet of a church.

GEORGIA—No swimming within view of a road leading to a church on Sunday.

VIRGINIA — Sale of general merchandise forbidden, including cameras, but you can buy film. Most foods illegal, but you can buy Virginia ham.

MONTANA—No movies on Sunday showing burglaries, train robberies or other felonies. Like most blue laws, it hasn't been enforced.

ALASKA—Bare of blue laws. "I guess we're either too primitive or too sophisticated," said Jack Doyle, director of the State Legislative Council.

INDIANA—You can fish and play baseball. You can't hunt or play football.

NEW HAMPSHIRE—No cussing. The "anti-cussing law" carries a $1 fine.

OREGON—No barbering, pawnbroking or horseracing.

MAINE — Bowling permitted from 2 to 11 p.m. Church and funeral goers have to pay at toll bridges. Until 1953 they could cross free.

WYOMING—Persons on their way to or from church are exempt from civil arrest.

FLORIDA—No hunting. But trapshooters can shoot clay pigeons.

Let's conclude with Latimer Johnson of Montgomery, Ala., who was fined $10 recently for operating his curbside food stand on Sunday. He was open again next Sunday and fined $15 more.

Before appealing his fine he protested to the judge that he could not lock up his stand. No doors.

Library Building Program Near End

In the spring of 1956 the Ouachita Parish Public Library was one of the most poorly housed libraries in Louisiana. Its buildings were old, overcrowded and failed in every way to reflect the purpose of a library. The book collection was fair and the staff willing, but the physical setup was disheartening. In the summer of that year the Ouachita Parish Police Jury at the request of the Board of Control of the Ouachita Parish Public Library asked the people of Ouachita Parish to go to the polls and vote on two propositions to improve the library. One was a $700,000 bond issue for the construction of new buildings and the other was an increase of ¾ mill in the library maintenance tax.

The Monroe Morning World and practically all of the organizations of the Twin Cities endorsed the plan for library expansion. The board explained that the bond issue would be used to purchase a lot north of Louisville, situated as near as possible to the center of population and with adequate parking space and room for expansion for the main library; second to purchase a lot near the center of West Monroe and build there a community library for that city and third to build a modern branch library on the site of the old library at the corner of Jackson and Calypso streets. On October 30 the program will be complete.

The first building constructed with the proceeds of the bond issue was the library in West Monroe. A site was purchased at 315 Cypress street and the building was opened to the public on May 31, 1958. The use of the library in West Monroe has increased enormously since this building was completed. In 1956, the year that the bond issue was passed, the total circulation of West Monroe for the year was 63,280 books. This year that many books had been circulated by the end of July, so it can be seen that the circulation has almost doubled in four years.

In April of 1959, as a part of the celebration of National Library Week, the Headquarters Library was opened to the people of Ouachita Parish. It is located at 1800 Stubbs Avenue and has taken its rightful place in the cultural life of the community. The use of this library has increased in almost the same proportion as has the West Monroe branch, with a total of 121,071 books being loaned during the first nine months of the current year.

With the new buildings the Ouachita Parish Public Library has been able to offer many new services to the people of the parish. One is the facilities for listening to phonorecords in the libraries and the privilege of borrowing them for home use. Each month several hundred records are checked out by the patrons of the library. Another popular feature of the new buildings is the fact that rooms are available for meetings of clubs and groups of an educational and cultural nature. The meeting room at the headquarters library was used 76 times in 1959 and has already been used 93 times during the current year. The West Monroe meeting room was used 40 times in 1958, 44 times in 1959 and has been used 50 times during 1960.

With places to meet the library has been able to sponsor discussion groups for adults, art exhibits, interesting exhibits and story hours for children. The book collection has also grown during the past four years. In August of 1956 when the bond issue and tax raise were approved the library had a book collection of 45,238 books, today the book collection is 64,915 books. All of these advances were possible because the people of the parish wanted better library service.

On Sunday October 30 the last unit of the library expansion program will be opened to the people of Ouachita parish. It is the Anna Meyer Branch, located at 418 Jackson street in Monroe. It is a fine modern library and will be welcomed by the many people who live and work south of DeSiard street. Open House has been scheduled for 3:00 p.m. The Anna Meyer Branch will offer all of the services which the other libraries have given to the people of the parish. It is a fitting culmination of the library construction program.

Senate Race Top Issue In South Dakota

PIERRE, S.D. (AP) — The national ticket is taking the back seat in South Dakota politics to a liberal-conservative senatorial battle, something almost unheard of in this citadel of the status quo.

Sen. Karl Mundt, nationally known for his labor-management and Americanism committee work, is fighting the battle of his political life against a young liberal college professor.

Rep. George McGovern is hoping to complete the climb from campus history classes to Democratic party secretary to the U.S. House to the Senate.

Mundt, 60, with 22 years in the Senate and House, is a spell-binding orator considered "Mr. Republican" in the state. McGovern, 38 and slim, who speaks with professorial preciseness neutralized by a Midwestern twang, is considered a messiah by his party.

A consistently accurate local poll has Mundt leading narrowly after several months when McGovern led. The pollsters report that this race has virtually no undecided opinion.

Political analysists had pegged South Dakota as a State that remained behind when the political spectrum of the nation shifted leftward.

It supported Robert Taft against Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1952 and some of its delegates stumped hard for Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., at the Republican National Convention this year.

It has a right-to-work law, little centralized power, a long ballot, low budgets perpetually balanced property as the main tax source—all hallmarks of old-style conservatism.

But along came McGovern, who as secretary breathed life into a party that had been sending so few members to the state legislature that they joked they could caucus in a telephone booth.

When he was elected to Congress in 1956, it was the first major office Democrats had won since the depression. This was followed in 1958 by the third Democratic governor in the state's history.

Is McGovern the instrument or the opportune benefactor of a basic change in sentiment, as Democrats hope?

Republicans charge he has attracted out-of-state labor money that facilitates his party's new organizational vitality.

Supreme Court To Rule In Blue Law Squabbles

By SID MOODY
Associated Press Writer

This story is about Sunday—with a little Saturday thrown in.

Sunday, a rather quiet day to write about, you say? Don't let Sunday fool you.

It lies there helplessly on the calendar, its peace shattered by arguments and hog-tied by a maze of laws more tangled than a spider web in a hurricane.

What started out as a day of rest and worship has become a day of such heated squabbling that the Supreme Court has been called in to referee.

Cause of the rumpus is the so-called blue laws. The court agreed last August to decide during its present term on the constitutionality of blue laws in three states.

The decision—the first in this field by the Supreme Court in this century—could wipe out blue laws, uphold them or compromise.

Blue laws start at a peak of confusion in Massachusetts and gradually peter out as the Sunday traveller moves west until they subside with scarcely a murmur in Hawaii.

In Massachusetts public dancing is forbidden. But you can dance at your wedding providing you don't charge admission. It's lawful to golf on a regulation course but miniature golf is taboo.

Oil and gas for a Sunday trip? Sure but it's illegal for the garageman to change your oil or grease the old bus. You'll find the bars closed on Sunday. But if you are thirsty waiting around for Monday, you can be served a drink in a restaurant or hotel. But only at your table.

The law says you can't work—unless it's an act of necessity or charity. Or unless you observe the Sabbath on some other day, in which case Sunday labor is all right.

And so on through the statute books.

In Hawaii, the only blue law on the blue Pacific forbids sale of bulk liquor on Sundays.

This contrast lends support to a law a student of blue laws tends to formulate: The older the state, the bluer the laws.

Now Mississippi has been around quite a while. Under its blue laws most grocery stores must close on Sunday but drive-in markets may do business. They can sell butter, but not oleomargarine; beer, but not cat food.

In fact, the state was embarrassed to learn recently that its churches were operating illegally because they were not specifically exempted in the blue laws. The legislature corrected this oversight in 1958.

Nevada, one of the newer and most tolerant states, has only one blue law. It forbids dog and horse racing on Sundays. This seems hardly oppressive. Nevada has no dog or horse tracks.

The last word from the Supreme Court on Sunday came—during a weekday—in 1900, when the tribunal ruled Minnesota was within its federal rights to close barber shops on Sunday.

For no readily explainable reason, barbers are a pet target of blue laws. Blue laws are also hard on pugilists and roosters, outlawing boxing matches and cock fights on Sundays in a number of states. And dog shows may not take place in Connecticut before 10 a.m. Sundays.

Since the court's 1900 decision, America has changed mightily and Sunday has gone along with it. Churches are still crowded but the automobile has revolutionized the Sabbath "rest."

More than likely it's now spent behind the wheel of a car en route to mountain, lake or ocean rather than on a hammock on the porch. The lure of so many customers on the road has spurred merchants to build vast highway shopping centers that stay open Sunday.

This in turn, has brought squawks from the city merchants who habitually close Sundays.

Drug stores, generally allowed to open, have aggravated the problem ,because of the large number of nonpharmaceutical items they now carry.

Faced with the competition, downtown merchants have campaigned for enforcement of blue laws. They have found allies in church groups, who argue for religious reasons.

The highway operators protest that the laws discriminate against them. Jewish and Seventh Day Adventist merchants, who observe their Sabbath on Saturdays, protest that they, too, are discriminated against by having to close Sundays.

At least three states—Ohio, Maine and Texas—have compromised by permitting any storekeeper to stay open on Sunday who observes his Sabbath on another day.

But Sunday laws are, or recently have been, at issue in Virginia, Maryland, Iowa, Arkansas, South Carolina, Oklahoma, North Carolina, New York, Louisiana, Ohio, Nebraska, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Mississippi, Texas, Kentucky and New Jersey.

The cases now before the Supreme Court are typical. Plaintiff in two of them is a chain store called Two Guys from Harrison, which operates outlets in New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Maryland.

Two Guys was found guilty of selling forbidden articles, including staples and floor wax at its stores in Glen Burnie, Md., and Allentown, Pa. The Maryland law forbids all but necessary labor and sale of anything but essentials.

Fines are up to $50 for a first offense and up to a 30-day jail term for repeaters. Under Maryland's first blue laws, an offender could be fined 200 pounds of tobacco or have a "B" burned in his forehead if he blasphemed.

Pennsylvania's law bans sale of a long list of items.

One of the two Massachusetts cases involves Harold Chernock of Springfield, who kept his crown kosher supermarket opened Sunday but closed it Saturday. He appealed a conviction for blue law violation and was upheld 2-1 by a U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals. The state has appealed to the Supreme Court.

Now a little history.

The Roman emperor, Constantine, first declared "no work" laws in 321 after his conversion to Christianity. Jews, of course, had been observing the Sabbath according to the Commandments long before that.

By the time the Pilgrims came to the United States, Sunday was set aside for church, period.

As best can be determined, blue laws became blue in early colonial days. At that time the poorer colonists wore cotton stockings, the rich silk. The wealthy dyed their hose black, the poor used a cheap blue dye. Somehow the austerity of the laws became associated with the rough, Spartan cotton hose, hence blue laws.

A sampling from an Associated Press state-by-state survey shows how far we've come since then.

NEW JERSEY—The seashore community of Ocean Grove closes up tighter than a clam on Sunday. Cars are banned and chains strung across streets into the community, causing motorists passing through to detour several miles.

LOUISIANA — The legislature, which has passed a number of blue laws, is often Criticized by upholders of the Sabbath because it convenes generally Sunday night. Legislators explain this helps them get home to their private businesses by the end of the week.

DELAWARE—There were a raft of blue laws until 1939 when an attorney general began strictly enforcing the long neglected statutes. Delaware reacted promptly by repealing them.

NORTH DAKOTA—No bowling before 1 p.m. Sunday. No baseball within 500 feet of a church.

GEORGIA—No swimming within view of a road leading to a church on Sunday.

VIRGINIA — Sale of general merchandise forbidden, including cameras, but you can buy film. Most foods illegal, but you can buy Virginia ham.

MONTANA—No movies on Sunday showing burglaries, train robberies or other felonies. Like most blue laws, it hasn't been enforced.

ALASKA—Bare of blue laws. "I guess we're either too primitive or too sophisticated," said Jack Doyle, director of the State Legislative Council.

INDIANA—You can fish and play baseball. You can't hunt or play football.

NEW HAMPSHIRE—No cussing. The "anti-cussing law" carries a $1 fine.

OREGON—No barbering, pawnbroking or horseracing.

MAINE — Bowling permitted from 2 to 11 p.m. Church and funeral goers have to pay at toll bridges. Until 1953 they could cross free.

WYOMING—Persons on their way to or from church are exempt from civil arrest.

FLORIDA—No hunting. But trapshooters can shoot clay pigeons.

Let's conclude with Latimer Johnson of Montgomery, Ala., who was fined $10 recently for operating his curbside food stand on Sunday. He was open again next Sunday and fined $15 more.

Before appealing his fine he protested to the judge that he could not lock up his stand. No doors.

Library Building Program Near End

In the spring of 1956 the Ouachita Parish Public Library was one of the most poorly housed libraries in Louisiana. Its buildings were old, overcrowded and failed in every way to reflect the purpose of a library. The book collection was fair and the staff willing, but the physical setup was disheartening. In the summer of that year the Ouachita Parish Police Jury at the request of the Board of Control of the Ouachita Parish Public Library asked the people of Ouachita Parish to go to the polls and vote on two propositions to improve the library. One was a $700,000 bond issue for the construction of new buildings and the other was an increase of ¼ mill in the library maintenance tax.

The Monroe Morning World and practically all of the organizations of the Twin Cities endorsed the plan for library expansion. The board explained that the bond issue would be used to purchase a lot north of Louisville, situated as near as possible to the center of population and with adequate parking space and room for expansion for the main library; second to purchase a lot near the center of West Monroe and build there a community library for that city and third to build a modern branch library on the site of the old library at the corner of Jackson and Calypso streets. On On October 30 the program will be complete.

The first building constructed with the proceeds of the bond issue was the library in West Monroe. A site was purchased at 315 Cypress street and the building was opened to the public on May 31, 1958. The use of the library in West Monroe has increased enormously since this building was completed. In 1956, the year that the bond issue was passed, the total circulation of West Monroe for the year was 63,280 books. This year that many books had been circulated by the end of July, so it can be seen that the circulation has almost doubled in four years.

In April of 1959, as a part of the celebration of National Library Week, the Headquarters Library was opened to the people of Ouachita Parish. It is located at 1800 Stubbs Avenue and has taken its rightful place in the cultural life of the community. The use of this library has increased in almost the same proportion as has the West Monroe branch, with a total of 121,071 books being loaned during the first nine months of the current year.

With the new buildings the Ouachita Parish Public Library has been able to offer many new services to the people of the parish. One is the facilities for listening to phonorecords in the libraries and the privilege of borrowing them for home use. Each month several hundred records are checked out by the patrons of the library. Another popular feature of the new buildings is the fact that rooms are available for meetings of clubs and groups of an educational and cultural nature. The meeting room at the headquarters library was used 76 times in 1959 and has already been used 93 times during the current year. The West Monroe meeting room was used 40 times in 1958, 44 times in 1959 and has been used 50 times during 1960.

With places to meet the library has been able to sponsor discussion groups for adults, art exhibits, interesting exhibits and story hours for children. The book collection has also grown during the past four years. In August of 1956 when the bond issue and tax raise were approved the library had a book collection of 45,238 books, today the book collection is 64,915 books. NEVILLE HIGH STATISTICS

Comprehensive Evaluation Of Pupils, Parents Made

By MARY ANNE CORPIN
Staff Writer

A comprehensive study of Neville High school students, their parents and teachers has been released by Principal Sidney A. Seegers.

The study is based on the belief that the faculty not only is responsible for teaching the students, but that instructors also should be able to offer the students help with any factors which influence their studies.

Eleven pages of charts prepared by the faculty include information ranging from the type of work the Neville parents do to the intelligence of the students and the number of years of experience of the teachers.

The "self - evaluation" will be presented to W. E. Pate, chairman of the accreditation committee of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, and the 18 committee members when they arrive here Monday night.

The committee plans to inspect Neville, to determine whether the school is measuring up to the standards required by the Southern Association.

Inspections of schools accredited by the Association are required every five years.

Charts show that of Neville's 41 teachers — eight have more than 20 years experience — three have 15 to 19 years experience, nine have 10 to 14 years, nine others have five to nine years, 10 have one to five years and two have less than a year's teaching experience.

Seven teachers have been at Neville for more than 10 years. Eleven have taught there for six to 10 years, 16 have been Neville teachers for two to five years, and seven are in their first year there.

Neville has a predominantly young staff, with 25 of the teachers under 40.

Age areas are: two between 21 and 25 years; 11 between 26 and 30; seven between 31 and 35; five between 36 and 40; eight between 41 and 49 and eight others over 50.

Neville has more girls and fewer boys now than in 1956. This is seen in a series of graphs for the years 1956 through 1960.

In 1956-57 total enrollment was 727, with 378 boys and 349 girls; 1957-58 saw 736 total, with 367 boys and 369 girls; next school year 1958-59, the balance reversed, there were 369 boys, 367 girls, same total enrollment 736.

Last year, the 1959-60 enrollment dropped to the low for the five-year period, 714. A decline in the number of girl students was the factor. Total for boys remained at 369, same as for the previous year. Total for girls dropped to 345.

This year, enrollment spurted to 769, the high for the five years Enrollment of girls increased to 409, but the total of boys dropped to 360.

A chart on mental ability of the students attending during the 1959-60 term shows the intelligence ratings of 694 of the 714 enrolled.

Thirty - three students had a mental ability of more than 124 — an extremely high intelligence rating.

Seventy - eight had a rating between 117 and 124, also very high.

A total of 147 placed between 109 and 116, good above average.

Rated of average ability were 309, with IQ's between 92 and 108.

Eighty-eight had IQ's between 84 and 91. 32 were listed in the IQ area of 76 to 83 and seven rated below 76, all below average intelligence ratings.

In the senior class which graduated in May, 138 of the 158 indicated they planed to attend a four - year college or university, an extremely high percentage of 87.3. This included 74 boys and 64 girls.

Of the other 20 graduates, one boy plannedy to attend junior collegt, nine girls planned to continue their education at some school, four boys and one girl planned to continue their education but were undecided on the type of school, and only three boys and two girls planned to stop their formal education.

Here's the kind of work the 158 who graduated plan to go into: 92, including 44 boys and 49 girls, plan to go into professional, technical and managerial work. Thirty - three, including 13 boys and 20 girls, look to clerical and sales work.

Only five, including four girls and one boy, intended to go into service work. Nine boys indicated their futures were in agriculture, marine or forestry work. Three boys wanted to do mechanical work, 12 boys and four girls were undecided as to what they wanted to do.

What happened to the 155 students who graduated in May of 1959? A follow-up survey shows that 91 per cent, or 141 graduates, are attending college. This includes 67 boys and 74 girls.

Four others, including one boy and three girls, are at other schools beyond high school.

Two boys and two girls are doing clerical or sales work. Three girls are married, one boy and one girl have entered military service, and information on one boy is unknown.

Most of the seniors who graduated from Neville in May of 1960 had attended the high school for four years. The faculty included this in a chart to show the stability of the 1960 seniors — how well they were able to continue in one school.

Of the 122 four - year students, 62 were boys, 60 were girls. Nine students, including eight boys and one girl, had been at the school five years.

Only 27 seniors did not attend Neville for their full four years of high school. Fourteen, including five boys and nine girls, attended for three years; seven, including four boys and three years; seven, including four boys and three girls, were at NHS two years; and six, three girls and three boys, were at the school only one year.

Fifty - five senior students left Neville during the 1959-60 term. Forty, including 24 boys and 16 girls, transferred to another school. One boy left due to disciplinary difficulties, one boy entered military service, three boys withdrew because they lacked interest in school work, one boy and five girls left to get married, one boy left because of poor scholarship.

One girl left because her help was needed at home. Withdrawal reason of one boy and one girl was unkown.

Most of the parents of the 714 students in grades nine through 12 in 1959-60 had graduated from high school or attended college.

Sixteen parents, including eight fathers and eight mothers, did not complete elementary school.

Twenty - three parents, including 16 fathers and seven mothers graduated from elementary school.

A total of 118, including 59 fathers and 59 mothers, attended high school but did not complete the four years of study.

Slightly over 28 per cent, or 373 parents, graduated from high school, but did not attend college. This included 161 fathers and 212 mothers.

Eighty-eight parents attended a school of instruction after high school, but did not graduate. This included 42 fathers and 46 mothers.

Completing a two - year college course were 199 parents, including 82 fathers and 117 mothers.

Three hundred parents graduated from a four-year college. This included 147 fathers and 153 mothers.

And 197 parents did graduate study after graduating from college. Of these, 156 are fathers, and 41 are mothers.

The survey also shows the occupational status of adults — what type work the parents of all 1959-60 pupils were engaged in.

A total of 228 were professional and semi - professional workers — 135 fathers, 93 mothers.

Two hundred and thirty - seven were managers, officials or owned their own businesses. Of these, 220 were fathers, 17 mothers.

Clerical and similar work claimed 126, including 49 fathers, 77 mothers.

Eighty - eight fathers and three mothers listed their occupations as craftsmen, foremen or similar occupations.

Homemaker was the status of 453 mothers.

Eleven fathers were farmers or farm managers, 21 fathers and two mothers listed their occupation as "operatives and kindred workers", 110 were salesmen, 20 were saleswomen, 19 fathers and 11 mothers were service workers (not domestic).

One father's occupation was laborer, nine fathers and three mothers were unemployed or on relief and the occupations of five fathers were not known.

Lunch Counter Sit-In Staged In New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Three members of the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE) Saturday staged a sit-in demonstration at lunch counters at the F. W. Woolworth & Co. store at Canal and North Rampart.

They were a white woman, a Negro woman and a Negro man.

First district police ushered them from the store, questioned them at headquarters and released them.

Officers said the white woman ordered food at the white lunch counter. When she was served, the two Negroes sat beside her and attempted to share the food with her. The process was reversed at the Negro lunch counter.

This was the third day of such demonstrations at this store. There have been no disturbances.

PRESIDENTIAL RACE

Dixie Democrats More Optimistic

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—Democratic strategists at work in the South, once apprehensive about election-day prospects, were riding a new tide of cautious optimism Saturday.

Conceding that trouble spots still exist, they now believe that presidential candidate John F. Kennedy and Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson, the vice presidential nominee, have dashed Republican hopes for wholesale defections in the traditionally Democratic South.

If they are correct, and events have quieted some of the bitter resentment expressed in the South against the Democratic platform, it could be a sharp blow to GOP hopes. Vice President Richard M. Nixon has stumped the South extensively in his campaign for the presidency.

Actually, campaign strategists say the upswing in their prospects has been underway for a couple of weeks. Sen. George A. Smathers, D-Fla., Kennedy - Johnson campaign director for the South, dates it from the first of the Kennedy-Nixon deates.

However, two developments this week gave the upswing new impetus, in the eyes of some southern leaders: first Kennedy's warm reception at Columbia, S.C., and Warm Springs, Ga., fanned the enthusiasm of southern Democrats; then the Texas senator's whistle-stop trek in eight southern states jolted the apathy of some Democratic leaders.

Until a prevue of next year's Mardi Gras floats drew an estimated 100,000 people to a Johnson torchlight parade Friday night, his trek was conducted mostly in small communities before relatively small crowds. But a total of 1,247 local Democratic leaders were entertained in the two parlor cars of the "LBJ Special" on Johnson's 3,800 mile trip.

Johnson's aides believe that sort of missionary activity will yield dividends. They think his trip has already spurred new party unity in some areas. They cite, for example, the Orlando, Fla., luncheon where Johnson's presence was the catalyst which brought endorsements for the ticket from Sen. Spessard L Holland and Farris Bryant, the Democratic nominee for governor.

For all the new optimism, there remained concern over some areas in the South. Smathers listed five of them, for newsmen travelling with Johnson, in this order: Virginia, Florida, Texas, Tennessee, and Kentucky.

In Virginia, Sen. Harry F. Byrd, has not—and probably will not—endorse the ticket. Some Democratic leaders say, however, that Byrd will pass the word to party workers that activity for the Kennedy-Johnson ticket will not be viewed as unfriendly.

President Eisenhower twice carried Florida. Even if Johnson has helped start a new spurt of Democratic activity, party leaders wonder if it is too late.

In Texas, resentment against the platform and Johnson's accepting it is reported strong. But a private poll for the Democratic national committee showed Democrats leading by 49 per cent of those polled to 43 per cent with eight per cent still undecided.

Democratic strategists look to Sen. Estes Kefauver, D-Tenn., big-winner in a recent primary race, to help the ticket with home-state campaigning. But some believe Republican Sen. John Sherman Cooper, will help Nixon in Kentucky.

IN TURKISH COURT

Dog Sale Bared At Treason Trial

YASSIADA ISLAND, Turkey (AP) — Former President Celal Bayar, 76, growled Saturday at the court trying him for his life on treason charges as it heard a count accusing him of using his influence to sell a gift dog to the Ankara Zoo.

Facing far graver accusations of violating the Turkish constitution, the leader in the former Adnan Menderes regime said angrily in court: "Go ahead and put the blame for this on me. My worst punishment is being here."

The big fuss over the dog is clearly designed to ridicule Bayar and make an impact on the peasants living in Turkey's bleak interior.

The second day in Turkey's mass trial of ex-government leaders lasted just 55 minutes. Witnesses' testimony dealt exclusively with Bayar's alleged influence in forcing the Ankara Zoo to buy the dog for 20,000 Turkish lira ($2,222). Bayar got the animal as a gift from the king of Afghanistan.

Judge Salim Basol, presiding over the special court of six civilians and three military men, adjourned further hearings on the dog case until next Thursday. He recessed the trial until Wednesday to give defense counsel time to consult with the accused.

The trial's momentum is likely to increase Wednesday when the court takes up allegations of Turkey's ruling military junta that Menderes regime leaders, already facing death sentences on charges of violating the constitution, incited disastrous anti-Greek riots in Istanbul on Sept. 6, 1955.

Although no deaths were recorded in the rioting, mobs rampaging Greek shops and property did severe damage.

This charge was not specifically contained in the formal indictment presented at Friday's opening trial session. But the prosecution is expected to charge Bayar and Menderes of complicity in organizing riots, under the general indictment: "Activities designed to divide citizens into two factions."

The prosecution wants death sentences for 38 defendants, including Menderes and Bayar. It asks sentences of 5 to 15 years for the 365 other defendants, all former parliamentary deputies in Menderes' discredited Democrat party.

All defendants are charged with trampling the Turkish constitution and establishing one-party rule in Turkey before the military coup last May.

Official Blasts Advisory Group On Civil Rights

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Atty. Gen. Joe Patterson Saturday blasted the Mississippi advisory committee to the Federal Civil Rights Commission and urged circuit clerks not to furnish material to the group.

Patterson said it was unfortunate, but not unexpected, that the advisory committee has seen fit to become a pawn of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People in Mississippi.

The attorney general said the committee has sent letters to the clerks stating the number of Negroes registered and of voting age, and asking the question: "Why are so few registered?"

"The committee then directs that the clerks furnish the information to Aaron E. Henry of Clarksdale," he said.

Patterson said Henry is the leader of the NAACP and chief agitator in Clarksdale.

"If I were a circuit clerk," he said, "I would decline to comply with this request or any other similar request that might come.

"Clerks are under no obligation to make such reports to the committee."

NEVILLE HIGH STATISTICS

Comprehensive Evaluation Of Pupils, Parents Made

By MARY ANNE CORPIN
Staff Writer

A comprehensive study of Neville High school students, their parents and teachers has been released by Principal Sidney A. Seegers.

The study is based on the belief that the faculty not only is responsible for teaching the students, but that instructors also should be able to offer the students help with any factors which influence their studies.

Eleven pages of charts prepared by the faculty include information ranging from the type of work the Neville parents do to the intelligence of the students and the number of years of experience of the teachers.

The "self - evaluation" will be presented to W. E. Pate, chairman of the accreditation committee of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, and the 18 committee members when they arrive here Monday night.

The committee plans to inspect Neville, to determine whether the school is measuring up to the standards required by the Southern Association.

Inspections of schools accredited by the Association are required every five years.

Charts show that of Neville's 41 teachers — eight have more than 20 years experience — three have 15 to 19 years experience, nine have 10 to 14 years, nine others have five to nine years, 10 have one to five years and two have less than a year's teaching experience.

Seven teachers have been at Neville for more than 10 years. Eleven have taught there for six to 10 years, 16 have been Neville teachers for two to five years, and seven are in their first year there.

Neville has a predominantly young staff, with 25 of the teachers under 40.

Age areas are: two between 21 and 25 years; 11 between 26 and 30; seven between 31 and 35; five between 36 and 40; eight between 41 and 49 and eight others over 50.

Neville has more girls and fewer boys now than in 1956. This is seen in a series of graphs for the years 1956 through 1960.

In 1956-57 total enrollment was 727, with 378 boys and 349 girls; 1957-58 saw 736 total, with 367 boys and 369 girls; next school year 1958-59, the balance reversed, there were 369 boys, 367 girls, same total enrollment 736.

Last year, the 1959-60 enrollment dropped to the low for the five-year period, 714. A decline in the number of girl students was the factor. Total for boys remained at 369, same as for the previous year. Total for girls dropped to 345.

This year, enrollment spurted to 769, the high for the five years Enrollment of girls increased to 409, but the total of boys dropped to 360.

A chart on mental ability of the students attending during the 1959-60 term shows the intelligence ratings of 694 of the 714 enrolled.

Thirty - three students had a mental ability of more than 124 — an extremely high intelligence rating.

Seventy - eight had a rating between 117 and 124, also very high.

A total of 147 placed between 109 and 116, good above average.

Rated of average ability were 309, with IQ's between 92 and 108.

Eighty-eight had IQ's between 84 and 91, 32 were listed in the IQ area of 76 to 83 and seven rated below 76, all below average intelligence ratings.

In the senior class which graduated in May, 138 of the 158 indicated they planed to attend a four - year college or university, an extremely high percentage of 87.3. This included 74 boys and 64 girls.

Of the other 20 graduates, one boy plannedy to attend junior collegt, nine girls planned to continue their education at some school, four boys and one girl planned to continue their education but were undecided on the type of school, and only three boys and two girls planned to stop their formal education.

Here's the kind of work the 158 who graduated plan to go into: 92, including 44 boys and 49 girls, plan to go into professional, technical and managerial work. Thirty - three, including 13 boys and 20 girls, look to clerical and sales work.

Only five, including four girls and one boy, intended to go into service work. Nine boys indicated their futures were in agriculture, marine or forestry work. Three boys wanted to do mechanical work, 12 boys and four girls were undecided as to what they wanted to do.

What happened to the 155 students who graduated in May of 1959? A follow-up survey shows that 91 per cent, or 141 graduates, are attending college. This includes 67 boys and 74 girls.

Four others, including one boy and three girls, are at other schools beyond high school.

Two boys and two girls are doing clerical or sales work. Three girls are married, one boy and one girl have entered military service, and information on one boy is unknown.

Most of the seniors who graduated from Neville in May of 1960 had attended the high school for four years. The faculty included this in a chart to show the stability of the 1960 seniors — how well they were able to continue in one school.

Of the 122 four - year students, 62 were boys, 60 were girls. Nine students, including eight boys and one girl, had been at the school five years.

Only 27 seniors did not attend Neville for their full four years of high school. Fourteen, including five boys and nine girls, attended for three years; seven, including four boys and three years; seven, including four boys and three girls, were at NHS two years; and six, three girls and three boys, were at the school only one year.

Fifty - five senior students left Neville during the 1959-60 term. Forty, including 24 boys and 16 girls, transferred to another school. One boy left due to disciplinary difficulties, one boy entered military service, three boys withdrew because they lacked interest in school work, one boy and five girls left to get married, one boy left because of poor scholarship.

One girl left because her help was needed at home. Withdrawal reason of one boy and one girl was unkown.

Most of the parents of the 714 students in grades nine through 12 in 1959-60 had graduated from high school or attended college.

Sixteen parents, including eight fathers and eight mothers, did not complete elementary school.

Twenty - three parents, including 16 fathers and seven mothers graduated from elementary school.

A total of 118, including 59 fathers and 59 mothers, attended high school but did not complete the four years of study.

Slightly over 28 per cent, or 373 parents, graduated from high school, but did not attend college. This included 161 fathers and 212 mothers.

Eighty-eight parents attended a school of instruction after high school, but did not graduate. This included 42 fathers and 46 mothers.

Completing a two - year college course were 199 parents, including 82 fathers and 117 mothers.

Three hundred parents graduated from a four-year college. This included 147 fathers and 153 mothers.

And 197 parents did graduate study after graduating from college. Of these, 156 are fathers, and 41 are mothers.

The survey also shows the occupational status of adults — what type work the parents of all 1959-60 pupils were engaged in.

A total of 223 were professional and semi - professional workers — 135 fathers, 93 mothers.

Two hundred and thirty - seven were managers, officials or owned their own businesses. Of these, 220 were fathers, 17 mothers.

Clerical and similar work claimed 126, including 49 fathers, 77 mothers.

Eighty - eight fathers and three mothers listed their occupations as craftsmen, foremen or similar occupations.

Homemaker was the status of 453 mothers.

Eleven fathers were farmers or farm managers, 21 fathers and two mothers listed their occupation as "operatives and kindred workers", 110 were salesmen, 20 were saleswomen, 19 fathers and 11 mothers were service workers (not domestic).

One father's occupation was laborer, nine fathers and three mothers were unemployed or on relief and the occupations of five fathers were not known.

PRESIDENTIAL RACE

Dixie Democrats More Optimistic

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—Democratic strategists at work in the South, once apprehensive about election-day prospects, were riding a new tide of cautious optimism Saturday.

Conceding that trouble spots still exist, they now believe that presidential candidate John F. Kennedy and Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson, the vice presidential nominee, have dashed Republican hopes for wholesale defections in the traditionally Democratic South.

If they are correct, and events have quieted some of the bitter resentment expressed in the South against the Democratic platform, it could be a sharp blow to GOP hopes. Vice President Richard M. Nixon has stumped the South extensively in his campaign for the presidency.

Actually, campaign strategists say the upswing in their prospects has been underway for a couple of weeks. Sen. George A. Smathers, D-Fla., Kennedy - Johnson campaign director for the South, dates it from the first of the Kennedy-Nixon deates.

However, two developments this week gave the upswing new impetus, in the eyes of some southern leaders; first Kennedy's warm reception at Columbia, S.C., and Warm Springs, Ga., fanned the enthusiasm of southern Democrats; then the Texas senator's whistle-stop trek in eight southern states jolted the apathy of some Democratic leaders.

Until a prevue of next year's Mardi Gras floats drew an estimated 100,000 people to a Johnson torchlight parade Friday night, his trek was conducted mostly in small communities before relatively small crowds. But a total of 1,247 local Democratic leaders were entertained in the two parlor cars of the "LBJ Special" on Johnson's 3,800 mile trip.

Johnson's aides believe that sort of missionary activity will yield dividends. They think his trip has already spurred new party unity in some areas. They cite, for example, the Orlando, Fla., luncheon where Johnson's presence was the catalyst which brought endorsements for the ticket from Sen. Spessard L Holland and Farris Bryant, the Democratic nominee for governor.

For all the new optimism, there remained concern over some areas in the South. Smathers listed five of them, for newsmen travelling with Johnson, in this order: Virginia, Florida, Texas, Tennessee, and Kentucky.

In Virginia, Sen. Harry F. Byrd, has not—and probably will not—endorse the ticket. Some Democratic leaders say, however, that Byrd will pass the word to party workers that activity for the Kennedy-Johnson ticket will not be viewed as unfriendly.

President Eisenhower twice carried Florida. Even if Johnson has helped start a new spurt of Democratic activity, party leaders wonder if it is too late.

In Texas, resentment against the platform and Johnson's accepting it is reported strong. But a private poll for the Democratic national committee showed Democrats leading by 49 per cent of those polled to 43 per cent with eight per cent still undecided.

Democratic strategists look to Sen. Estes Kefauver, D-Tenn., big-winner in a recent primary race, to help the ticket with home-state campaigning. But some believe Republican Sen. John Sherman Cooper, will help Nixon in Kentucky.

Lunch Counter Sit-In Staged In New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Three members of the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE) Saturday staged a sit-in demonstration at lunch counters at the F. W. Woolworth & Co. store at Canal and North Rampart.

They were a white woman, a Negro woman and a Negro man.

First district police ushered them from the store, questioned them at headquarters and released them.

Officers said the white woman ordered food at the white lunch counter. When she was served, the two Negroes sat beside her and attempted to share the food with her. The process was reversed at the Negro lunch counter.

This was the third day of such demonstrations at this store. There have been no disturbances.

VITAL THREE WEEKS AHEAD

Nixon Predicts Election Vote Will Be Very Close

NEW YORK (AP)—The next three weeks—the final ones—will decide the presidential campaign in the opinion of Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

And it's going to be one of the closest races in history, Nixon believes.

The Republican nominee expressed these views in a television recording made in California Oct. 12 for presentation Saturday night on the National Broadcasting Co.'s program, "The Campaign and the Candidates."

Nixon, interviewed by Chet Huntley and David Brinkley, was asked if he is confident of winning the presidency.

"I am never confident in an election. That's one of the reasons why I have never lost one."

But he added: "I would say that in this instance I think this will be one of the closest elections in history. I think Sen. Kennedy is a very able campaigner.

"I believe this election will be decided, actually, in the last three weeks of the campaign."

Nixon had a prediction for the distant future, also: The world is in for trouble for perhaps as much as 100 years.

"The Communists are going to stir it up, because they are trying to conquer the world," Nixon said.

"They are not trying to do what we are. We are simply trying to keep our own freedom and extend it to others by peaceful means. But we are going to have trouble, and the question is not whether you have it; it is whether you handle it with dignity, with decency."

Nixon rejected contentions of his Democratic opponent, Sen. John F. Kennedy, that U.S. prestige is at an all-time low. But he added: "I certainly wouldn't say that American prestige was not in difficulty in some parts of the world. I don't mean that we are ahead everyplace, but where we are not ahead we are going to move ahead."

Alluding to views of Kennedy and Adlai E. Stevenson, twice-defeated Democratic presidential nominee, on means of strengthening the nation's economic system, Nixon asserted: "I believe the greatest mistake we could make would be to lose faith in the basic principles of our economic system.

"I think that is where Mr. Stevenson makes a mistake, I think where Sen. Kennedy falls into the same error, is to assume that the way to increase economic growth in this country is frankly to change our approach by massively increasing government participation in the economy, government controls, government spending, just for the sake of getting strength.

"I put my faith, as far as economic growth is concerned, not in expanding the public sector of the economy, what government does as such; but I put my faith in having the government do those things that will stimulate the private sector of the economy, stimulate what individuals do.

"This is where we have an advantage over the Soviet Union. They are past masters at doing it the government bureaucratic way. If we fall into the error of doing it their way, we will lose this race in which we are engaged."

Accidents Claim Lives Of Four In Mississippi

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Traffic accidents claimed the lives of four Mississippians this weekend.

William J. Adair, 50, died Saturday at a Columbus hospital from injuries received Thursday when a pickup truck he was driving went out of control.

A 28-year-old Shannon man, L. J. Baulch, was killed when he lost control of his car Friday and crashed into a tree near Shannon. Mrs. Baulch was hospitalized.

A three-car collision between Houston and Dallas, Tex., Friday killed Mrs. Viola Norman, 86-year old Decatur woman.

Truman M. Nobles, 53-year-old Taylorsville man, was crushed to death by a road grader 16 miles south of Columbia. The highway patrol said grader operator L. S. Pilgrim of Taylorsville accidentally backed over Nobles.

Speakers will be the Right Rev. Girault M. Jones, bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Louisiana and the Rev. Willis Henton, a former missionary in the Philippines.

Three Charged At Vicksburg

VICKSBURG, Miss. (AP) — Police broke up a near riot Friday night after a Negro high school football game between Rosa A. Temple of Vicksburg and Jackson Lanier.

Police said three Negroes were arrested. One was charged with carrying a pistol, another with carrying a large pipe wrench and the third with disorderly conduct.

The free-for-alls started near the end of the game. Jackson won, 45-14.

DEMOCRACY'S WEAPON

Every Type Of Dictator Is Afraid Of A Free Press

(EDITOR'S NOTE: National Newspaper Week is being observed by the industry this week — Oct. 15 through 21.)

By BERNARD GAVZER
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Dictators make great shows of strength and invulnerability, but invariably their first acts reflect fear — not of bullets or personal injury, but fear of the printed word.

The newspaper that rolls off the press and comes to the reader for a few cents can strike more fear in the heart of a dictator than an enemy battleship in his harbor.

Words convey ideas — and free ideas are dangerous to men who want power and need a submissive people.

"Why should a government which is doing what it believes to be right allow itself to be criticized? It would not allow opposition by lethal weapons, and ideas are much more fatal than guns."

Lenin said this in 1920. It is the justification used by totalitarian states in suppressing a free press.

What is a free press? In most parts of the world, it is defined as meaning a press free from government dictation and censorship.

In the last three decades alone there have been numerous instances of gagging independent newspapers.

When Adolf Hitler became chancellor of Germany in 1933 he confronted President Paul von Hindenburg with the order: Invoke Article 48 of the constitution.

The article dealt with the freedom of the press. Under it, Hitler began to muzzle German newspapers. Within three months, 200 papers had been suspended. By the end of a year, 600 had been killed.

Hitler had what he wanted: A press that promoted the Nazi line, a press that would make no criticism of him or of any Nazi activity.

Hitler was not alone in this.

During the Spanish Civil War of 1936-39, newspapers shrank from 250 to 100. And then, in 1939, to make sure there would be no republican opposition, 39 republican editors were shot. The press still follows the line of Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

When Benito Mussolini took over Italy, national press regulations were adapted to the pattern of a totalitarian state. Under Mussolini, the number of Italian daily newspapers went from 157 to 50 or 60.

In the U.S.S.R., the change from Czarist rule to rule by the Soviets merely meant a change of censor. Pravda (Truth) publishes only the truth as defined by the Communist Party.

Today, in the Soviet bloc, no newspaper publishes unless it follows the line set down by the government.

Closer to home, there is Cuba. Fulgencio Batista, the sergeant who first seized power in 1933, had a controlled press.

Batista's empire crumbled under the advance of rebel Fidel Castro, who promised to wipe out tyranny and restore freedom. But freedom under Castro goes only to those who find no error in him. The sight of a soldier posted at the door of a closed newspaper is the familiar sign of the totalitarian state.

The American press itself started along the road to freedom with a setback.

The first newspaper, Benjamin Harris' "Publick Occurrences Both Forreign and Domestick," appeared Sept. 25, 1960. It was suppressed after one issue by the royal governor.

Another obstacle to a free press was the Alien and Sedition Acts of 1798, enacted to prevent attacks on public officers. But it vanished by popular demand in 1801.

Today there is no authority in the U. S. Government to force any newspaper to print any story.

How different it is in some other nations of the world. Consider the Latin American countries. Most of Latin America now supports the ideals of press freedom.

But there is no press freedom in Paraguay where the dictator Gen. Alfredo Stroessner is in power.

It is only two years since Colombia has been free of stringent control.

Under Juan Peron, Argentinian papers fell into line or were driven out of business — the most notable example being that of the suppression of La Prensa. With Peron out, it is again publishing in the free tradition.

Venezuela had a harsh press control under the Perez Jimenez dictatorship, overthrown in 1958.

In Nicaragua, strict control has been eased since 1956 when the late Gen. Anastasio Somoza was assassinated.

In the West Indies, the Dominican Republic press prints only what meets the approval of Generalissimo Rafael Leonidas Trujillo.

Elsewhere in the world:

In the United Arab Republic, Gamal Abdel Nasser keeps rigid control of the domestic press— a situation that prevails also in Sudan, Iraq, Jordan, Saudi Arabia, Libya, Yemen and Ethiopia. The domestic Lebanese press has the widest freedom of any in the mid-East.

Typical of the actions taken by a government in controlling its press is the recent experience in Indonesia.

One Sunday, President Sukarno confiscated six printing plants, halting publication of the majority of the nation's most important opposition and anti - Communist newspapers. Among them was Pedoman, Jakarta's largest daily.

The seizure was made on grounds that some of the printing plants had been used to disrupt law and order. While the Sukarno decree did not name any newspaper, its effect was to silence about eight newspapers published in the plants.

The treachery that can be committed to a nation through a controlled or bought press is best illustrated by the debacle which occurred in France in June, 1940.

Government censorship prior to the war played a significant role in the misrepresentation of foreign affairs and of national preparedness. Sometimes, through bribery, the press reflected Nazi and Fascist doctriness.

So, when the German blitzkrieg overwhelmed France, the responsibility was shared by the press.

A controlled press — a press that is the tool of politicians — becomes "an organ on which to play" the tune of the rulers, as Hitler's Joseph Goebbels described it.

And the people have to dance to that tune.

VITAL THREE WEEKS AHEAD

Nixon Predicts Election Vote Will Be Very Close

NEW YORK (AP)—The next three weeks—the final ones—will decide the presidential campaign in the opinion of Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

And it's going to be one of the closest races in history, Nixon believes.

The Republican nominee expressed these views in a television recording made in California Oct. 12 for presentation Saturday night on the National Broadcasting Co.'s program, "The Campaign and the Candidates."

Nixon, interviewed by Chet Huntley and David Brinkley, was asked if he is confident of winning the presidency.

"I am never confident in an election. That's one of the reasons why I have never lost one."

But he added: "I would say that in this instance I think this will be one of the closest elections in history. I think Sen. Kennedy is a very able campaigner.

"I believe this election will be decided, actually, in the last three weeks of the campaign."

Nixon had a prediction for the distant future, also: The world is in for trouble for perhaps as much as 100 years.

"The Communists are going to stir it up, because they are trying to conquer the world," Nixon said.

"They are not trying to do what we are. We are simply trying to keep our own freedom and extend it to others by peaceful means. But we are going to have trouble, and the question is not whether you have it; it is whether you handle it with dignity, with decency."

Nixon rejected contentions of his Democratic opponent, Sen. John F. Kennedy, that U.S. prestige is at an all-time low. But he added: "I certainly wouldn't say that American prestige was not in difficulty in some parts of the world. I don't mean that we are ahead everyplace, but where we are not ahead we are going to move ahead."

Alluding to views of Kennedy and Adlai E. Stevenson, twice-defeated Democratic presidential nominee, on means of strengthening the nation's economic system, Nixon asserted: "I believe the greatest mistake we could make would be to lose faith in the basic principles of our economic system.

"I think that is where Mr. Stevenson makes a mistake, I think where Sen. Kennedy falls into the same error, is to assume that the way to increase economic growth in this country is frankly to change our approach by massively increasing government participation in the economy, government controls, government spending, just for the sake of getting strength.

"I put my faith, as far as economic growth is concerned, not in expanding the public sector of the economy, what government does as such; but I put my faith in having the government do those things that will stimulate the private sector of the economy, stimulate what individuals do.

"This is where we have an advantage over the Soviet Union. They are past masters at doing it the government bureaucratic way. If we fall into the error of doing it their way, we will lose this race in which we are engaged."

Accidents Claim Lives Of Four In Mississippi

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Traffic accidents claimed the lives of four Mississippians this weekend.

William J. Adair, 50, died Saturday at a Columbus hospital from injuries receved Thursday when a pickup truck he was driving went out of control.

A 28-year-old Shannon man, L. J. Baulch, was killed when he lost control of his car Friday and crashed into a tree near Shannon. Mrs. Baulch was hospitalized.

A three-car collision between Houston and Dallas, Tex., Friday killed Mrs. Viola Norman, 86-year old Decatur woman.

Truman M. Nobles, 53-year-old Taylorsville man, was crushed to death by a road grader 16 miles south of Columbia. The highway patrol said grader operator L. S. Pilgrim of Taylorsville accidentally backed over Nobles.

Three Charged At Vicksburg

VICKSBURG, Miss. (AP) — Police broke up a near riot Friday night after a Negro high school football game between Rosa A. Temple of Vicksburg and Jackson Lanier.

Police said three Negroes were arrested. One was charged with carrying a pistol, another with carrying a large pipe wrench and the third with disorderly conduct.

The free-for-alls started near the end of the game. Jackson won, 45-14.

DEMOCRACY'S WEAPON

Every Type Of Dictator Is Afraid Of A Free Press

(EDITOR'S NOTE: National Newspaper Week is being observed by the industry this week — Oct. 15 through 21.)

By BERNARD GAVZER
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Dictators make great shows of strength and invulnerability, but invariably their first acts reflect fear — not of bullets or personal injury, but fear of the printed word.

The newspaper that rolls off the press and comes to the reader for a few cents can strike more fear in the heart of a dictator than an enemy battleship in his harbor.

Words convey ideas — and free ideas are dangerous to men who want power and need a submissive people.

"Why should a government which is doing what it believes to be right allow itself to be criticized? It would not allow opposition by lethal weapons, and ideas are much more fatal than guns."

Lenin said this in 1920. It is the justification used by totalitarian states in suppressing a free press.

What is a free press? In most parts of the world, it is defined as meaning a press free from government dictation and censorship.

In the last three decades alone there have been numerous instances of gagging independent newspapers.

When Adolf Hitler became chancellor of Germany in 1933 he confronted President Paul von Hindenburg with the order: Invoke Article 48 of the constitution.

The article dealt with the freedom of the press. Under it, Hitler began to muzzle German newspapers. Within three months, 200 papers had been suspended. By the end of a year, 600 had been killed.

Hitler had what he wanted: A press that promoted the Nazi line, a press that would make no criticism of him or of any Nazi activity.

Hitler was not alone in this.

During the Spanish Civil War of 1936-39, newspapers shrank from 250 to 100. And then, in 1939, to make sure there would be no republican opposition, 39 republican editors were shot. The press still follows the line of Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

When Benito Mussolini took over Italy, national press regulations were adapted to the pattern of a totalitarian state. Under Mussolini, the number of Italian daily newspapers went from 157 to 50 or 60.

In the U.S.S.R., the change from Czarist rule to rule by the Soviets merely meant a change of censor. Pravda (Truth) publishes only the truth as defined by the Communist Party.

Today, in the Soviet bloc, no newspaper publishes unless it follows the line set down by the government.

Closer to home, there is Cuba. Fulgencio Batista, the sergeant who first seized power in 1933, had a controlled press.

Batista's empire crumbled under the advance of rebel Fidel Castro, who promised to wipe out tyranny and restore freedom. But freedom under Castro goes only to those who find no error in him. The sight of a soldier posted at the door of a closed newspaper is the familiar sign of the totalitarian state.

The American press itself started along the road to freedom with a setback.

The first newspaper, Benjamin Harris' "Publick Occurrences Both Forreign and Domestick," appeared Sept. 25, 1960. It was suppressed after one issue by the royal governor.

Another obstacle to a free press was the Alien and Sedition Acts of 1798, enacted to prevent attacks on public officers. But it vanished by popular demand in 1801.

Today there is no authority in the U. S. Government to force any newspaper to print any story.

How different it is in some other nations of the world. Consider the Latin American countries. Most of Latin America now supports the ideals of press freedom.

But there is no press freedom in Paraguay where the dictator Gen. Alfredo Stroessner is in power.

It is only two years since Colombia has been free of stringent control.

Under Juan Peron, Argentinian papers fell into line or were driven out of business — the most notable example being that of the suppression of La Prensa. With Peron out, it is again publishing in the free tradition.

Venezuela had a harsh press control under the Perez Jimenez dictatorship, overthrown in 1958.

In Nicaragua, strict control has been eased since 1956 when the late Gen. Anastasio Somoza was assassinated.

In the West Indies, the Dominican Republic press prints only what meets the approval of Generalissimo Rafael Leonidas Trujillo.

Elsewhere in the world:

In the United Arab Republic, Gamal Abdel Nasser keeps rigid control of the domestic press— a situation that prevails also in Sudan, Iraq, Jordan, Saudi Arabia, Libya, Yemen and Ethiopia. The domestic Lebanese press has the widest freedom of any in the mid-East.

Typical of the actions taken by a government in controlling its press is the recent experience in Indonesia.

One Sunday, President Sukarno confiscated six printing plants, halting publication of the majority of the nation's most important opposition and anti - Communist newspapers. Among them was Pedoman, Jakarta's largest daily.

The seizure was made on grounds that some of the printing plants had been used to disrupt law and order. While the Sukarno decree did not name any newspaper, its effect was to silence about eight newspapers published in the plants.

The treachery that can be committed to a nation through a controlled or bought press is best illustrated by the debacle which occurred in France in June, 1940.

Government censorship prior to the war played a significant role in the misrepresentation of foreign affairs and of national preparedness. Sometimes, through bribery, the press reflected Nazi and Fascist doctriness.

So, when the German blitzkrieg overwhelmed France, the responsibility was shared by the press.

A controlled press — a press that is the tool of politicians — becomes "an organ on which to play" the tune of the rulers, as Hitler's Joseph Goebbels described it.

And the people have to dance to that tune.

MAURINE NEUBERGER

Given Good Chance To Win Oregon Senate Position

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A hundred persons were waiting under the shade trees, out of the midday heat, when Maurine Neuberger got out of the car and began walking toward her 50th meeting of the political campaign.

She is given a good chance to become the third woman ever to be elected to the U.S. Senate, and they watched with interest as she crossed a sparsely grassed field, her feet swirling dust and tree-cotton which had drifted down from the silver poplars.

She was slender, brown-haired and seemed tall. She wore a light cotton dress and appeared tired as she reached the first group standing by a picnic table.

They greeted her warmly, in the way of dry land wheat farmers who spend much of their time on the lonely, sun-baked hills of central Oregon. As she responded to their warmth, her face shed the lines of 52 years.

"That's the best part," she said later in her low-pitched voice. "The small meetings where you can talk to the people and listen to their ideas.

"Of course everyone wants to give advice to a waoman candidate," and her smile became broader, "but women are used to advice and these people mean so well."

Giles French, editor of the weekly paper, began introducing her to others at the picnic sponsored by the Sherman County Historical Society.

This was watched closely, for French, who hates big government, is a long-time political foe of the ideas of Mrs. Neuberger and her late husband, Sen. Richard L. Neuberger. They all had been together in the Oregon Legislature, where it is doubtful if Republican French ever voted on the same side as the Democratic Neubergers.

They smiled, moved easily from group to group and inspected photographs pinned on the speaking platform. Those showed an earlier Sherman County, including huge crews and 30-horse rigs used in the wheat harvest of those days.

"I've heard you are a Presbyterian, a Catholic and a Jew. Would you mind telling me your religion?" one man asked.

"Well, I'm not any of those. I'm a Unitarian," said Mrs. Neuberger. Later she said it was the first time in this campaign she had met a question on religion. The question figured in the 1954 campaign of her late husband, who was Jewish.

There was a basket lunch, each woman having prepared her favorite dish. The slender Mrs. Neuberger delighted the women by going back to the food table three times.

At the table French finally began talking in the style in which his followers have become accustomed.

"I wish the government would go away and leave me alone," he said, decrying Social Security, taxes, police laxity, youth programs, highway projects and public welfare.

"There's just too much waste in public welfare. Why, the easiest living around now is for a man to go out and have a couple of kids by a woman, move across the state line and take a cut of what the woman gets in welfare," he said.

A farmer down the table inquired, "you fixing to take that up for a living, Giles?"

"Well, I wish I had thought of it when I was younger," said the white-haired French with a rueful smile.

Mrs. Neuberger joined in the laughter, but took issue with him.

"You say things were done better when you were young. But who wants to go back to all the work, the big field crews and those horse teams you see in those pictures?" she asked.

"I remember on our farm when I was a girl we had a Model T car we were so proud of. But we could only use it six months out of the year. There weren't any roads on which it could run in the winter. Who would want to give up that fine road on which I came here today? And yet there wouldn't be that road without the taxes and the government part in the road program," she said.

Later French introduced her on the platform and she spoke of Oregon pioneers and of the social pioneering still to come.

French, who listened intently to her talk, bade her a warm goodbye. As she left, he remarked to an acquaintance, "A fine woman."

Mrs. Neuberger returned to Portland where she lives alone in the home she and her husband had before Senate days. It is an old, green, three-story house in a fashionable section of the city's West Hills.

It was there her husband was felled by a cerebral hemorrhage last March. It is his seat in the Senate she is seeking.

Several factors help her. Her supporters cite her familiarity with the Senate and those in it. Before his death her husband frequently told voters of his wife's active part in his Senate work. She had a desk in his office and worked there regularly.

"And she wasn't on the payroll either," a friend says.

She is a native of Oregon, a descendant of a pioneer family. She was in three Oregon towns, teaching English and physical education until she was 37. She was in a Portland school then, met Neuberger, a rising author who shared her interest in outdoor activities and liberal policies, and married him. They had no children.

Her opponents say you still can hear the school teacher when she addresses a group. If so, she is a popular teacher. She was elected three times to the legislature before her husband was voted into the Senate in 1954.

She argued successfully for a string of consumer and social bills there. In a state where dairying is prominent, she successfully fought the dairy industry and brought about repeal of a milk marketing control act and a ban against colored oleomargarine.

But her impulses worry her friends.

"I'm always afraid she is going to open her mouth and put her foot in it," one friend confided.

No disaster has resulted.

"So long as you behave with integrity, I think you are in the clear," she says.

Five feet, six inches tall, she is slighter than before her husband's death, weighing about 120 pounds. Her brown hair is worn in a mass of curls around her head. Still limber and athletic, she neither smokes nor drinks.

She cooks and keeps house for herself and manages to get in some gardening each morning she is home. Swimming and dancing have been among her favorite activities but since her husband's death she has had little opportunity to dance.

She recently was invited to the State Postal Workers' Convention. Because she and her husband advocated increased pay for them, many postal workers are enthusiastic Neuberger supporters. After the banquet, the officers took her along to the dance.

"And we danced until 1 a.m.," she said triumphantly.

Her popularity does not end with federal workers. Last spring in winning the nomination for her husband's seat, she won over five other Democrats and piled up the largest vote on the Oregon ballot. Democratic leaders say polls show she will win handily over the Republican nominee, Elmo Smith an Albany, Ore., newspaper publisher and former governor of Oregon. Smith himself says he cannot win without attracting some Democratic votes away from her.

BY BOTH PARTIES

Absentee Voter Drive Launched

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democratic and Republican presidential election campaign tacticians have launched furious drives to capture the absentee voter ballot for their candidates.

The Democrats are sticking primarily to the mailing lists. The Republicans are tapping winter resorts, convalescent homes and universities overseas, among others, as rich sources of voters who can't go to the polls.

Mrs. Ethel Y. Black, head of the Democratic National Committee's Voters' Service Bureau, told UPI that more than 50,000 voters in the Washington area alone will receive absentee ballot application forms from her office.

Universities in Paris and Oslo and other foreign schools which American students attend are receiving information from Republican headquarters about absentee voting regulations.

Jack Stiles, GOP registration chairman said that 35 students in Norway wrote for voting information recently, "so we followed through and sent packets to other schools where there are Americans."

Mrs. Black, working as a Democratic vote getter since 1948, has critically studied absentee voting regulations of all 50 states.

"Federal employes serving all over the world have their voting rights protected in 32 states," she said, "and every state in the union says the overseas serviceman can vote."

Some of the more difficult states in which to cast an absentee ballot are Alabama, Mississippi, New Mexico, South Carolina and Louisiana.

"Some of these states require you to register in person," said Mrs. Black. "Others rule you have to apply for the ballot before March. New Mexico just says 'no absentee voting unless you're a serviceman.'"

Serviceman overseas are being urged to get their absentee ballots through a bipartisan Armed Forces Bureau.

Republicans in Miami, Fla., and Tucson and Phoenix, Ariz., are cornering voters on early winter vacations.

"They're checking hotel reservations now in these resort areas," said Stiles, "and will be ready to remind out-of-towners to get in their votes as soon as they arrive."

Stiles said absentee voters in hospitals and convalescent homes favored President Eisenhower in 1956, so a special effort is being made to get this vote again in November.

Both parties agree that the largest absentee vote should come from the traveling businessman. While Democrats will mail him notices, Republicans plan telephone messages just before election week.

What can be done to improve absentee voting?

"I think the application form for an absentee ballot could be improved," said Mrs. Black. "The state of Washington's form should be used as a model—it's clear, brief and easy to fill out.

"New York's form is impossible just impossible!"

Demos Claim South Is Solid For Party Again

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) —Democratic party chieftains claimed today that the "South is solid again" in the wake of a grueling week - long 4,000 - mile swing through Dixie by vice-presidential candidate Lyndon B. Johnson.

The Texas senator, running mate of Sen. John F. Kennedy, flew to Washington early today after putting the wraps on the tour here Friday night with three speeches.

Visibly tired and slightly hoarse Johnson's final speech — at an awards banquet of the Press Club of New Orleans—was his 10th of the day and 56th since leaving Washington last Sunday night.

Sen. George Smathers of Florida, the Southern regional campaign director for the Democrats, called the trip highly successful and termed the South solid again.

President Eisenhower made inroads into Dixie in both 1952 and 1956 and the Republicans are claiming victory in several states this election.

Navy Needs In Anti-Sub Field Cited

WASHINGTON (AP) — The search for a reported mystery submarine in the eastern Pacific Saturday pointed up what some Navy experts see as a serious deficiency in the Anti-Submarine Warfare (ASW) system.

The Navy needs a substantial number of specially designed, atomic-powered submersibles to hunt down other submarines, they say.

The ASW force which hustled out of San Diego Friday to check reports of the presence of an unidentified submarine was typical of most such forces presently available. A carrier, with search planes, and four destroyers made up the force. No ASW submarine appeared to have been included in the unit.

Navy ASW experts emphasize that surface ships—carriers and destroyers—will continue to be a vital part of the ASW system. Only the ability of aircraft to cover wide areas of an ocean can give the general location of a suspected submarine.

On the other hand, only a high-speed, deep-diving nuclear-powered submarine can go down to pinpoint with precision a modern day submarine, some of the enthusiastic proponents of the A-sub say. These craft can probe deeply, move in swiftly and silently, and remain submerged for days, motionless and listening.

The requirement for the specialized atomic ASW submarine will mount swiftly as the Soviet Union begins to put nuclear submarines into her operating fleet. Only a nuclear submarine can hunt another nuclear submarine on equal footing.

The U. S. Navy presently has about a dozen atomic-powered attack submarines in service, foresees the need for a fleet of 90 to 100 such boats.

Early this month, the Navy began sea trials of the A-sub Tullibee, which went to sea from her building place at Groton, Con.

Vice Adm. Hyman G. Rickover, a pioneer designer of the atomic submarine, rode the Tullibee on her first trials.

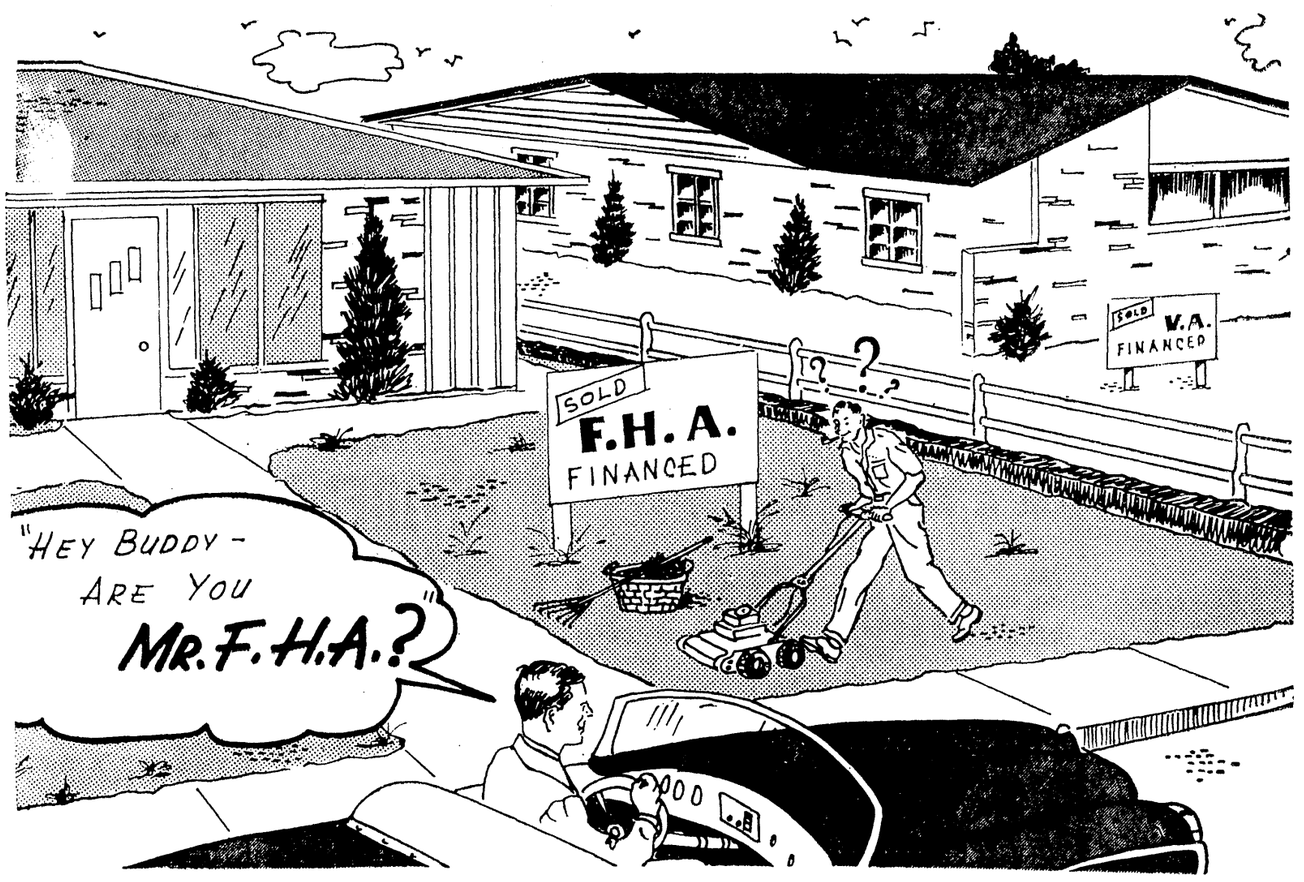
Really Now! Isn't That A Ridiculous Question?



You bet! Millions of Americans would rightfully resent being called "Mr. or Mrs. FHA or VA," just because they financed their homes through these federal agencies.

Yet, by some strange twist of logic (so carefully sold to the public) member-owned Electric Co-ops are constantly referred to as "REA" or federal agencies . . because they, too, borrow federal funds to build desperately needed electric lines to serve rural folks.

Just like FHA or VA-financed home-owners and the 20 Commercial Companies in Louisiana who also borrow REA funds, the 13 Electric Co-ops repay the REA loans on strict schedules, plus interest. And, the non-profit cooperatives are doing an indispensible job nobody else can do for ALL rural people at rates ALL can afford. . .a job vital to Louisiana's development and continued progress in Town and Country.

Yes, the "REA" or "federal agency" tag is just as ridiculous as calling an FHA-financed neighbor, "Mr. FHA." Electric Co-ops are private businesses, owned and operated by thousands of your rural friends and neighbors.

MAURINE NEUBERGER

Given Good Chance To Win Oregon Senate Position

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A hundred persons were waiting under the shade trees, out of the midday heat, when Maurine Neuberger got out of the car and began walking toward her 50th meeting of the political campaign.

She is given a good chance to become the third woman ever to be elected to the U.S. Senate, and they watched with interest as she crossed a sparsely grassed field, her feet swirling dust and tree-cotton which had drifted down from the silver poplars.

She was slender, brown-haired and seemed tall. She wore a light cotton dress and appeared tired as she reached the first group standing by a picnic table.

They greeted her warmly, in the way of dry land wheat farmers who spend much of their time on the lonely, sun-baked hills of central Oregon. As she responded to their warmth, her face shed the lines of 52 years.

"That's the best part," she said later in her low-pitched voice. "The small meetings where you can talk to the people and listen to their ideas.

"Of course everyone wants to give advice to a woman candidate," and her smile became broader, "but women are used to advice and these people mean so well."

Giles French, editor of the weekly paper, began introducing her to others at the picnic sponsored by the Sherman County Historical Society.

This was watched closely, for French, who hates big government, is a long-time political foe of the ideas of Mrs. Neuberger and her late husband, Sen. Richard L. Neuberger. They all had been together in the Oregon Legislature, where it is doubtful if Republican French ever voted on the same side as the Democratic Neubergers.

They smiled, moved easily from group to group and inspected photographs pinned on the speaking platform. Those showed an earlier Sherman County, including huge crews and 30-horse rigs used in the wheat harvest of those days.

"I've heard you are a Presbyterian, a Catholic and a Jew. Would you mind telling me your religion?" one man asked.

"Well, I'm not any of those. I'm a Unitarian," said Mrs. Neuberger. Later she said it was the first time in this campaign she had met a question on religion. The question figured in the 1954 campaign of her late husband, who was Jewish.

There was a basket lunch, each woman having prepared her favorite dish. The slender Mrs. Neuberger delighted the women by going back to the food table three times.

At the table French finally began talking in the style in which his followers have become accustomed.

"I wish the government would go away and leave me alone," he said, decrying Social Security, taxes, police laxity, youth programs, highway projects and public welfare.

"There's just too much waste in public welfare. Why, the easiest living around now is for a man to go out and have a couple of kids by a woman, move across the state line and take a cut of what the woman gets in welfare," he said.

A farmer down the table inquired, "you fixing to take that up for a living, Giles?"

"Well, I wish I had thought of it when I was younger," said the white-haired French with a rueful smile.

Mrs. Neuberger joined in the laughter, but took issue with him.

"You say things were done better when you were young. But who wants to go back to all the work, the big field crews and those horse teams you see in those pictures?" she asked.

"I remember on our farm when I was a girl we had a Model T car we were so proud of. But we could only use it six months out of the year. There weren't any roads on which it could run in the winter. Who would want to give up that fine road on which I came here today? And yet there wouldn't be that road without the taxes and the government part in the road program," she said.

Later French introduced her on the platform and she spoke of Oregon pioneers and of the social pioneering still to come.

French, who listened intently to her talk, bade her a warm goodbye. As she left, he remarked to an acquaintance, "A fine woman."

Mrs. Neuberger returned to Portland where she lives alone in the home she and her husband had before Senate days. It is an old, green, three-story house in a fashionable section of the city's West Hills.

It was there her husband was felled by a cerebral hemorrhage last March. It is his seat in the Senate she is seeking.

Several factors help her. Her supporters cite her familiarity with the Senate and those in it. Before his death her husband frequently told voters of his wife's active part in his Senate work. She had a desk in his office and worked there regularly.

"And she wasn't on the payroll either," a friend says.

She is a native of Oregon, a descendant of a pioneer family. She was in three Oregon towns, teaching English and physical education until she was 37. She was in a Portland school then, met Neuberger, a rising author who shared her interest in outdoor activities and liberal policies, and married him. They had no children.

Her opponents say you still can hear the school teacher when she addresses a group. If so, she is a popular teacher. She was elected three times to the legislature before her husband was voted into the Senate in 1954.

She argued successfully for a string of consumer and social bills there. In a state where dairying is prominent, she successfully fought the dairy industry and brought about repeal of a milk marketing control act and a ban against colored oleomargarine.

But her impulses worry her friends.

"I'm always afraid she is going to open her mouth and put her foot in it," one friend confided.

No disaster has resulted.

"So long as you behave with integrity, I think you are in the clear," she says.

Five feet, six inches tall, she is slighter than before her husband's death, weighing about 120 pounds. Her brown hair is worn in a mass of curls around her head. Still limber and athletic, she neither smokes nor drinks.

She cooks and keeps house for herself and manages to get in some gardening each morning she is home. Swimming and dancing have been among her favorite activities but since her husband's death she has had little opportunity to dance.

She recently was invited to the State Postal Workers' Convention. Because she and her husband advocated increased pay for them, many postal workers are enthusiastic Neuberger supporters. After the banquet, the officers took her along to the dance.

"And we danced until 1 a.m.," she said triumphantly.

Her popularity does not end with federal workers. Last spring in winning the nomination for her husband's seat, she won over five other Democrats and piled up the largest vote on the Oregon ballot. Democratic leaders say polls show she will win handily over the Republican nominee, Elmo Smith an Albany, Ore., newspaper publisher and former governor of Oregon. Smith himself says he cannot win without attracting some Democratic votes away from her.

Absentee Voter Drive Launched

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democratic and Republican presidential election campaign tacticians have launched furious drives to capture the absentee voter ballot for their candidates.

The Democrats are sticking primarily to the mailing lists. The Republicans are tapping winter resorts, convalescent homes and universities overseas, among others, as rich sources of voters who can't go to the polls.

Mrs. Ethel Y. Black, head of the Democratic National Committee's Voters' Service Bureau, told UPI that more than 50,000 voters in the Washington area alone will receive absentee ballot application forms from her office.

Universities in Paris and Oslo and other foreign schools which American students attend are receiving information from Republican headquarters about absentee voting regulations.

Jack Stiles, GOP registration chairman said that 35 students in Norway wrote for voting information recently, "so we followed through and sent packets to other schools where there are Americans."

Mrs. Black, working as a Democratic vote getter since 1948, has critically studied absentee voting regulations of all 50 states.

"Federal employes serving all over the world have their voting rights protected in 32 states," she said, "and every state in the union says the overseas serviceman can vote."

Some of the more difficult states in which to cast an absentee ballot are Alabama, Mississippi, New Mexico, South Carolina and Louisiana.

"Some of these states require you to register in person," said Mrs. Black. "Others rule you have to apply for the ballot before March. New Mexico just says 'no absentee voting unless you're a serviceman.'"

Serviceman overseas are being urged to get their absentee ballots through a bipartisan Armed Forces Bureau.

Republicans in Miami, Fla., and Tucson and Phoenix, Ariz., are cornering voters on early winter vacations.

"They're checking hotel reservations now in these resort areas," said Stiles, "and will be ready to remind out-of-towners to get in their votes as soon as they arrive."

Marine, 19, Fatally Shot In N.Y. Home

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP) — A young Marine, masked and waving a knife, broke into the home of a New York executive early Saturday and was shot to death.

The Marine was identified by police as Paul Saulnier, 19, of Stamford, on leave from Camp Lejeune, N. C. He lived a few blocks from the residence of the executive, H. Grady Chandler Jr., 39, of the Esquire Shoe Polish Co.

Police said Saulnier broke into Chandler's home from a rear porch roof. He entered the bedroom occupied by Chandler and his wife, carrying a knife and wearing a mask made from a T-shirt.

In other bedrooms slept the Chandlers' three children, unaware of the terror a few doors away.

The Chandlers told police Saulnier first demanded money, then bound Chandler, a Navy PT boat commander in World War II, with neckties, and pushed him into a closet.

The bandit went downstairs, taking Mrs. Chandler with him, and tied her to a chair. There he told her he desperately needed money for hospitalization for his wife and child.

Meanwhile, Chandler broke loose upstairs, seized a pistol, rushed down the stairs and confronted the masked man. Chandler said he ordered the intruder to drop the knife, but the man lunged with the weapon and Chandler shot him four times.

Police said Saulnier did not have a police record and they didn't believe the story about his desperately needing money.

U.S. Studies Stiff Cuba Exports Ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States is expected to make a final decision next week on imposing a stiff embargo on exports of strategic materials to Cuba, reliable sources said Saturday.

The embargo, in retaliation for pro-Communist Cuban Premier Fidel Castro's seizure of U.S.-owned properties, including big oil refineries, would strike a major blow to the Cuban economy.

Castro is badly in need of vital machine parts to keep confiscated refineries and factories humming. Most of these must be purchased in the United States.

The action would formally add Cuba to a list of "unfriendly" nations, most of them in the Communist orbit, which are incligible for materials which may be used in war.

The UPI informant also said the government was considering a possible embargo on all U.S. exports except food and drugs. But some officials fear this might spark hostile Latin American criticism.

Many friendly governments were critical of President Eisenhower's decision last July to cut Cuba's sugar quota. They said the Organization of American States OAS) should have been consulted first. Since then, however, there has been growing sympathy for the U.S. position in view of Castro's hate-America provocations.

Jack Wallace Rites Pending

WINNFIELD (Special) — Jack Wallace, a resident of Baton Rouge and former resident of Shreveport, died in Winnfield Saturday evening after a long illness.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete, last night pending the arrival of relatives, but will be under the direction of Southern Funeral Home of Winnfield.

Mr. Wallace's sister, Mrs. W. J. Farber, lives in Monroe. He is also the uncle of Dr. James W. Schonlau of Monroe.

He was a member of El Karubah Temple, ancient Arabic Order of Nobles of the Mystic Shrine of Shreveport, and was employed by the State Insurance Department at his death.

Mr. Wallace also played professional ball as a catcher for the Chicago Cubs and with the Southern League at one time.

Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Jack Wallace Sr., Baton Rouge; one son, Jack Wallace Jr., Lake Charles; four sisters, Mrs. John H. Mosley, Mrs. Earl E. Kidd and Mrs. Gill Smith, all of Winnfield, and Mrs. Farber; one brother, George M. Wallace, Baton Rouge; and one grandchild.

Thirty Arrested In Theater Riot

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP)—Thirty persons were arrested and three policemen were hurt early Saturday when a rock 'n' roll show at a Baltimore theater rupted into a riot.

At the height of the disorder, the rioters were dancing in the aisles, throwing bottles and battling 20 city policemen, 10 special officers and three K0 Corps dogs.

Police said the trouble at the Royal Theater began when someone waiting for the midnight show let three friends in line ahead of him. Other patrons objected, trouble started and the disorder spread inside.

U.S. Praises West Germany Uranium Action

WASHINGTON (AP)—The State Department praised West Germany Saturday for throwing a secrecy cloak over the development of a low-cost centrifuge method of purifying uranium ore.

Processed uranium may be used either for peaceful purposes as nuclear fuel or for military purposes as an atomic explosive.

The State Department said early this week that U.S. officials discussed nuclear developments with West German officials at Bonn last July. The implication was that the United States urged the West Germans to protect their centrifuge process with government secrecy to prevent the spread of inexpensive techniques for nuclear weapons manufacturing.

"During these discussions," the State Department press office said, "we explained that we classified our work on centrifuge development because of the long-term implications this work had for the possible spread of weapons capabilities.

"Since then the Germans have announced that they have classified their peaceful uses developments in the centrifuge field. We are pleased that the Germans took this step in the interest of of worldwide security."

Barnett Set For Speech On Electors

SHREVEPORT (Special) —Gov. Ross Barnett of Mississippi will arrive here Tuesday to campaign for unpledged presidential electors of the States' Rights Party of Louisiana.

Governor Barnett, due to arrive here by plane at 6:30 p.m., is heading a slate of unpledged Democratic electors in Mississippi and will be guest of honor and principal speaker at a States' Rights Party rally in the Crystall Ballroom of the Washington -Youree Hotel.

A large crowd is expected at the rally which will be open to the public without charge, according to State Sen. W. M. Rainach, who is leading the fight for unpledged electors in Louisiana. Arrangements have been made to serve refreshments to more than 2,000 persons.

An hour - long progress featuring addresses by Governor Barnett and other leaders in the unpledged elector movement will be broadcast over television station KSLA, starting at 8 p.m. Tuesday.

Governor Barnett declared his independence of the Democratic Party immediately after its convention in Los Angeles in July.

In urging the election of unpledged electors in Mississippi and other states, the Mississippi executive has branded the platforms and candidates of both the Democrats and Republicans as "socialistic" and "repulsive."

Governor Barnett has declared that Mississippians supporting the unpledged elector movement "believe in principle rather than political expediency." In asking the citizens of other Southern states to join with Mississippians in with holding support from both Republican Richard M. Nixon and Democrat John F. Kennedy, Barnett said, "It's time to separate the men from the boys."

Also appearing on the program of the Tuesday night rally will be Edward Dubuisson, candidate for unpledged presidential elector from the 7th district. Dubuisson, a former Rhodes Scholar, is an attorney in Opelousas.

Lewis Services Scheduled Today

Funeral services are scheduled 1:30 p.m. today for J. Curtis Lewis, 42, of West Monroe, who died Friday of a gunshot wound which the coroner said was self - inflicted.

Services will be conducted in the chapel of Kilpatrick Funeral Home in West Monroe with the Rev. E. L. Tanner officiating. Burial will be in Lacey Cemetery, Lacey, Ark.

Survivors of the World War Two veteran, who served in the African Theater, are his mother, Mrs. Johnny M. Lewis, West Monroe; one sister, Mrs. Juanita Paul, Houston Tex. and one nephew.

Pallbearers will be Tom McElroy, A. D. Sims Jr., Jimmy D. Hart, Marvin Rabun, Buddy McCurry, and Robert Heacock.

Chris Barber Jazz Band Slated Here

The Chris Barber Jazz Band will open the Northeast State Concerts Association's new season Thursday at Neville High auditorium beginning at 8:15 p.m.

Known as the British jazz band with a southern accent, the Chris Barber crew is extremely popular in Europe where it has broken many attendance records.

Season tickets for the concert's association may be purchased at the Neville High auditorium box office during the Chris Barber performance.

Mantovani, and his orchestra of 45, will perform Friday Nov. 4, at the auditorium. Mantovani albums have sold millions of copies and the orchestra has received international acclaim.

"Fiorello!" the smash Broadway musical comedy hit which is still playing to full capacity audiences in New York and one of the association's major attractions, will appear in Monroe on Dec. 2. The touring company is now in Chicago where it has received rave reviews.

Chicago's pre - opening interest ran the highest it has in years. "Fiorello!" opened with an advance ticket sale of $240,000 — larger than the advance sale for the New York opening. The day the box office opened in the Chicago's Shubert Theater a double - line of ticket buyers stretched through the lobby to the sidewalk, and an hour after the first the NBC television opera, "Amahl and the Night Visitor"; Gen Carlos P. Romulo; and the U. S. Air Force Band.

The program will be heard at 5:30 p.m. oer KNOE and KNOE-TV.

Collaborating with Judge Harper in the program will be Dr. N. Klam, pathologist at the St. Francis Hospital, who will explain the value of voluntary blood tests being used by the Monroe city court. This blood test has often been referred to by Judge Harper as a safeguard to accused persons.

The large number of arrests on this offense during recent months in Monroe has created much concern locally. This trend, however, is general throughout the nation.

N.Y. Has Most Negro Voters

WASHINGTON (AP) — New York will have more Negroes of voting age on Election Day than any of the Southern states, a Census Bureau study disclosed Saturday. And the actual Negro vote in New York probably will be far higher than in any Southern state.

The report showed that of the 107 million civilians in the country who will be old enough to vote on Nov. 8, some 9,988,000 are Negroes.

The voting-age Negro population of New York will be 761,000, the Census Bureau said. Texas will have 624,000 Negroes of voting age.

In third place is Georgia with 613,000 Negroes of the voting age —which in that state is 18, instead of 21 as in New York and Texas. Fourth is Illinois, with 567,000 voting-age Negroes.

The bureau noted that the voting-age population includes "Many who, although old enough to vote, cannot do so." Eligibility is fixed by a variety of state laws and requirements as to residence, registration and payment of poll taxes.

Russians Given Glowing Report

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet press painted such a glowing picture of Premier Khrushchev, back at his hearth after a blitzkrieg U.N. General Assembly appearance, that the Soviet population can believe only that the enemy was routed and all went well.

Izvestia began its wlecome-home story by noting that Khrushchev's day of return Friday began stormily—then "rays of sun shone through the clouds."

"The political weather is also very changeable," the newspaper said, using language approaching Russia lyric poetry. "But nature is not to be blamed for that.

"Representatives of the United States and allies of that country in the military bloc did their utmost at the 15th session of the United Nations so that out planet should be surrounded by a fog of mistrust and concern, so that the clouds of the cold war would become heavier.

"But rays of truth, in a mighty flood, broke all impediments and shone on the globe with the light of the all-winning ideas of peace and friendship, which all honest people in the world carry in their hearts.

"The position of the Soviet delegation was as clear as a sunny day. The passionate words of Khrushchev—from the tribune of the General Assembly, at arranged and improvised press conferences, over television—showed to everybody who can hear what are the aspirations of the Soviet Union."

The only reference to any strange scenes on the U. N. Assembly floor was in the Literary Gazette's comment that, "The chairman—Frederick A. Boland of Ireland—broke his hammer."

(Boland's gavel snapped in two when he pounded it angrily last Wednesday, suspending the day's session, after Khrushchev called a Philippine delegate a "lackey" and a "jerk" and slammed his own shoe on his desk top.)

Foreign diplomatic circles here still are studying whether Khrushchev's performance at the United Nations is creating shock and disgust or simply fright. Some believe the reaction will likely be as much one way as the other.

Khrushchev's strong gestures of the hands and arms were not reported here, though Izvestia did comment that, "Each word of Khrushchev pronounced on the other side of the ocean was attentively listened to and heartily approved by our whole country."

When told of various Khrushchev scenes in the United Nations, some here expressed shock.

First of all, no one had seen any confirmation of the antics, ports of uninterrupted success by the Soviet U.N. delegation in winning the uncommitted nations to the side of communism could leave no doubt in the minds of the local population.

Any other point of view or statement of events simply does not exist.

Questioning voices? They are not heard and they do not write.

But then, a strange anomaly does exist.

Americans here persistently find themselves more amiably treated in shops and at shows than the U. N. General Assembly atmosphere created by the Russians appears to justify.

Truman Hits At Nixon In Rally Speech

ABINGDON, Va. (UPI)—Harry S. Truman, who has had all three jobs, said Saturday that being a senator was just as good training for the presidency as being vice president.

Truman, the senator from Missouri who was Franklin D. Roosevelt's last vice president and succeeded him in 1945, spoke at a Democratic rally here in support of Sen. John F. Kennedy for president.

He said in his prepared speech that the Republican claim of more and better experience for Vice President Richard M. Nixon was a "gimmick" designed to fool the voters.

"I am the only living man who has been a United States senator, the vice president of the United States and the President," Truman said. "I know something about the experience a man has in each of these jobs and I can say to you without any hesitation that experience as a member of the Senate is just as good training for the office of president as is expereince as vice president."

Truman also conceded that Nixon has "had some experience," but added: "So far as qualifying him for the presidency is concerned, his experience has been the wrong kind and has been on the wrong side of the fence."

Truman equated a politician's experience with his record and said Nixon's record "is a warning of the kind of President he would be if he were elected. I say to you, my friends, that you will ignore this warning at your own peril."

He said Nixon was "not of much use for the administration" as vice president in aiding the Eisenhower legislative program, and his overseas trips were in the role of "a high level tourist without any authority to transact any government business."

"Personally, I am very glad he did not have authority to transact any business," Truman said, "because I would be very fearful of the outcome."

He said Nixon's main use to the administration in its first years was a "political hatchetman" who went around "impugning the loyalty and patriotism of Democrats."

Marine, 19, Fatally Shot In N.Y. Home

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP) — A young Marine, masked and waving a knife, broke into the home of a New York executive early Saturday and was shot to death.

The Marine was identified by police as Paul Saulnier, 19, of Stamford, on leave from Camp Lejeune, N. C. He lived a few blocks from the residence of the executive, H. Grady Chandler Jr., 39, of the Esquire Shoe Polish Co.

Police said Saulnier broke into Chandler's home from a rear porch roof. He entered the bedroom occupied by Chandler and his wife, carrying a knife and wearing a mask made from a T-shirt.

In other bedrooms slept the Chandlers' three children, unaware of the terror a few doors away.

The Chandlers told police Saulnier first demanded money, then bound Chandler, a Navy PT boat commander in World War II, with neckties, and pushed him into a closet.

The bandit went downstairs, taking Mrs. Chandler with him, and tied her to a chair. There he told her he desperately needed money for hospitalization for his wife and child.

Meanwhile, Chandler broke loose upstairs, seized a pistol, rushed down the stairs and confronted the masked man. Chandler said he ordered the intruder to drop the knife, but the man lunged with the weapon and Chandler shot him four times.

Police said Saulnier did not have a police record and they didn't believe the story about his desperately needing money.

U.S. Studies Stiff Cuba Exports Ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States is expected to make a final decision next week on imposing a stiff embargo on exports of strategic materials to Cuba, reliable sources said Saturday.

The embargo, in retaliation for pro-Communist Cuban Premier Fidel Castro's seizure of U.S.-owned properties, including big oil refineries, would strike a major blow to the Cuban economy.

Castro is badly in need of vital machine parts to keep confiscated refineries and factories humming. Most of these must be purchased in the United States.

The action would formally add Cuba to a list of "unfriendly" nations, most of them in the Communist orbit, which are ineligible for materials which may be used in war.

The UPI informant also said the government was considering a possible embargo on all U.S. exports except food and drugs. But some officials fear this might spark hostile Latin American criticism.

Many friendly governments were critical of President Eisenhower's decision last July to cut Cuba's sugar quota. They said the Organization of American States (OAS) should have been consulted first. Since then, however, there has been growing sympathy for the U.S. position in view of Castro's hate-America provocations.

Jack Wallace Rites Pending

WINNFIELD (Special) — Jack Wallace, a resident of Baton Rouge and former resident of Shreveport, died in Winnfield Saturday evening after a long illness.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete, last night pending the arrival of relatives, but will be under the direction of Southern Funeral Home of Winnfield.

Mr. Wallace's sister, Mrs. W. J. Farber, lives in Monroe. He is also the uncle of Dr. James W. Schonlau of Monroe.

He was a member of El Karubah Temple, ancient Arabic Order of Nobles of the Mystic Shrine of Shreveport, and was employed by the State Insurance Department at his death.

Mr. Wallace also played professional ball as a catcher for the Chicago Cubs and with the Southern League at one time.

Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Jack Wallace Sr., Baton Rouge; one son, Jack Wallace Jr., Lake Charles; four sisters, Mrs. John H. Mosley, Mrs. Earl E. Kidd and Mrs. Gill Smith, all of Winnfield, and Mrs. Farber; one brother, George M. Wallace, Baton Rouge; and one grandchild.

Thirty Arrested In Theater Riot

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP)—Thirty persons were arrested and three policemen were hurt early Saturday when a rock 'n' roll show at a Baltimore theater rupted into a riot.

At the height of the disorder, the rioters were dancing in the aisles, throwing bottles and battling 20 city policemen, 10 special officers and three K0 Corps dogs.

Police said the trouble at the Royal Theater began when someone waiting for the midnight show let three friends in line ahead of him. Other patrons objected, trouble started and the disorder spread inside.

U.S. Praises West Germany Uranium Action

WASHINGTON (AP)—The State Department praised West Germany Saturday for throwing a secrecy cloak over the development of a low-cost centrifuge method of purifying uranium ore.

Processed uranium may be used either for peaceful purposes as nuclear fuel or for military purposes as an atomic explosive.

The State Department said early this week that U.S. officials discussed nuclear developments with West German officials at Bonn last July. The implication was that the United States urged the West Germans to protect their centrifuge process with government secrecy to prevent the spread of inexpensive techniques for nuclear weapons manufacturing.

"During these discussions," the State Department press office said, "we explained that we classified our work on centrifuge development because of the long-term implications this work had for the possible spread of weapons capabilities.

"Since then the Germans have announced that they have classified their peaceful uses developments in the centrifuge field. We are pleased that the Germans took this step in the interest of of worldwide security."

Barnett Set For Speech On Electors

SHREVEPORT (Special) —Gov. Ross Barnett of Mississippi will arrive here Tuesday to campaign for unpledged presidential electors of the States' Rights Party of Louisiana.

Governor Barnett, due to arrive here by plane at 6:30 p.m., is heading a slate of unpledged Democratic electors in Mississippi and will be guest of honor and principal speaker at a States' Rights Party rally in the Crystall Ballroom of the Washington -Youree Hotel.

A large crowd is expected at the rally which will be open to the public without charge, according to State Sen. W. M. Rainach, who is leading the fight for unpledged electors in Louisiana. Arrangements have been made to serve refreshments to more than 2,000 persons.

An hour - long progress featuring addresses by Governor Barnett and other leaders in the unpledged elector movement will be broadcast over television station KSLA, starting at 8 p.m. Tuesday.

Governor Barnett declared his independence of the Democratic Party immediately after its convention in Los Angeles in July.

In urging the election of unpledged electors in Mississippi and other states, the Mississippi executive has branded the platforms and candidates of both the Democrats and Republicans as "socialistic" and "repulsive."

Governor Barnett has declared that Mississippians supporting the unpledged elector movement "believe in principle rather than political expediency." In asking the citizens of other Southern states to join with Mississippians in with holding support from both Republican Richard M. Nixon and Democrat John F. Kennedy, Barnett said, "It's time to separate the men from the boys."

Also appearing on the program of the Tuesday night rally will be Edward Dubuisson, candidate for unpledged presidential elector from the 7th district. Dubuisson, a former Rhodes Scholar, is an attorney in Opelousas.

Lewis Services Scheduled Today

Funeral services are scheduled 1:30 p.m. today for J. Curtis Lewis, 42, of West Monroe, who died Friday of a gunshot wound which the coroner said was self - inflicted.

Services will be conducted in the chapel of Kilpatrick Funeral Home in West Monroe with the Rev. E. L. Tanner officiating. Burial will be in Lacey Cemetery, Lacey, Ark.

Survivors of the World War Two veteran, who served in the African Theater, are his mother, Mrs. Johnny M. Lewis, West Monroe; one sister, Mrs. Juanita Paul, Houston Tex. and one nephew.

Pallbearers will be Tom McElroy, A. D. Sims Jr., Jimmy D. Hart, Marvin Rabun, Buddy McCurry, and Robert Heacock.

Chris Barber Jazz Band Slated Here

The Chris Barber Jazz Band will open the Northeast State Concerts Association's new season Thursday at Neville High auditorium beginning at 8:15 p.m.

Known as the British jazz band with a southern accent, the Chris Barber crew is extremely popular in Europe where it has broken many attendance records.

Season tickets for the concert's association may be purchased at the Neville High auditorium box office during the Chris Barber performance.

Mantovani, and his orchestra of 45, will perform Friday Nov. 4, at the auditorium. Mantovani albums have sold millions of copies and the orchestra has received international acclaim.

"Fiorello!" the smash Broadway musical comedy hit which is still playing to full capacity audiences in New York and one of the association's major attractions, will appear in Monroe on Dec. 2. The touring company is now in Chicago where it has received rave reviews.

Chicago's pre - opening interest ran the highest it has in years. "Fiorello!" opened with an advance ticket sale of $240,000 — larger than the advance sale for the New York opening. The day the box office opened in the Chicago's Shubert Theater a double - line of ticket buyers stretched through the lobby to the sidewalk, and an hour after the first the NBC television opera, "Amahl and the Night Visitor"; Gen Carlos P. Romulo; and the U. S. Air Force Band.

window opened a second had to be opened to handle the demand.

"Fiorello!" will complete its 10-week stay in Chicago on Nov. 12 and resume its national tour.

Among the other concert attractions scheduled this season are

WORLD OF FUTURE

'The Time Machine' At Jim Wednesday

A remarkable excursion into the fourth dimension — Time — is depicted in "The Time Machine," George Pal's new science-adventure drama for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Filmed in wide-screen and color against both realistic and strikingly imaginative settings, and with the unique photographic effects for which five-time Academy Award-winner Pal is noted, the new picture is based on H. G. Wells' famed novel concerning an Englishman who invents a machine which takes him into the future.

The Time Traveler is played by Rod Taylor, with other top roles enacted by Alan Young (who starred in Pal's previous production, "tom thumb"), Sebastian Cabot, Tom Helmore and MGM's new find, blonde Yvette Minieux. The latter plays a girl depicted as living in the year 802,701 A.D., and one of the fascinating aspects of "The Time Machine" is its view of what people will look like, dress like and behave like 800,000 years from now.

It is in the Victorian England of 1889 that The Time Traveler undertakes his daring fourth-dimensional adventure through time, surpassing the speed of light and projecting audiences into the fantastic existence of the world of the future. When he first stops, moments later, two hours have passed. Another pull on the lever and it is 1917, the period of World War I. He pushes on through Time — 1940, London being bombed during World War II — 1966, when he barely escapes an atomic attack. He races through an era of engulfment by lava, finally to emerge in what seems a veritable Paradise in the year 802,701 A.D.

This is the land of the future, inhabited by the blonde Eloi people and their deadly foes, the evil, half-man, half-ape Morlocks, cannibalistic monsters with green hair and red eyes, who live in underground caverns and prey on the enslaved Eloi.

SAVED

It is here that The Time traveler has his most thrilling adventures with the lovely Weena (Miss Mimieux), whom he saves from the hands of the Morlocks in a thrilling climax taking place in a blazing cavern resembling Dante's Inferno.

The screen play of "The Time Machine" was written by David Duncan. The picture was produced and directed by George Pal, whose unusual science-fiction film successes include "War of the Worlds" (also based on an H. G. Wells novel), "Destination Moon" and "When Worlds Collide."

Halloween Party Set At Paramount

The Mickey Mouse Club, the modern Pied Piper of the Monroe youngsters during the summer vacation, will return to the Paramount Theatre for the first annual Mickey Mouse Halloween Party, Saturday, October 29, at 10:00 a.m.

There will be two hours of fun with apple ducking, shoe scrambles, and Halloween Costume Contests on the stage highlighted with the presentation of numerous gifts. A special movie program, 13 color cartoons featuring Casper The Ghost, as Mickey's special guest, has been planned.

All children are urged to wear their Halloween costumes and there will be a special gift for the best costume. Ted Hatfield, theatre manager, also stated all parents are invited to attend free if accompanied by a child, and the first 25 children, in costume, will be admitted free as Mickey's guests.

Lillian Gish Back

NEW YORK (AP)—Lillian Gish has been signed for a major role in "All the Way Home," a new play by Tad Mosel. Arthur Penn will put the play into rehearsal in mid-October. Fred Coe is producer.

'Magnificent Seven' Opens At Paramount

An epic tale of seven professional gunmen hired by the citizens of a small Mexican village as protection against a marauding band of outlaws is told in "The Magnificent Seven," presented by the Mirisch Company in Panavision and color by DeLuxe. The picture, a United Artists release, will open today at the Paramount Theatre. The film stars Yul Brynner, Eli Wallach, Steve McQueen and Horst Buchholz.

Brynner is cast as Chris Adams, a drifting unemployed gunfighter who recruits the Magnificent Seven and leads them in their fight to insure the town's security.

Eli Wallach portrays the outlaw chief, Calvera, who with his band Baxter as Harry, the gunmen who wants more than glory; Charles Bronson as Bernardo O'Rielly, a half-Mexican, half-Irishman, who would rather kill for twenty dollars than chop wood for a living, and Robert Vaughn as Lee, the man the newspapers said had been killed.

CAST

Cast in major supporting roles are Mexican star Risenda Monteros, Jorge Martinez De Hoyos, Enrique Lucere and Vladimir Sokoloff.

"The Magnificent Seven" was filmed entirely south of the border, on location in the Cuernavaca area, Tepoztlan, Oacalco and at the Churubusco Studios in Mexico City.

Producer-director Sturges has directed some of the most outstanding Westerns of the decade including "The Gunfight at the O.K. Corral" and "Bad Day at Black Rock." His credits also include "The Old Man and The Sea," "Underwater," "Last Train From Gun Hill" and "Kind Lady."

Academy Award - winning cameraman Charles Lang Jr., who was previously associated with Sturges on "Gunfight" and "Last Train" shot the film. In 1953 he received an Oscar for his photography on "A Farewell To Arms."

SCRIPT

Walter Newman has provided the producer-director with a script that crackles with action, atmosphere and dialogue.

Elmer Bernstein, who has penned numerous top-notch motion picture scores, among them "The Ten Commandments," "Man With The Golden Arm" and "God's Little Acre," composed the music for "The Magnificent Seven."

Best Man Passes 200

NEW YORK (AP) — "The Best Man," Gore Vidal's comedy about politics, has passed the 200 mark in performances. The play stars Melvyn Douglas, Lee Tracy and Frank Lovejoy as three powerful personages in the political arena.

GROUP OF HIRED gunslingers brought into a Mexican town for protection against a gang of outlaws in "The Magnificent Seven." The picture opens today at the Paramount Theatre and is in color by DeLuxe and Panavision.

CURTAIN CALL

By SANDY JOHNSON

Thursday night, October 20th, at 8:15 p.m. the curtain will go up for the first production of the 1960 - 61 season of the Little Theatre of Monroe. "Seven Year Itch," is ready and waiting to go. The set is up and the properties have been collected and the cast is ironing out the final problems. The box - office will be open from 2 - 7 p.m. daily beginning Tuesday, October 18th. Call and make your reservations early to avoid the last minute rush. The new telephone number for the Theatre is FA 3-1235.

RESERVATIONS

For the benefit of the new Little Theatre members, you must call the theatre and make reservations for the night you wish to see "Seven Year Itch," or any play. The membership ticket you purchased entitles you to see each play, but you must call before hand to be assured of having a seat reserved. Our present theatre only seats 130 people, so you can see the necessity of such a ruling.

If you haven't purchased your membership tickets for this season, time is running short. You better make plans to buy it soon! Call any of the Little Theatre workers or Membership Committeeman or contact me at FA 3-4903.

All workers that are selling tickets please note: Please turn in your money and names to the membership committee, so that they can process the tickets and get them mailed out as soon as possible.

The box office committee for this season is Ed Ellison, chairman; Julius Chan, Scherck Bogen, Sidney Gill, Ted Landhy, Chick Foster, Russ Kettenring, and Henry Haas Jr. These are the people that will greet you each night at the box office of the Little Theatre.

B. B. Stone had the task of taking care of the Little Theatre Scrapbook last season and has accepted the job again for this season. B. B. does a wonderful job of keeping the scrapbook up to date for us.

The new playhouse on Lamy Lane is really underway. The brick walls are on their way up and now you can really see what the playhouse is going to look like. Drive by and watch the progress now and then. It's located on Lamy Lane behind United Gas on Louisville Avenue.

Yesterday some of the lovely portraits by Katherine Magruder were seen on exhibition at the Columbia Art Festival.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kellogg deserve a vote of thanks for the lovely draperies that they gave to the Little Theatre.

Pat Clark, our director's wife, has been employed at the Ouachita Parish Library. Pat says she enjoys her job tremendously.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Rosenheim have given the theatre some beautiful furs to be added to the costume collection, and some lovely drapes, thank you, we appreciate them greatly.

See you Sunday.

Yum Yum Tree Comedy Casting Nearing Finish

NEW YORK (AP) — "The key role of the new comedy, "Under the Yum Yum Tree," has gone to Sandra Church, the young actress who played Ethel Merman's striptease daughter in "Gypsy."

The play is about young love and the burden of its rests strongly on the role undertaken by Miss Church. Written by a new playwright, Lawrence Roman, it has only four characters with a fifth making a brief walk on.

Producer Frederick Brisson says one role remains to be filled, that of another male character. Gig Young will play opposite Miss Church, and Nan Martin will have the role of the mother. Brisson hopes to open the show Nov. 16 at Henry Miller's Theater.

JOHN STURGES

Director Likes Difficult Actors

By JOE FINNIGAN

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Some movie directors might think John Sturges is a little crazy because he likes working with filmland's most temperamental stars, but he insists they're no trouble at all.

However, you'd better learn the ground rules before you enter the game, cautions Sturges.

John has worked with Yul Brynner, Steve McQueen, Frank Sinatra, Spencer Tracy, Burt Lancaster and Anthony Quinn but so far he's escaped unscathed.

"They have reputations for being difficult," admits Sturges, who is currently directing Lana Turner in "By Love Possessed."

"But, I've never had any trouble working with them except those that go with making a picture.

VIEW

"You just don't put on a pair of puttees, get a megaphone and start directing those guys though," the lanky Sturges warned. "If you want to work that way, get somebody else."

Sturges also suggests that a director look a temperamental star right in the eye.

"All they want is to know what's going on and to be in on the act," he added. "You've got to listen to their ideas. Use some, get yourself off the hook on the bad ones and you'll come out ahead."

Sturges says tough stars are usually right in the long run at least as far as their own portrayal is concerned.

"I think all these fellows have proven they know more about themselves than anybody," he explained. "They come up with attitudes and ideas on how to play a scene."

REVEALED

John also revealed that the emotion that makes the Sinatras, Lancasters, etc., difficult is exactly what he wants them to exhibit on screen.

"If you want the vitality these guys bring to the screen, you can't ask them to run it off between scenes," he said. "While they are pitching for themselves, they're also pitching for everybody else in the picture. Sinatra, for instance, will pay anything for a bit player if he wants him."

Whatever problems there may be in working with stars, Sturges says temperamental ones are usually straight forward.

"If Sinatra, Tracy, Lancaster and those other guys have a beef, they let you know right away," he said waving a finger. "I won't work with the sulkers who don't come out of the dressing rooms.

James Dean Group Keeps Name Alive

FAIRMOUNT, Ind. (AP) — In the wave of emotion that followed the death of young actor Jimmy Dean in 1955, some citizens of his hometown established a foundation in his name.

Now the James Dean Foundation is broke.

Has the Hoosier actor and teenage idol been forgotten?

"I don't think the memory of Jimmy Dean has slackened off a bit," says Victor Selby Jr., a Fairmount banker and director of the once flourishing foundation. "His grave is covered with beautiful flowers every day of the year."

After Dean was killed in a sports car crash on a California highway, fans all over the country vowed to keep his name alive. A movie was put together using old stills and film clips of Dean. Phonograph records were issued in his memory.

The James Dean Foundation pledged to give financial assistance to the "Jimmy Deans of tomorrow."

Now the modern brick building which served as the organization's headquarters houses a furniture store. The files are locked. Dean's personal belongings have been claimed by relatives.

The foundation sponsored a five-week theatrical course in the Fairmount High School, where Dean had studied.

The course lasted one summer, but Selby says it was highly successful.

The foundation lasted 18 months until a disgruntled landlord closed its doors. Since, it has been whittling away at debts which now are nearly repaid.

Its demise paralleled that of the national Dean cult which died of malnutrition. It flourished during the last year of his life and had a spurt after his death, but burned out a year later. After the release of his posthumous film, "Giant," nothing remained to rally his young fans and they transferred their attention to Elvis Presley and other favorites.

Dean burst on the Hollywood scene like a Roman candle. Without any buildup in the publicity mills, Elia Kazan thrust the young actor on the screen in "East of Eden," and the results were electrifying. He played his scenes with a naturalness that made it seem he was living his roles instead of acting them.

The nature of his first two roles helped rally a young, restless generation to his support. In both "East of Eden" and "Rebel Without a Cause," he played a confused youth, railing at his parents and trying desperately to establish his identity in an alien world.

After his death in a car accident his name was romanticized in ballads, clubs and fanatic devotion of the teen-age audience.

"Giant" marked the high point in his popularity. The documentary about his life and death, "The James Dean Story," did disappointing business.

"Our dream is gone," says Lewis Crist, a Fairmount businessman and president of the James Dean Foundation. "We had something but we lost it."

Crist puts part of the blame on "big shots running over us hayseeds."

He says the foundation expected 5 per cent of the proceeds from the "James Dean Story," but "so far we haven't received a cent."

Crist puts some of the blame on himself and the directors.

"Our livelihood came first," he says, "and we kept leaving the decisions to the other guy."

Selby doesn't think the foundation's woes are the end of the memorial.

"The furniture and fixtures are intact," he says. "We're almost free of debt. We'd like to get started again with a meeting place for people who come to visit Jimmy's grave.

Cabaret Theater Will Be Brought To New Yorkers

NEW YORK (AP) — H. B. Lutz is all set to bring a cabaret theater to New York sometime in November.

The cabaret theater is a popular form of entertainment abroad and has had a successful revival in Chicago, where "The Second City" has been operating to sell-out audiences for nine months. Spectators are permitted to eat and drink while the show goes on.

Lutz, who has no connection with the Chicago operation, tried the cabaret technique at the Jazz Gallery in Greenwich Village with "Krapp's Last Tape" and "The Zoo Story." Now, with a new enterprise known as Theater Main Line, he and his partners have four works which they propose to stage at the Village Gate.

Actress, Hubby Are Teamed In Stage Careers

NEW YORK (AP) — For the first time in their careers, actress Kim Stanley and her husband, actor Alfred Ryder, are collaborating on the stage.

But in this instance, Ryder is in the role of director. He began rehearsals of "Taffy" the other day and commented:

"The director - actor relationship between husband and wife, if both respect each other as craftsmen, can't but help."

He thinks it might be different if he were also acting in the show.

The 17-character Anne Marie Barlow play is slated to open on Broadway Nov. 23, a week later than earlier announced.

WORLD OF FUTURE

'The Time Machine' At Jim Wednesday

A remarkable excursion into the fourth dimension — Time — is depicted in "The Time Machine," George Pal's new science-adventure drama for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Filmed in wide-screen and color against both realistic and strikingly imaginative settings, and with the unique photographic effects for which five-time Academy Award-winner Pal is noted, the new picture is based on H. G. Wells' famed novel concerning an Englishman who invents a machine which takes him into the future.

The Time Traveler is played by Rod Taylor, with other top roles enacted by Alan Young (who starred in Pal's previous production, "tom thumb"), Sebastian Cabot, Tom Helmore and MGM's new find, blonde Yvette Minieux. The latter plays a girl depicted as living in the year 802,701 A.D., and one of the fascinating aspects of "The Time Machine" is its view of what people will look like, dress like and behave like 800,000 years from now.

It is in the Victorian England of 1889 that The Time Traveler undertakes his daring fourth-dimensional adventure through time, surpassing the speed of light and projecting audiences into the fantastic existence of the world of the future. When he first stops, moments later, two hours have passed. Another pull on the lever and it is 1917, the period of World War I. He pushes on through Time — 1940, London being bombed during World War II — 1966, when he barely escapes an atomic attack. He races through an era of engulfment by lava, finally to emerge in what seems a veritable Paradise in the year 802,701 A.D.

This is the land of the future, inhabited by the blonde Eloi people and their deadly foes, the evil, half-man, half-ape Morlocks, cannabalistic monsters with green hair and red eyes, who live in underground caverns and prey on the enslaved Eloi.

SAVED

It is here that The Time traveler has his most thrilling adventures with the lovely Weena (Miss Mimieux), whom he saves from the hands of the Morlocks in a thrilling climax taking place in a blazing cavern resembling Dante's Inferno.

The screen play of "The Time Machine" was written by David Duncan. The picture was produced and directed by George Pal, whose unusual science-fiction film successes include "War of the Worlds" (also based on an H. G. Wells novel), "Destination Moon" and "When Worlds Collide."

Halloween Party Set At Paramount

The Mickey Mouse Club, the modern Pied Piper of the Monroe youngsters during the summer vacation, will return to the Paramount Theatre for the first annual Mickey Mouse Halloween Party, Saturday, October 29, at 10:00 a.m.

There will be two hours of fun with apple ducking, shoe scrambles, and Halloween Costume Contests on the stage highlighted with the presentation of numerous gifts. A special movie program, 13 color cartoons featuring Casper The Ghost, as Mickey's special guest, has been planned.

All children are urged to wear their Halloween costumes and there will be a special gift for the best costume. Ted Hatfield, theatre manager, also stated all parents are invited to attend free if accompanied by a child, and the first 25 children, in costume, will be admitted free as Mickey's guests.

Lillian Gish Back

NEW YORK (AP)—Lillian Gish has been signed for a major role in "All the Way Home," a new play by Tad Mosel. Arthur Penn will put the play into rehearsal in mid-October. Fred Coe is producer.

'Magnificent Seven' Opens At Paramount

An epic tale of seven professional gunmen hired by the citizens of a small Mexican village as protection against a marauding band of outlaws is told in "The Magnificent Seven," presented by the Mirisch Company in Panavision and color by DeLuxe. The picture, a United Artists release, will open today at the Paramount Theatre. The film stars Yul Brynner, Eli Wallach, Steve McQueen and Horst Buchholz.

Brynner is cast as Chris Adams, a drifting unemployed gunfighter who recruits the Magnificent Seven and leads them in their fight to insure the town's security.

Eli Wallach portrays the outlaw chief, Calvera, who with his band Baxter as Harry, the gunmen who wants more than glory; Charles Bronson as Bernardo O'Rielly, a half-Mexican, half-Irishman, who would rather kill for twenty dollars than chop wood for a living, and Robert Vaughn as Lee, the man the newspapers said had been killed.

CAST

Cast in major supporting roles are Mexican star Risenda Monteros, Jorge Martinez De Hoyos, Enrique Lucere and Vladimir Sokoloff.

"The Magnificent Seven" was filmed entirely south of the border, on location in the Cuernavaca area, Tepoztlan, Oacalco and at the Churubusco Studios in Mexico City.

Producer-director Sturges has directed some of the most outstanding Westerns of the decade including "The Gunfight at the O.K. Corral" and "Bad Day at Black Rock." His credits also include "The Old Man and The Sea," "Underwater," "Last Train From Gun Hill" and "Kind Lady."

Academy Award - winning cameraman Charles Lang Jr., who was previously associated with Sturges on "Gunfight" and "Last Train" shot the film. In 1953 he received an Oscar for his photography on "A Farewell To Arms."

SCRIPT

Walter Newman has provided the producer-director with a script that crackles with action, atmosphere and dialogue.

Elmer Bernstein, who has penned numerous top-notch motion picture scores, among them "The Ten Commandments," "Man With The Golden Arm" and "God's Little Acre," composed the music for "The Magnificent Seven."

Yum Yum Tree Comedy Casting Nearing Finish

NEW YORK (AP) — "The key role of the new comedy, "Under the Yum Yum Tree," has gone to Sandra Church, the young actress who played Ethel Merman's striptease daughter in "Gypsy."

The play is about young love and the burden of its rests strongly on the role undertaken by Miss Church. Written by a new playwright, Lawrence Roman, it has only four characters with a fifth making a brief walk on.

Producer Frederick Brisson says one role remains to be filled, that of another male character. Gig Young will play opposite Miss Church, and Nan Martin will have the role of the mother. Brisson hopes to open the show Nov. 16 at Henry Miller's Theater.

CONTINUING STRUGGLE

'Right To Know' Cited By Editor

Jack Gates, executive editor of the Monroe News - Star and Morning World, told a meeting of the Fifth District Louisiana Federation of Women's Clubs here yesterday that the "right to know" is a continuing struggle — a struggle that effects you "whether you realize it or not."

"As an American, you have a right to know what is going on in your country, your state, your parish and your city," Gates said. "You have a right to know what your elected officials do, how they spend your money, and how well they carry out their oath of office. And unless you insist on that right and fight for it, you are the loser."

Speaking on the opening day of National Newspaper Week, Gates said he would quote freely from article prepared by John H. Colburn, president of the Associated Press Managing Editors Association, which outlined the duty and obligation of newspapers.

"The scope and power of the newspaper as a community force have changed drastically during the past 50 years," he said. "Today, the dimensions of this force and the restrictions certain groups seek to impose on it are too little understood."

Gates asked the group how often had they viewed their newspaper as:

1—A stout defender of your liberties;

2—A voice against injustice;

3—A tireless prober into the acts of your public officials;

4—A constructive influence in your community.

An American community has many components but at the hub of every vibrant community is its newspaper, the editor said. If there was ever a time that there is a need for a strong, stable newspaper hubs in our communities it is today.

"We need newspapers so that the people can see and understand the workings of our society — so that they can get the feel, fascination and exictement of national and international affairs and achieve a sense of participating in current history. Newspapers are needed to make the city's budget hearing or last night's ball game more than a jumble of statistics."

Gates quoted Colburn as writing "Despite enormous progress by newspapers in reaching a high plane of community responsibility, obstacles remain in efforts to serve the public more effectively. Many politicians and government officials have not been in the least sympathetic to this great community responsibility because they realize it means a more searching spotlight on their activities.

"Officials would — and some have — barred the public and the press from information of legitimate interest to a substantial segment of the public. Public business should be the public's business — not solely the business of public office - holders and their allies."

It was pointed out to the group that the public's right to legitimate information is a vital right. Courts and legislative bodies have recognized that newspapers represent the public as a medium of information. That right has been legally supported, not for the benefit of the newspapers — but for the benefit of the public.

Our constitution says that "Congress shall make no law . . . abridging freedom of speech or of the press . . ." This means that every person is protected in the right to speak freely or to distribute views in fprinted form. The only restrictions are the legal ones dealing with libel and slander laws and the moral ones which come under the heading of good taste.

Newspapers, it was pointed out, must constantly face up to these same restrictions but these problems are not nearly as difficult as those of gaining access to news that is being suppressed. Some of this suppression is inadverted, resulting from the lack of knowledge of news operations.

"The first thing a would - be dictator and some public officials try to do is to either seize the press through one means or another and use it for his own benefit, or to tear it down in the eyes of the people by trying to make you believe all manner of evil about it," Gates said.

"Censorship is employed in many forms and for many reasons," he said. "Mostly it is to keep from the eyes of the people such things as inefficiency, poor judgment and sometimes corruption, so those in power may remain in power.

"A public official who is doing a sincere and conscientious job has nothing to hide. Sure, he will make mistakes — we all do. But he knows, too, that you will forgive him as long as he is trying and giving you his best."

Have you ever stopped to think, Gates asked, that much of the information you get today, you wouldn't get if newspapermen did not break down the barriers thrown up to essential truth.

"Many newspapermen have died because they insisted on the sacred belief that you have a right to know," Gates said. "Others have been thrown in jail; still others have been harrassed by various means, their reputations have been attacked. And, too, many people the world over are in their graves in cemeteries because they didn't think, until it was too late, that censorship and dictatorship could come to them."

Gates told the group that a dedicated newsman will always fight, regardless of the cost to him, for the people's right to know.

"If he doesn't, he will not remain in the profession long," he said.

In closing, Gates again quoted from the article written by Colburn because his description "of the daily newspaper is the best I have ever seen."

Colburn said, "the columns of your newspaper daily unfold the story of humanity -- its struggles, its hopes, its brutalities, its heroism, its stupidities, its triumphs, its failures. Your newspaper can expose outstanding performance as well as misfeasance — and it does. By interpreting and clarifying issues, it creates better understanding."

Other speakers were Dr. Mary Frances Fletcher, professor of English at Louisiana Tech; Mrs. A. Dent Tisdale, teacher of "bright and gifted" children in the Ouachita Parish school system; and Dr. Paul Pennington, head of the department of speech at Louisiana Tech.

Mrs. Thomas Jett is president of the organization.

State Attorney Named Leader For Republicans

WASHINGTON (Special) — A prominent Alexandria attorney, D. Cameron Murchison, has been named Louisiana state chairman of the Lawyers for Nixon -Lodge Committee. The announcement was made today by Charles S. Rhyne, national chairman of the Volunteers for Nixon - Lodge.

The Louisiana Lawyers for Nixon - Lodge is comprised of attorneys throughout the state from the ranks of Democrats, Republicans and Independents who have organized to support the election of Richard Nixon and Henry Cabot Lodge.

"We are pleased to have as chairman of the Louisiana group a man of Mr. Murchison's excellent experience and legal background," said Rhyne, who is himself an attorney and former president of the American Bar Association.

"His prominence in Louisiana state law circles and as president of the Alexandria Bar Association will be a significant asset in mobilizing the lawyers who believe Richard Nixon's experience and capacity for leadership is essential to the nation's future," said Rhyne.

As president of the Alexandria Bar, Murchison is the winner of the 1960 award of merit for the best local bar association in the state.

He is a former director of the Alexandria Chamber of Commerce and chairman of the Rapides Parish Board of Election Supervisors.

Ike Plays Golf, Inspects Farm

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP) — President Eisenhower got in 18 holes of so-so golf Saturday, but spent much of the day looking over his farm and livestock.

Telegrams still were arriving congratulating Eisenhower upon his 70th birthday Friday—the first man ever to serve to that age as president of the United States.

Eisenhower, who likes to get to the Gettysburg County Club early, was delayed Saturday by a dense fog. He teed off at 10:30 a.m.

Playing with Dick Sleichter, the club pro, and Arthur Nevins, a retired Army brigadier general who oversees the Eisenhower farm, Eisenhower had little luck on the first nine, but his game reportedly was much sharper on the final nine. As usual, his score was not made public.

Discrimination In N.Y.

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) —U. S. sources acknowledged Friday some U. N. delegates from the new African countries are running into racial discrimination in New York. Some delegates have complained that they were having trouble finding housing and in being served in smart East Side restaurants.

The U. S. delegation, these sources said, has appealed to both the New York Real Estate Board and hotel owners to cooperate in government efforts to avoid offending visiting diplomats.

3rd Suspect In Thefts Unannounced

Monroe police yesterday were still investigating the alleged theft of approximately $570 of City school funds by a Negro school principal and the former manager of the Monroe Negro Housing Authority. Chief James C. Kelly Jr. of the Monroe police indicated a third person may be involved in the thefts.

Eluen Homer Hostin Sr., 47, manager of the housing authority, was free after posting a $2,500 bond after his arrest Friday afternoon.

David H. Johnson, 34 - year - old Negro principal of the Carver Elementary School for the past seven years, was arrested an hour earlier than Hostin. He is charged with "misappropriating public funds."

Johnson was transferred to the Ouachita Parish jail late Friday. The sheriff's department said last night he "must have" bonded out because he wasn't in jail.

The third person reportedly involved in the thefts was still unidentified late last night.

Frank F. Smith, executive director of the Negro Housing Authority, said last night that Hostin had been fired from his position at the agency.

Johnson reportedly confessed to the theft at a meeting with Chief Kelly and City School Supt. Van D. Odom. A two-day auditor's investigation brought up irregularities which led to the arrests, police said.

Johnson is suspected of taking between $160 and $170 from the Carver school cafeteria, Odom said. Hostin is believed to have taken approximately $410.

Odom said Johnson had resigned from his position at the school, but formal action will not be taken until a formal meeting of the Ouachita Parish school board.

It was not known how Hostin was involved in the school fund thefts. District Attorney Albin P. Lassiter, has refused to release information on the cases.

According to Odom, Johnson was caught by lunch room auditors while they were making routine checks of the cafeteria's funds.

Morris Armstrong has been named acting principal at Carver school, the Superintendent said.

3 West Monroe Negroes Charged

Three West Monroe Negro men were arrested yesterday and charged with taking $8 from another Negro man who complained of the theft after police had picked him up for public drunkenness.

Gus Bowers, 44-year-old Negro of Calhoun told officers the three Negro men who took the money from him were John S. Loyd, 22, 118 Phillips St., Robert Lee Williams, 26, 800 Ridge Drive and Robert McNeal, 28, Ludwig Street, West Monroe.

Loyd and Williams were arrested immediately after Bowers was picked up. McNeal was appprehended a short while later by West Monroe officers.

Suspect Admits Bank Robbery

ALEXANDRIA, La. (AP) — Chairman Thurston B. Morton of the Republican national committee is expected here for a series of meetings Sunday and Monday.

James H. Boyce, state chairman of "Democrats for Nixon" said Morton will meet with campaign workers Sunday afternoon to hear reports on the Louisiana campaign.

Sessions are being arranged by George B. Hall and J. Charles Burden, co-chairmen of Democrats for Nixon in the 8th congressional district.

Rep. Morton, r-Ky., is to address the Louisiana Retail Food Dealers Association at breakfast Monday morning.

From here, Morton flies to Columbus, Ga., for a campaign talk.

Isle Defense Controversial For 10 Years

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The question of whether the United States would defend the offshore islands of Quemoy and Matsu against a Red Chinese invasion has been a controversial issue for the past 10 years.

Here is what some military and civilian leaders during that period have said about the issue—

June 27, 1950: President Harry S. Truman, saying an attack on Formosa would be "a direct threat to the security of the Pacific area," ordered the 7th Fleet to defend Formosa, but he made no mention of Quemoy and Matsu.

Sept. 29, 1954. Gen. Matthew Ridgway, then Army chief of staff said a decision on defending Quemoy is "an important item of foreign policy and should be made only by my civilian superiors."

Jan. 24, 1955: President Eisenhower said, "I do not suggest that the United States enlarge its defensive obligations beyond Formosa and the Pescadores but unhappily the danger of armed attack directed against that area compels us to take into account closely related localities."

Jan. 28, 1955: Congress approved a resolution authorizing the President to use armed forces to defend Formosa, and also authorized "the securing and protection of such related positions and territories of that area now in friendly hands, and the taking of such other measures as he judges to be required or appropriate in insuring the defense of Formosa."

ALEXANDRIA, La. (AP) — Chairman Thurston B. Morton of the Republican national committee is expected here for a series of meetings Sunday and Monday.

James H. Boyce, state chairman of "Democrats for Nixon" said Morton will meet with campaign workers Sunday afternoon to hear reports on the Louisiana campaign.

Sessions are being arranged by George B. Hall and J. Charles Burden, co-chairmen of Democrats for Nixon in the 8th congressional district.

Rep. Morton, r-Ky., is to address the Louisiana Retail Food Dealers Association at breakfast Monday morning.

From here, Morton flies to Columbus, Ga., for a campaign talk.

Isle Defense Controversial For 10 Years

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The question of whether the United States would defend the offshore islands of Quemoy and Matsu against a Red Chinese invasion has been a controversial issue for the past 10 years.

Here is what some military and civilian leaders during that period have said about the issue—

June 27, 1950: President Harry S. Truman, saying an attack on Formosa would be "a direct threat to the security of the Pacific area," ordered the 7th Fleet to defend Formosa, but he made no mention of Quemoy and Matsu.

Sept. 29, 1954. Gen. Matthew Ridgway, then Army chief of staff said a decision on defending Quemoy is "an important item of foreign policy and should be made only by my civilian superiors."

Jan. 24, 1955: President Eisenhower said, "I do not suggest that the United States enlarge its defensive obligations beyond Formosa and the Pescadores but unhappily the danger of armed attack directed against that area compels us to take into account closely related localities."

Jan. 28, 1955: Congress approved a resolution authorizing the President to use armed forces to defend Formosa, and also authorized "the securing and protection of such related positions and territories of that area now in friendly hands, and the taking of such other measures as he judges to be required or appropriate in insuring the defense of Formosa."

GROUND BREAKING ceremonies were held last Sunday at the site where the new St. Andrews Methodist Church building will be erected at the intersection of Highway 165 and Highway 2. From left are Edward Sackett, treasurer of the building fund; Rannie Terral Construction Company representative Thomas; Harold DeBray, chairman of the building committee, and E. W. Dickey, chairman of the building finance committee. The new church will be a consolodation of First Methodist of Sterlington and Fairbanks Methodist Church. Work on the approximately $60,000 project is scheduled to get under way Monday.

AUBREY G. WALTON

Bishop Walton Will Dedicate Area Church

Bishop Aubrey G. Walton, newly elected head of the Louisiana Area of Methodism, is making his first visit to the Monroe District this week.

He will dedicate the Little Creek Methodist Church in Archibald this morning, and will preach at the First Methodist church in West Monroe this evening. The former service begins at 10:45, and the latter at 7:30.

ELECTED

Bishop Walton was elected to the Episcopacy in June of this year. He was ordained in the Travis Park Methodist Church in San Antonio. A native of Clarksdale, Mississippi, he did his undergraduate work at Hendrix College in Conway, Arkansas.

He earned his bachelor of Divinity Degree from Duke School of Religion, in Durham, North Carolina. He also holds the honorary doctor of divinity degree from Hendrix. For the past 16 years Bishop Walton was pastor of the First Methodist Church in Little Rock, Arkansas.

Mrs. Walton will be with Bishop Walton. They have two children, a daughter, Mrs. Robert Zeigler, El Dorado, Arkansas, and a son James, who graduated from Hendrix College this GROUND BREAKING ceremonies were held last Sunday at the site where the new St. Andrews Methodist Church building will be erected at the intersection of Highway 165 and Highway 2. From left are Edward Sackett, treasurer of the building fund; Rannie Terral Construction Company representative Thomas; Harold DeBray, chairman of the building committee, and E. W. Dickey, chairman of the building finance committee. The new church will be a consolodation of First Methodist of Sterlington and Fairbanks Methodist Church. Work on the approximately $60,000 project is scheduled to get under way Monday.

AUBREY G. WALTON

Bishop Walton Will Dedicate Area Church

Bishop Aubrey G. Walton, newly elected head of the Louisiana Area of Methodism, is making his first visit to the Monroe District this week.

He will dedicate the Little Creek Methodist Church in Archibald this morning, and will preach at the First Methodist church in West Monroe this evening. The former service begins at 10:45, and the latter at 7:30.

ELECTED

Bishop Walton was elected to the Episcopacy in June of this year. He was ordained in the Travis Park Methodist Church in San Antonio. A native of Clarksdale, Mississippi, he did his undergraduate work at Hendrix College in Conway, Arkansas.

He earned his bachelor

BY CONGRESS AUTHORITY

Quemoy-Matsu Defense Powers Now Held By Ike

Editor's Note: Quemoy and Matsu, the off-shore islands of China, have become one of the hottest issues in the presidential battle between Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Senator John F. Kennedy. Relman Morin, writer of this article, has been on the islands and seen the Nationalist defenses. He is a two-time winner of the Pulitzer Prize, with a long experience in China as a former student and reporter there.

By RELMAN MORIN
Associated Press
Special Correspondent

In the last 20 minutes of the flight from Formosa, the Chinese pilot begins wave-hopping.

Flying so low is dangerous. But it is less dangerous than the risk that "Joe" will spot the weary, unarmed old C54 on the way in. "Joe" means the Chinese Communists, all of them.

Now, directly ahead, a picture is taking shape.

In the distance, you see the coastline of Communist China. Fukien province. Wine-blue mountains, heavily forested, and the silvery Min River. On the slopes, the immemorial peasant is picking tea, as always, and planting camphor trees—Only he's a slave now.

In the foreground, you see the island.

It looks like naked rock, at first, tawny as a lion. The spot you are approaching is flat and sandy. Beyond, you can see piles of boulders, rocks the size of circus tents. And beyond them, Mount Taiwu, eyeing the mainland.

As you come nearer, the image softens.

Small farms. A green patchwork of rice paddies and vegetable gardens against the lion-colored boulders. A hospital, a high school, other buildings. A gleaming highway. Rows of acacia and casuarina. Pines on the hillside and bamboo fronds waving beside the farmhouses. Children chasing each other through the trees and over the rocks.

What you can't see is the honeycomb of defenses, cut in living rock. Gun emplacements, ammunition dumps, command posts and air-raid shelters.

This is Quemoy.

This island, along with the Matsu group 120 miles north, has become a hotly fought issue in the election struggle between Vice President Richard Nixon and Senator John F. Kennedy.

Why?

Because the United States is committed to defend Formosa, the big island, 100 miles from the Chinese mainland. Formosa is the stronghold of the Nationalist Chinese government. But the American position with respect to Quemoy and the Matsus is not so clear-cut.

Of them, Kennedy said:

"I think it unwise to take the chance of being dragged into a world war over two islands which are not strategically defensible."

Nixon promptly retorted:

"The Nationalists have these two islands. We should not force our Nationalists to get off them and give them to the Communists. If we do that we start a chain of reaction. For the Communists aren't after Quemoy and Matsu. They are after Formosa."

They fought it out furiously in speeches and in television debates.

The issue has generated the most controversy of any.

How did the United States get into this position?

There are two principal dates.

Dec. 2, 1954—The United States signed a treaty of mutual defense with Chiang Kai-shek, the Nationalist president.

Jan. 24, 1955—President Eisenhower sent a special resolution to Congress, asking authorization to use armed forces to defend Formosa and the Pescadores Islands.

The Senate approved the 1954 treaty. The Senate and House approved the 1955 resolution.

In his message on the resolution, Eisenhower said:

"I do not suggest that the United States enlarge its defensive obligation beyond Formosa and the Pescadores. But unhappily, the danger of armed attack directed against that area compels us to take into account closely related localities and actions, which, under current conditions, might determine the failure or success of such an attack.

"The authority that might be accorded by the Congress would be used only in situations which are recognizable as parts of, definite preliminaries to, an attack against the main positions of Formosa and the Pescadores."

Neither the President nor any other highly placed American official ever said, definitely, that American forces would be ordered to the defense of the offshore islands, in the event of a Red offensive.

In a speech of Sept. 11, 1958, Eisenhower said:

"I assure you that no American boy will ever be asked by me to fight for Quemoy. But those who make up our armed forces—and I believe the American people as a whole—do stand ready to defend the principle that armed force shall not be used for aggressive purposes."

So the position now is that the President has authority from Congress to help defend the islands.

And he must determine whether a Communist attack is "recognizable as part of, definate preliminaries to, an attack against the main positions of Formosa and the Pescadores."

Some day, Kennedy or Nixon may have to make the decision: Are the Chinese Reds after Quemoy and Matsu alone? Or is the attack a "recognizable preliminary" to an attack on Formosa?

Kennedy said:

"I believe we should meet our commitments. And if the Chinese Communists attack the Pescadores and Formosa, they know that it will mean war.

"I would not hand over those islands under any point of a gun. But I merely say that the treaty is quite precise and I sustain the treaty."

On Oct. 7, Nixon said Quemoy and Matsu are not important in themselves. Then he added:

"It is the principle involved. These two islands are in the area of freedom."

In the television debate last Thursday, Nixon brought his position closer to that of administration policy—namely, that if an attack on Quemoy and Matsu is recognized as the beginning of an assault on Formosa and the Pescadores, they will be defended. He went on to say:

"Certainly, we're not going to have peace by giving in and indicating in advance that we're not going to defend what had become a symbol of freedom."

As sparks flew from the collision between Nixon and Kennedy, contradictory opinions came from American military men as to the strategic value of Quemoy and Matsu, and regarding their defensibility.

An angry retort to Kennedy came from Formosa.

Spencer Moosa, Associated Press correspondent on the island, said Nationalist officials interpreted Kennedy's statements to mean that the offshore islands should be abandoned.

A Foreign Office spokesman issued a statement which said in part: "We might do well to make it perfectly clear that under no circumstances would the Republic of China abandon any square inch of its territory to oblige anybody, including the senator."

The statement said no American troops are needed. "We are fully intent to continue to do our own fighting on these islands of ours," it said.

In an interview with Davis Merwin, vice president of the Bloomington, Ill., Pantagraph, Chiang Kai-Shek said:

"The offshore islands form an integral part of the Republic of China and as such, will be defended to the last man.

"What the United States does is its own business. The policy of defending the Republic of China is our own and we shall carry it out even if we have to go it alone."

On Quemoy, the commanders talk confidently. They tell you of previous Communist assaults on the island, some on considerable strength, and how they were beaten off. They say Communist casualties were in the thousands.

What appeared to have been the biggest offensive was mounted in the summer of 1958. At that time, an estimated million Communist infantrymen were massed in Fukien province. Some 320,000 were stationed in position for an assault on Quemoy and Matsu.

At 6 p.m. on August 23, a massive artillery bombardment began. Within two hours, guns ranging up to 152mm, and eight-inch shore rifles, plastered the islands with 57,000 shells.

Next day, 36,000 rounds hit Quemoy. The bombardment continued, without a break, for 44 days, averaging 10,000 shells a day.

Quemoy is so close to the mainland—about three miles—that you can read the street signs in Amoy, using binoculars in the observation post on top of Mount Taiwu.

How did the garrison and civilians survive?

They went into deep shelters in the bowels of the mountain and the other hills.

The officers take you through the network of underground defense positions. You look out, from a huge, man-made cavern, across the beaches, heavily strung with barbed wire and underwater obstacles. A wicked gun, similar to the famous German "88" of World War II, covers the beach and the harbor of Amoy, sighted on a flat trajectory.

There may be more terrible weapons on the islands. The Nationalist officer smilingly duck your questions.

Do frogmen slip over the bay to look around the harbor and the shore? "Well as you can see, it would be only a pleasent dip."

You ask about the morale of the soldiers. "Come and talk to some," the officer says.

At the observation post on top of the mountain, you meet a sergeant from Suiyuan province, far to the north on the rim of the Gobi Desert. He is tall as Gary Cooper, deeply burned by the sun. His father was a land-owner in Suiyuan.

"They killed him for that," he says. "I hope they try to take this island so I can kill them. Oh, yes, there will be a great battle if they come and we will win."

Nasser Warns Israel

ESTIMATE ISSUED

Heavy Presidential State Vote Likely

BATON ROUGE (AP) — More than 670,000 Louisiana voters are expected to go to the polls Nov. 8 to ballot in the presidential election.

This initial estimate, which can be changed by various factors and feints in the immediate weeks ahead, was made by Secretary of State Wade O. Martin's office.

He is the state's chief election office.

Traditionally, Louisiana usually has cast a much lighter ballot for President than for governor. Perhaps that has been because for years Louisiana always voted Democratic.

Recent political history, however, tore the pants off the tradition, for Louisiana voted Democratic only once in the last three presidential elections.

Adlai Stevenson whipped Dwight Eisenhower 345,027 to 306,925 in 1952. The President pocketed Louisiana four years later with an 86,000-vote margin.

Louisiana political leaders are talking about the possibility of a substantial vote this time because of high interest in the John F. Kennedy-Richard M. Nixon showdown.

It would surprise many voters to know the average turnout in Louisiana presidential elections the last five times—covering 20 years—has been 49.1 per cent of the registered vote.

But the heaviest was in 1956, when Eisenhower carried the state. A total 57.1 per cent of the registered vote took part.

Louisiana voted a gigantic 391,791 in the Jan. 19 Democratic runoff for governor, an all-time record vote.

But the presidential vote, heavy as it may be, is not expected to approach that mark.

The major reason is that most voters show up when there are hundreds of races to be settled. That is why a gubernatorial vote always is so heavy.

The local fights will be missing in the presidential showdown. There are 55 constitutional proposals on the ballot, more than ever. But these ballot decisions almost never draw voters in large numbers.

And, with such a large number receiving attention this time, voters are likely to be slowed down.

Demo Report Attacks Ike Regime Acts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democratic Advisory Council said Saturday the Eisenhower administration has ignored a need for protecting and developing the nation's basic natural resources.

The council's Advisory Committee on Natural Resources issued a 37-page report attacking what it described as a resources give-away approach by Republicans and citing Democratic proposals. The latter include a call for development of federal atomic power plants on a "yardstick" basis.

The report said Republicans have "amply demonstrated that they are not aware of the scope and implications of most of the major resource problems which we face, and that they do not care to take vigorous action in the public interest for those that they do perceive."

"Vital existing programs for reforestation, flood control, soil conservation, grazing lands restoration, and fish and wildlife protection have been stifled because of failure to budget adequate funds," it added.

"Oil leases have been granted to political favorites in wildlife refuges which had been purchased with duck stamp funds. Unwarranted mining claims . . . have been allowed in the national forests."

Among other recommendations, the council proposed creation of a national investment fund to finance "prudent and essential resource projects," and a youth conservation program to give young people constructive work in the nation's forests, parks and rangelands.

The council proposed other programs for protection and development of water resources, fish and wildlife, control of pollution of national air and water supplies, outdoor recreational facilities, forests, mines and in the field of atomic and other forms of energy.

The council said atomic power, "created and financed by the people," should be made available from federal nuclear power plants as soon as production costs can be materially reduced.

It proposed amending the atomic energy laws to establish primary federal responsibility "for developing economic nuclear power plants as yardsticks in nuclear power generation."

The committee which prepared the report was headed by C. Girard Davidson of Portland, Ore., former assistant secretary of the interior.

Berry Acreage Set For State

ALEXANDRIA, La. (AP)—The Louisiana Crop Reporting Service Saturday gave the prospective strawberry acreage in Louisiana for harvest in 1961 as 6,900 acres.

This is the same acreage that was set for the 1960 crop, but 23 per cent less than the 1950-59 average.

Plants, generally, are in fair condition. Most of them will be set out in November.

Revised estimates for the 1960 crop indicate Louisiana production at 14,490,000 pounds, or 852,000 crates of 24 pints. This is 2 per cent below the previous year and 28 per cent below the 1949-58 average.

Quemoy-Matsu Defense Powers Now Held By Ike

Editor's Note: Quemoy and Matsu, the off-shore islands of China, have become one of the hottest issues in the presidential battle between Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Senator John F. Kennedy. Relman Morin, writer of this article, has been on the islands and seen the Nationalist defenses. He is a two-time winner of the Pulitzer Prize, with a long experience in China as a former student and reporter there.

By RELMAN MORIN
Associated Press
Special Correspondent

In the last 20 minutes of the flight from Formosa, the Chinese pilot begins wave-hopping.

Flying so low is dangerous. But it is less dangerous than the risk that "Joe" will spot the weary, unarmed old C54 on the way in. "Joe" means the Chinese Communists, all of them.

Now, directly ahead, a picture is taking shape.

In the distance, you see the coastline of Communist China. Fukien province. Wine-blue mountains, heavily forested, and the silvery Min River. On the slopes, the immemorial peasant is picking tea, as always, and planting camphor trees—Only he's a slave now.

In the foreground, you see the island.

It looks like naked rock, at first, tawny as a lion. The spot you are approaching is flat and sandy. Beyond, you can see piles of boulders, rocks the size of circus tents. And beyond them, Mount Taiwu, eyeing the mainland.

As you come nearer, the image softens.

Small farms. A green patchwork of rice paddies and vegetable gardens against the lion-colored boulders. A hospital, a high school, other buildings. A gleaming highway. Rows of acacia and casuarina. Pines on the hillside and bamboo fronds waving beside the farmhouses. Children chasing each other through the trees and over the rocks.

What you can't see is the honeycomb of defenses, cut in living rock. Gun emplacements, ammunition dumps, command posts and air-raid shelters.

This is Quemoy.

This island, along with the Matsu group 120 miles north, has become a hotly fought issue in the election struggle between Vice President Richard Nixon and Senator John F. Kennedy.

Why?

Because the United States is committed to defend Formosa, the big island, 100 miles from the Chinese mainland. Formosa is the stronghold of the Nationalist Chinese government. But the American position with respect to Quemoy and the Matsus is not so clear-cut.

Of them, Kennedy said:

"I think it unwise to take the chance of being dragged into a world war over two islands which are not strategically defensible."

Nixon promptly retorted:

"The Nationalists have these two islands. We should not force our Nationalists to get off them and give them to the Communists. If we do that we start a chain of reaction. For the Communists aren't after Quemoy and Matsu. They are after Formosa."

They fought it out furiously in speeches and in television debates.

The issue has generated the most controversy of any.

How did the United States get into this position?

There are two principal dates.

Dec. 2, 1954—The United States signed a treaty of mutual defense with Chiang Kai-shek, the Nationalist president.

Jan. 24, 1955—President Eisenhower sent a special resolution to Congress, asking authorization to use armed forces to defend Formosa and the Pescadores Islands.

The Senate approved the 1954 treaty. The Senate and House approved the 1955 resolution.

In his message on the resolution, Eisenhower said:

"I do not suggest that the United States enlarge its defensive obligation beyond Formosa and the Pescadores. But unhappily, the danger of armed attack directed against that area compels us to take into account closely related localities and actions, which, under current conditions, might determine the failure or success of such an attack.

"The authority that might be accorded by the Congress would be used only in situations which are recognizable as parts of, definite preliminaries to, an attack against the main positions of Formosa and the Pescadores."

Neither the President nor any other highly placed American official ever said, definitely, that American forces would be ordered to the defense of the offshore islands, in the event of a Red offensive.

In a speech of Sept. 11, 1958, Eisenhower said:

"I assure you that no American boy will ever be asked by me to fight for Quemoy. But those who make up our armed forces—and I believe the American people as a whole—do stand ready to defend the principle that armed force shall not be used for aggressive purposes."

So the position now is that the President has authority from Congress to help defend the islands.

And he must determine whether a Communist attack is "recognizable as part of, definate preliminaries to, an attack against the main positions of Formosa and the Pescadores."

Some day, Kennedy or Nixon may have to make the decision: Are the Chinese Reds after Quemoy and Matsu alone? Or is the attack a "recognizable preliminary" to an attack on Formosa?

Kennedy said:

"I believe we should meet our commitments. And if the Chinese Communists attack the Pescadores and Formosa, they know that it will mean war.

"I would not hand over those islands under any point of a gun. But I merely say that the treaty is quite precise and I sustain the treaty."

On Oct. 7, Nixon said Quemoy and Matsu are not important in themselves. Then he added:

"It is the principle involved. These two islands are in the area of freedom."

In the television debate last Thursday, Nixon brought his position closer to that of administration policy—namely, that if an attack on Quemoy and Matsu is recognized as the beginning of an assault on Formosa and the Pescadores, they will be defended. He went on to say:

Exit Of Paddlewheel Steamer Near

In the colorful saga of America, few stories hold more magical appeal than that of the riverboats of the nation's waterways. In this category the paddlewheel steamboat has held a prominent place for decades.

For many years, the belles among river craft were the gingerbread - trimmed showboats, packetboats and passenger steamers. But holding a place of high esteem and historical importance are the magnificent towboats that have lingered on, even into this age of jet propulsion.

They have given years of efficient service on the rivers while their more frivilous sisters have been replaced in passenger transportation by train, plane, auto and bus.

MAJESTIC

One of the most majestic of these towboats is the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers Steamer Mississippi. Placed in service in 1927, it has plied the muddy waters of the Lower Mississippi River for 33 years.

But a colorful era is passing, and this veteran of the waterways soon will fade from the scene.

Word of this was contained in a recent announcement by the Corps of Engineers that the steamer will be decommissioned during the early part of 1961, and a modern, twin - screw, diesel towboat, now under construction, will replace her.

It will be the fourth engineers craft to bear the name, Mississippi.

The present Steamer Mississippi has had a solid past of work and interesting assignments.

MANY SERVICES

It served as a towboat during the working season when construction of flood control and navigation improvements was underway on the Mississippi River and Tributaries Project.

Her mobile quarters were used by the Mississippi River Commission at least twice a year on inspection trips of the lower Mississippi River. The lounge served as a meeting place for public hearings on matters of flood control and navigation. It made rescue missions during floods.

The steamer reigned for many years as queen of the Texas-deck, sternwheel towboats. It is the last of these romantic, other-age steamers.

The boat is creamy white, with stately twin stacks, amidships pilot-house and long curving sweeps of decks and upperworks. Her paddlewheel kicks up can-can ruffles as she sweeps past modern tows moving up and down river.

The craft's double life as a towboat and inspection steamer is not indicated by its appearance, with a beam of 39 feet and length of 220 feet.

With 850 horsepower, it has a draft of seven feet and eight inches, displacing 983 long tons, and is third in the line of steamers bearing the name Mississippi which have served the Corps of Engineers since 1882 when the first steamer was placed in commission.

Designed in 1926 for the purpose of handling only the semi-annual commission trips (highwater inspection trip in spring and low-water inspection in the fall), it was modeled after the typical Texas - deck sternwheel packetboat.

COPY

Outward features are an exact copy of packets operating on the Mississippi River more than 100 years ago. In 1932, changes were made in deck and wheel to make the steamer suitable for towing barges.

This was in the nature of an experiment, since it wasn't known if the Grande Dame could even push a barge. The experiment paid off. It established an outstanding record as a towboat, and was without peer as a rescue boat.

During the flood of 1937 it combed the lowland areas and rescued many persons from the raging waters of the mighty river. Assignments have been varied, from pushing barges of riprap for revetment to towing barges of fuel oil for the Engineers' river work.

During inspection trips passengers enjoyed the luxury of the gleaming staterooms while the steamer was pushing as many as 16 barges before its workhorse bow.

While the outward typical packet appearance of the steamer has been preserved major mechanical improvements have kept pace with changing conditions through the years.

The refrigerating plant installed on the first Mississippi in 1908, still operates 24 hours a day. The original big bell and engine room signal bell pulls still are in use.

The steamer had several masters during her first years. The late Captain Bennie Bernstein, who enjoyed being referred to as "the only Jewish steamboat pilot on the river," was master from 1931 to 1946. During this time the Mississippi served in the Vicksburg New Orleans Engineer Districts, and finally the Memphis District, its present connection.

PRESENT MASTER

From 1946 until the present, Captain David M. Cook has been master. As a third generation of a family of rivermen, he became a deckhand on a riverboat in 1929.

Three years later, after passing a stiff examination in which he drew from memory the entire lower Mississippi River from Cairo to the Gulf of Mexico, putting in every bend, daymarker, light and sandbar, he became a river pilot. In 1946 he rose to master of the Steamer Mississippi, which he describes as a "true queen."

The steamer has had noble ancestors. In 1879, to meet the growing need for improving the Mississippi River for navigation and flood control, Congress created the Mississippi River Commission.

In 1881 the Commission was authorized $45,000 to obtain an inspection steamer, which was built in St. Louis, and named the Steamer Mississippi. It was placed in service in 1882.

April 28 of that year, the River Commission held its first executive session on shipboard. This month the seven - man commission, with Maj. Gen. T. A. Lane as president, will mark its 261st session, and the last to be held aboard the present Steamer Mississippi.

The 1882 ancestor of the present steamer was 174 feet long, 32 feet across the beam, with a hull depth of six feet. The hull was constructed of wrought iron.

It had two batteries of Western River type boilers, three boilers to a battery, each 40 inches in diameter by 28 feet in length. The Rees propelling engines were taken from an unknown sidewheel steamboat.

Each engine had an individual "ship-up" which required the engineer to have a helper to assist in shifting from ahead to astern. The engines were non - condensing with a stroke of seven feet, 20 inch diameter cylinders. The paddlewheel was of the staggered bucket type.

ACCLAIMED

Steamboat men acclaimed the vessel for its beautiful lines, for its smooth running with no vibration and the sturdy wrought iron hull which had no need of braces or hog chains.

In January, 1893, when the boat was moored at Paducah, Ky., fire destroyed its superstructure to the main deck line. Flames were halted by the local fire department since the steamer was moored close to the bank by steel cables.

The charred boat was towed to St. Louis for repairs and construction of a new cabin.

From the year of reconstruction through 1918, the first Steamer Mississippi was used by the River Commission to make its spring and fall inspection trips from St. Louis to New Orleans.

President Theodore Roosevelt made an inspection trip on the craft in 1907, from Cairo, Ill., to New Orleans. In 1909, President William Howard Taft climbed aboard at Columbus, Ky., and made the last lap of an inspection trip which ended in New Orleans.

In 1919, it was decided the steamer should serve in a different role. It was transferred to what is now the U. S. Army Engineer District at Memphis, Tenn. There it was converted into a towboat and renamed the Piomingo.

Several years later it was declared unserviceable as a towboat, stripped and used as a barge until 1928. The hull still remains in service under the ownership of a Memphis company.

The Steamer Leota, a dredgetender built in 1899, was selected for conversion to an inspection boat by the River Commission in 1920. It was the fastest of a group of five towboats serving in the Memphis district.

SPEEDY

It was speedy enough to overtake and pass the famous old packet, Kate Adams, the only towboat ever to accomplish this feat. The Leota was stripped, her hull and machinery sent to New Orleans where new boilers were installed and a new cabin completed in 1922.

It then was renamed the Steamer Mississippi, the second to bear the name. It was declared no longer serviceable in 1926.

The present, and third, Steamer Mississippi was constructed in 1927 on the Ohio River. The cabin built in New Orleans in 1922 for the Leota, was transferred to the new boat. It was given a new hull, a new set of boilers and new propelling engines.

In 1931, monkey rudders were added, the bow reworked and towing knees installed. This marked the beginning of the steamer's dual role as a towboat and inspection craft.

The staggered paddlewheel was replaced by a conventional paddle in 1933. The following year, steel tubular pitmans were designed, constructed and installed, and the forward Texas extended as a permanent part of the upperworks.

So, the present Mississippi is made up of parts from two preceding steamers with various improvements added as necessary.

The "Queen of the Mississippi" in her travels has worked the 1,000 miles of the lower river below Cairo, 200 miles of the upper Mississippi, over 100 miles up the Missouri and Ohio Rivers, part of the White River, all of the Atchafalaya River, and 100 miles of the Intracoastal Canal from Morgan City to New Orleans.

WORKING GIRL

Officials in the Corps of Engineers said, "She has been a working girl a long, long time. In fact, she's been working so long that she's ready to retire."

She has had many moments of distinction, they said, "for she has acted as proud hostess to numerous senators, congressmen, assistant secretaries of the Army, the chief of engineers, and other high ranking officials."

The steamer also has been featured on national television shows.

In speaking of the coming decommissioning of the Steamer Mississippi, Corps of Engineers officials said, "The rigid, unsentimental code of the Army takes the official attitude that the Mississippi will remain in retrospect just another in a long line of work boats employed by the Corps of Engineers in accomplishing its task of controlling and improving the Mighty Mississippi River."

Ingalls Shipbuilding Corporation at its Pascagoula, Miss. yard is now constructing a modern, twinscrew, diesel towboat which will replace the present steamer.

Something will be missing when the frothy wake churned up by the third Steamer Mississippi's paddlewheel is no longer seen on the river. Her passing will mark the end of an era, for her counterpart will never again be found gliding over the inland waterways of America.

INDUSTRIALIST, PHILANTHROPIST

Financial Success

By A. F. MAHAN

FLINT, Mich. (AP)—He isn't widely known outside his home town but Charles Stewart Mott has one of the nation's most remarkable financial success stories.

At 85 Mott has more money than most people ever dream of—and he's still making it.

The Flint industrialist, financier and philanthropist is a stockholder in several corporations and his holding in just one—General Motors—are worth more than $100 million.

Dividends alone from his 2,458,000 GM shares tote up to some $5 million dollars a year.

Mott won't say what he's worth. Questions about that get the reply, "It doesn't matter. What matters is what a man does with what he's worth."

Under the crest of his family motto is "Spectamur Agendo." That translates, he says, into: "Known by our deeds," not, he adds, "by our assets."

ONE OF FEW

He is one of the very few surviving automotive pioneers. He started in bicycle wheels; switched to automobile wheels with the coming of the horseless carriage. He has been a General Motors director since 1913; was a GM vice president from 1916 to 1937.

What do you do when you're 85 and have it made?

Mott is a busy man. He rises at 7:30 a.m. and breakfasts at 8 while reading the newspaper and listening to newscasts. His "home secretary" arrives at 9 and Mott dictates until 10, then repacks the briefcase he brought home the night before and goes to his office downtown.

He heads for home at 4 p.m. after a day spent making more money through sound investments —and giving away big hunks of what he makes through his Mott Foundation.

This still erect, mustachioed 6-footer, with craggy features under bushy gray eyebrows, once couldn't scrape up enough cash to meet his bills. But he says he's never met an adversity he didn't overcome.

The financial panic of 1907 all but washed out his wheelmaking business. Order cancellations tumbled in, bill payments lagged. Finally Mott induced those who owed him to give him notes. These, in turn, he endorsed and gave to his own creditors.

Two years later General Motors bought a 49 per cent interest in his firm for $1,481,00 worth of GM stock. And in 1913 — before there was an income tax — Mott turned over controlling interest for another chunk of GM stock.

In 1929 trusted officers in a bank of which he was chairman of the board speculated in stocks. The market crash sent $3,592,000 in bank funds cascading down the drain.

Mott was under no legal obligation. But he made good the shortage out of his own pocket.

While he has associated with captains of industry and finance most of his life, he feels as much at home with men in overalls. He holds a life membership in Flint Local 1052 of the AFL-CIO Painters Union.

TORNADO

An awesome tornado hit Flint June 8, 1953. It killed 116 people in leveling a three-mile strip. The debris cleared, Flint promoted "Operation Tornado." Volunteers marched into the stricken area and in two days they rebuilt more than 50 homes.

It was the middle of a sizzling hot afternoon when someone recognized a carpenter's helper under a beat-up hat as C.S. Mott. He was then 78 and had brought along his hammer and saw. He was sorely embarrassed when reporters and photographers trooped up.

"I can't understand what all the fuss is about," he protested. "I'm doing just what I figured everybody in Flint was doing today. It's what every good neighbor ought to be doing."

Union painters on the scene agreed and made Mott one of them.

Flint has been called the town that Mott built. He turns over to his Mott Foundation 20 to 30 per cent of his income for community projects.

Foundation policy says: "We cannot scatter our resources and efforts in supporting activities outside Flint, however meritorious these outside activities may be."

Flint is building a $20-million cultural center on 40 acres of Mott-donated land. On the site are Mott-financed buildings worth $3½ million — a library, a Flint branch of the University of Michigan and a junior college of science and applied arts center.

Each year the foundation puts more than a million dollars into the so-called Mott Program which utilizes public school buildings as community clubs.

900 COURSES

The program offers 900 different courses in adult education as well as recreation facilities for boys and girls. One indication of its effectiveness: Genese (Flint) County is Michigan's second largest in population but ranks 25th in juvenile delinquency.

Mott says he set up his foundation in his own lifetime "because I had observed how many well-intended ideas and plans went astray after a man's death."

It has stepped outside Flint once, to pay for a $1,300,000 building at the University of Chicago for the study of basic economics. Mott thinks there are too many "left-handed economists" in college teaching ranks.

"Some economists argue whether lower buying power of the dollar is inflation or the result of inflation. Who the hell cares? We've got it. What we need from them is the meat of the coconut —how to cure it."

SIX CHILDREN

Mott, father of six children, learned to play tennis at 50 and gave it up reluctantly at 75 on doctor's orders. But he still rides horseback and drives his own car.

He realizes rules and regulations in industry are different now from the days when he made his fortune.

"But opportunity is not closed," he says. "Companies are being formed and things invented right now that will grow and some men will grow with them.

Exit Of Paddlewheel Steamer Near

In the colorful saga of America, few stories hold more magical appeal than that of the riverboats of the nation's waterways. In this category the paddlewheel steamboat has held a prominent place for decades.

For many years, the belles among river craft were the gingerbread - trimmed showboats, packetboats and passenger steamers. But holding a place of high esteem and historical importance are the magnificent towboats that have lingered on, even into this age of jet propulsion.

They have given years of efficient service on the rivers while their more frivilous sisters have been replaced in passenger transportation by train, plane, auto and bus.

MAJESTIC

One of the most majestic of these towboats is the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers Steamer Mississippi. Placed in service in 1927, it has plied the muddy waters of the Lower Mississippi River for 33 years.

But a colorful era is passing, and this veteran of the waterways soon will fade from the scene.

Word of this was contained in a recent announcement by the Corps of Engineers that the steamer will be decommissioned during the early part of 1961, and a modern, twin - screw, diesel towboat, now under construction, will replace her.

It will be the fourth engineers craft to bear the name, Mississippi.

The present Steamer Mississippi has had a solid past of work and interesting assignments.

MANY SERVICES

It served as a towboat during the working season when construction of flood control and navigation improvements was underway on the Mississippi River and Tributaries Project.

Her mobile quarters were used by the Mississippi River Commission at least twice a year on inspection trips of the lower Mississippi River. The lounge served as a meeting place for public hearings on matters of flood control and navigation. It made rescue missions during floods.

The steamer reigned for many years as queen of the Texas-deck, sternwheel towboats. It is the last of these romantic, other-age steamers.

The boat is creamy white, with stately twin stacks, amidships pliot-house and long curving sweeps of decks and upperworks. Her paddlewheel kicks up can-can ruffles as she sweeps past modern tows moving up and down river.

The craft's double life as a towboat and inspection steamer is not indicated by its appearance, with a beam of 39 feet and length of 220 feet.

With 850 horsepower, it has a draft of seven feet and eight inches, displacing 983 long tons, and is third in the line of steamers bearing the name Mississippi which have served the Corps of Engineers since 1882 when the first steamer was placed in commission.

Designed in 1926 for the purpose of handling only the semiannual commission trips (highwater inspection trip in spring and low-water inspection in the fall), it was modeled after the typical Texas - deck sternwheel packetboat.

COPY

Outward features are an exact copy of packets operating on the Mississippi River more than 100 years ago. In 1932, changes were made in deck and wheel to make the steamer suitable for towing barges.

This was in the nature of an experiment, since it wasn't known if the Grande Dame could even push a barge. The experiment paid off. It established an outstanding record as a towboat, and was without peer as a rescue boat.

During the flood of 1937 it combed the lowland areas and rescued many persons from the raging waters of the mighty river. Assignments have been varied, from pushing barges of riprap for revetment to towing barges of fuel oil for the Engineers' river work.

During inspection trips passengers enjoyed the luxury of the gleaming staterooms while the steamer was pushing as many as 16 barges before its workhorse bow.

While the outward typical packet appearance of the steamer has been preserved major mechanical improvements have kept pace with changing conditions through the years.

The refrigerating plant installed on the first Mississippi in 1908, still operates 24 hours a day. The original big bell and engine room signal bell pulls still are in use.

The steamer had several masters during her first years. The late Captain Bennie Bernstein, who enjoyed being referred to as "the only Jewish steamboat pilot on the river," was master from 1931 to 1946. During this time the Mississippi served in the Vicksburg New Orleans Engineer Districts, and finally the Memphis District, its present connection.

PRESENT MASTER

From 1946 until the present, Captain David M. Cook has been master. As a third generation of a family of rivermen, he became a deckhand on a riverboat in 1929.

Three years later, after passing a stiff examination in which he drew from memory the entire lower Mississippi River from Cairo to the Gulf of Mexico, putting in every bend, daymarker, light and sandbar, he became a river pilot. In 1946 he rose to master of the Steamer Mississippi, which he describes as a "true queen."

The steamer has had noble ancestors. In 1879, to meet the growing need for improving the Mississippi River for navigation and flood control, Congress created the Mississippi River Commission.

In 1881 the Commission was authorized $45,000 to obtain an inspection steamer, which was built in St. Louis, and named the Steamer Mississippi. It was placed in service in 1882.

April 28 of that year, the River Commission held its first executive session on shipboard. This month the seven - man commission, with Maj. Gen. T. A. Lane as president, will mark its 261st session, and the last to be held aboard the present Steamer Mississippi.

The 1882 ancestor of the present steamer was 174 feet long, 32 feet across the beam, with a hull depth of six feet. The hull was constructed of wrought iron.

It had two batteries of Western River type boilers, three boilers to a battery, each 40 inches in diameter by 28 feet in length. The Rees propelling engines were taken from an unknown sidewheel steamboat.

Each engine had an individual "ship-up" which required the engineer to have a helper to assist in shifting from ahead to astern. The engines were non - condensing with a stroke of seven feet, 20 inch diameter cylinders. The paddlewheel was of the staggered bucket type.

ACCLAIMED

Steamboat men acclaimed the vessel for its beautiful lines, for its smooth running with no vibration and the sturdy wrought iron hull which had no need of braces or hog chains.

In January, 1893, when the boat was moored at Paducah, Ky., fire destroyed its superstructure to the main deck line. Flames were halted by the local fire department since the steamer was moored close to the bank by steel cables.

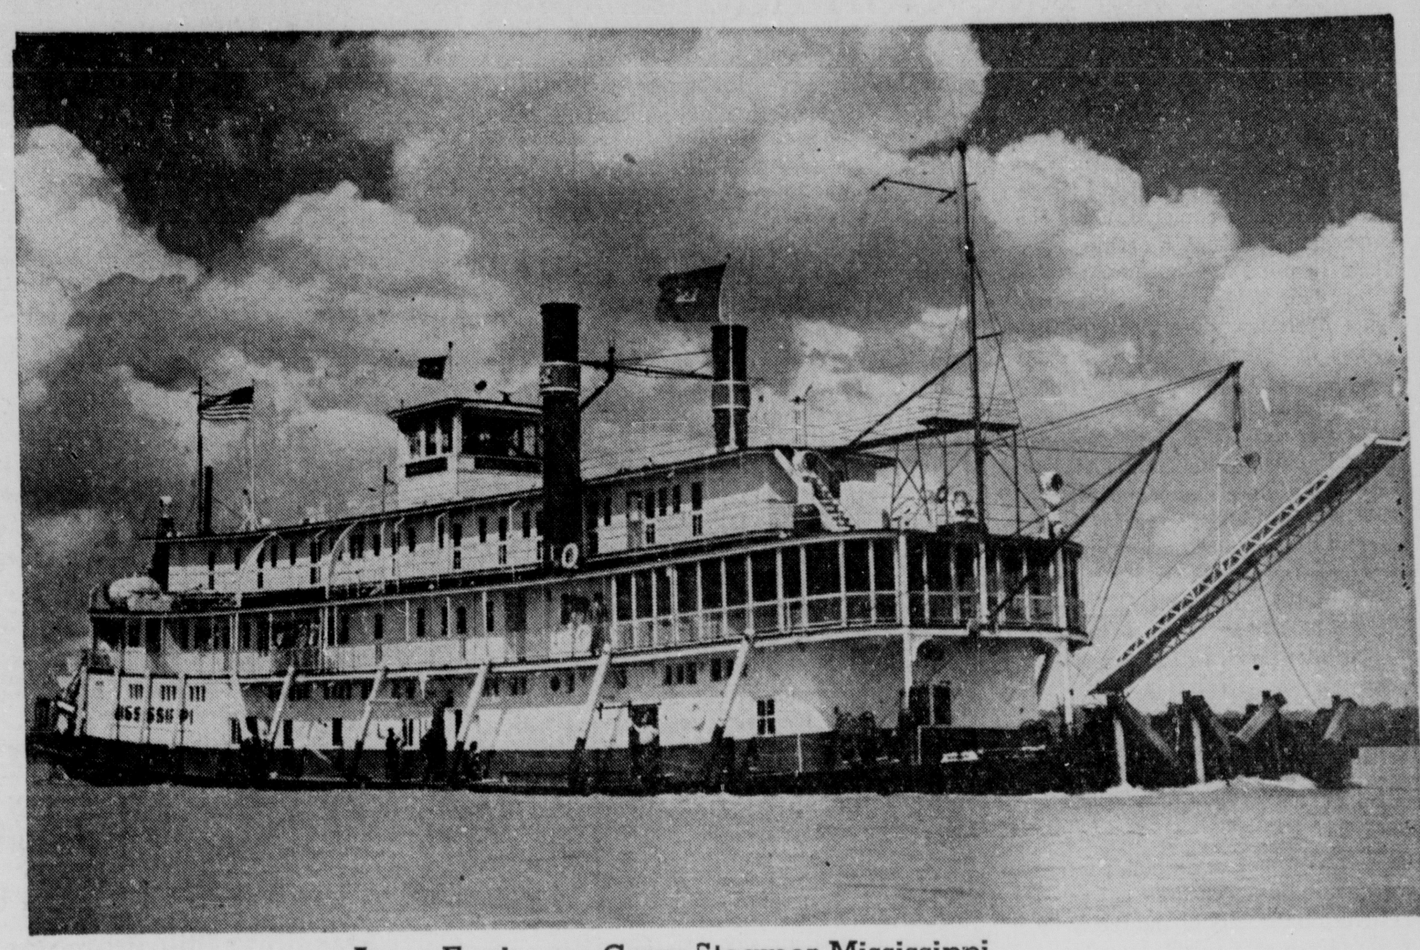
The charred boat was towed to St. Louis for repairs and construction of a new cabin.

From the year of reconstruction through 1918, the first Steamer Mississippi was used by the River Commission to make its spring and fall inspection trips from St. Louis to New Orleans.

President Theodore Roosevelt made an inspection trip on the craft in 1907, from Cairo, Ill., to New Orleans. In 1909, President William Howard Taft climbed aboard at Columbus, Ky., and made the last lap of an inspection trip which ended in New Orleans.

In 1919, it was decided the steamer should serve in a different role. It was transferred to what is now the U. S. Army Engineer District at Memphis, Tenn. There it was converted into a towboat and renamed the Piomingo.

Several years later it was declared unserviceable as a towboat, stripped and used as a barge until 1928. The hull still remains in service under the ownership of a Memphis company.



Army Engineers Corps Steamer Mississippi

The Steamer Leota, a dredgetender built in 1899, was selected for conversion to an inspection boat by the River Commission in 1920. It was the fastest of a group of five towboats serving in the Memphis district.

SPEEDY

It was speedy enough to overtake and pass the famous old packet, Kate Adams, the only towboat ever to accomplish this feat. The Leota was stripped, her hull and machinery sent to New Orleans where new boilers were installed and a new cabin completed in 1922.

It then was renamed the Steamer Mississippi, the second to bear the name. It was declared no longer serviceable in 1926.

The present, and third, Steamer Mississippi was constructed in 1927 on the Ohio River. The cabin built in New Orleans in 1922 for the Leota, was transferred to the new boat. It was given a new hull, a new set of boilers and new propelling engines.

In 1931, monkey rudders were added, the bow reworked and towing knees installed. This marked the beginning of the steamer's dual role as a towboat and inspection craft.

The staggered paddlewheel was replaced by a conventional paddle in 1933. The following year, steel tubular pitmans were designed, constructed and installed, and the forward Texas extended as a permanent part of the upperworks.

So, the present Mississippi is made up of parts from two preceding steamers with various improvements added as necessary.

The "Queen of the Mississippi" in her travels has worked the 1,000 miles of the lower river below Cairo, 200 miles of the upper Mississippi, over 100 miles up the Missouri and Ohio Rivers, part of the White River, all of the Atchafalaya River, and 100 miles of the Intracoastal Canal from Morgan City to New Orleans.

WORKING GIRL

Officials in the Corps of Engineers said, "She has been a working girl a long, long time. In fact, she's been working so long that she's ready to retire."

She has had many moments of distinction, they said, "for she has acted as proud hostess to numerous senators, congressmen, assistant secretaries of the Army, the chief of engineers, and other high ranking officials."

La. Oil And Gas Industry And The Two Candidates

Any discussion of the oil and gas industry of Louisiana and Texas - - or other Southern states - - in relation to policies concerning it expressed during the present campaign by Vice President Nixon and Senator Kennedy should be approached only with these two facts in mind:

1. The 27½ per cent oil and gas depletion allowance for income tax purposes is part of an established federal tax principle, established by Congress, that when a person derives income through selling his CAPITAL - - as with oil, gas and other minerals which are depleted by each sale - - he should have a special income tax depletion allowance. It is not a "tax loophole." Congress has placed more than 100 such allowances in the tax laws.

Further, this allowance is not merely a benefit for producers of oil and gas. The industry in Louisiana alone employs 88,000 persons which, when families are included, means that the welfare of more than half a million persons - - and their purchasing power - - is affected directly or indirectly by the welfare of Louisiana's oil and gas industry.

In Texas the oil and gas industry employs 229,000 persons. With their families, the welfare of nearly 1,000,000 persons is affected directly or indirectly by the welfare of the Texas oil and gas industry.

2. The tidelands question - - whether certain offshore mineral deposits belong to the state or the federal government - - does not concern the oil and gas industry, financially. Producers pay bonuses and costs of leases, either to federal or state government and do not care which. But every individual in Louisiana is affected by this problem. Without at least some tidelands revenue, Louisiana soon may have to find new revenues by new taxes, or cut the amount of present state services to the people.

Because of these things, the fact that Mr. Nixon stands on the side of the Southern oil and gas states, and Mr. Kennedy does not, is of vital importance in the presidential election.

Frank B. Ellis of New Orleans, State Campaign Director for the Kennedy-Johnson ticket, and others associated with him have sent a letter to all prominent oil and gas producers stating that Senator Kennedy is committed to - - quoting from the letter "(a) . . . the preservation of the depletion allowance; and (b) the equitable equalization of Louisiana offshore boundaries."

Neither statement is correct.

Both carry inferences that are false.

Senator Kennedy himself, in last Thursday's air debate with Mr. Nixon, blew sky high any contention that he stands for "preservation of the depletion allowance," at its present 27½ per cent.

The Ellis letter, which states that he and Congressman Hale Boggs, New Orleans Democrat, "succeeded in obtaining an affirmative commitment as to the oil situation" by Senator Kennedy, was based on a taped TV interview with the Democratic nominee, made by a New Orleans television station for distribution in Louisiana - - and possibly in other Southern states where it might be valuable.

In that interview Mr. Kennedy states specifically that he does not believe the oil and gas depletion allowance should be abolished, but that he does think it should be reduced - - although he agreed that "a case can be made" to keep it as it is. But Mr. Kennedy voted in Congress to reduce the allowance from 27½ per cent to 15 per cent through a sliding scale - - and he still stands for reduction, as he now twice has made clear on the air.

On tidelands (which did not come up in the air debate), Mr. Kennedy says in the special taped interview that he would sign "equitable" tidelands legislation, but he does not say what he means by "equitable." Several Texas sources have raised the point that Mr. Kennedy's statement could mean trying to reduce the 10½ miles offshore area which the Supreme Court has granted Texas and Florida, rather than increasing the 3½ miles offshore granted Louisiana. Or what Louisiana has now - - which is virtually nothing - - could be called "equitable."

In other words, the taped interview seems to be very much of a bunch of double-talk put forth in the hope of deceiving the oil and gas industry in Louisiana and elsewhere.

In last Thursday's air debate with Mr. Nixon, Mr. Kennedy said he would look into the depletion allowance if elected. He gave no indication of supporting the President's 27½ allowance -- as did Mr. Nixon.

Since Mr. Kennedy also voted against the Gulf states on tidelands bills in Congress - - along with his vote to cut the depletion allowance -- there is little question that the welfare of the oil and gas industry and its tens of thousands of employes and their families in the Gulf states certainly rests with election of Mr. Nixon.

Mr. Nixon has stated three times during this campaign that he stands for retention of the 27½ per cent depletion allowance. He voted consistently in Congress for the rights of the Gulf states in all tidelands issues. He has demonstrated his position on such issues in both words and actions - - over and over.

Khrush's Leaving Relief

Soviet Premier Khrushchev's big turbojet once again has carried its principal passenger safely back to Moscow. New York policemen assigned to guard the No. 1 Communist while in the United States cheered with relief when the big airplane cleared Idlewild Airport.

His mission to the United Nations was a failure. As a matter of fact, Khrushchev has put up a poor performance with the tough tactics he has employed since the ill-fated Paris conference last May.

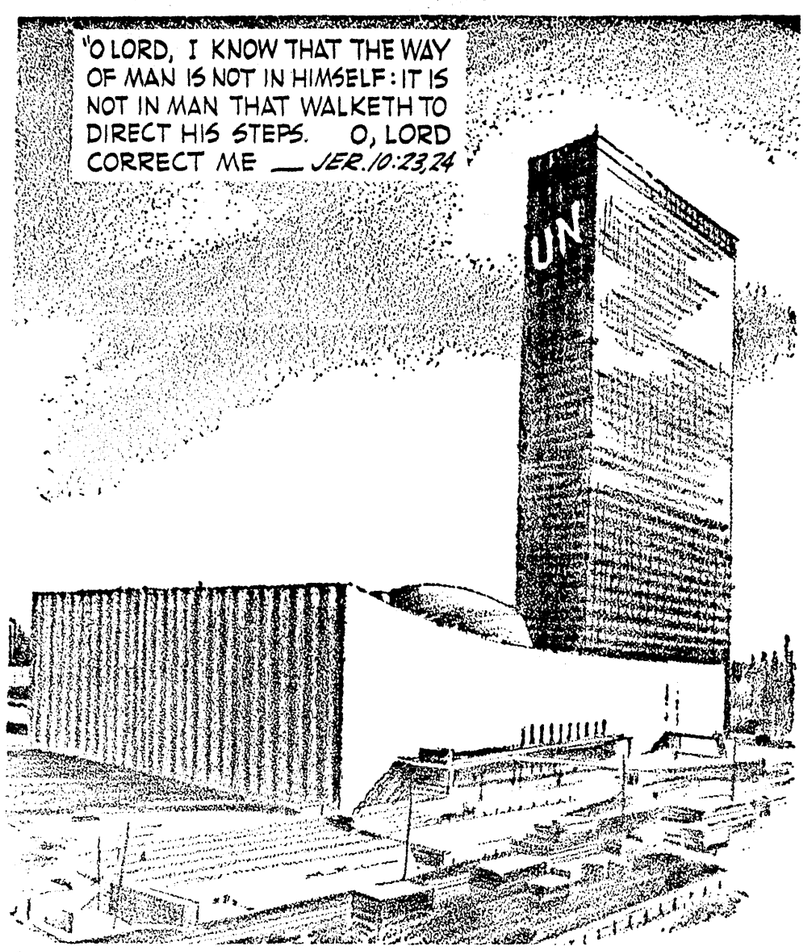
Some observers, noting the Russian dictator's change of heart from peaceful coexistence to a "fighting mad" attitude, believe Khrushchev was told about a year ago to get tough or get out.

These conclusions are supported by two subsequent happenings Red China never has gone along with Khrushchev's denunciation of Stalin and the window dressing of "peace." Also, the highly astute Russian minister, Molotov, whom Khrushchev put in political banishment near the Chinese border, has been called back to the Russian embassy at Vienna.

In other words, the Marxist line of "fight capitalism all the way" may be on the verge of replacing the Khrushchev "experiment" with its strategy of peaceful co - existence. If this is true, Khrushchev may well be on the way out. Of course, this development would not take place immediately just as the ousting of Marshal Bulganin was no sudden move.

Along with possible party resentment against Khrushchev, there was also fear in the Russian military machine over the U-2 flights over Russian soil. When it was definitely established that the high-flying ships were invading Soviet air space, Khrushchev's opponents were able to blame him personally. It was at this time he decided on the "get tough" policy, hoping to frighten the west and keep his own enemies in the party off his neck.

Prayer For Progress



GEORGE SOKOLSKY

War Today Is Continuous

Khrushchev Lost Battle Of 1960 In United Nations General Assembly; Still Promotes World Unrest

Khrushchev, it appears, lost the 1960 battle in the General Assembly of the United Nations. That does not at all mean that he lost the Cold War.

The nature of war has changed radically in recent years. When we think of war, what arises in our memories is shot and shell, cities destroyed, human beings left homeless, blood and death on all sides.

Today war is continuous. It utilizes altogether new techniques, not only such as missiles, rockets, biological and chemical devices, but since one of the objects of wars, as Clausewitz, the greatest theoretician of war, has pointed out, is for one nation to impose its will upon another, technical methods have been devised to achieve this without shot and shell.

Clausewitz makes the point:

". . . War is an act of force, and to the application of that force there is no limit. Each of the adversaries forces the hand of the other, and a reciprocal action results which in theory can have no limit . . ."

But force is of many natures. For instance, the systematic destruction of the value of a people is a more subtle form of force than killing a division of men, but it nonetheless is an act of war. Soviet Russia, which has adopted what has come to be called Aesopian language, uses the word peace to describe warlike acts which are of the new techniques that do not require shot and shell. For instance, intellectual subversion, which is a method for changing the thought processes of generations, is a technique of war. Its object is to destroy the will to resist an enemy.

Karl von Clausewitz states that war is a political act. Even more, he found the law that war is a political act but that it is one that is carried out by other means. He said:

". . . What now still remains peculiar to war relates merely to the peculiar character of the means it uses. The art of war in general and the commander in each particular case can demand that the tendencies and designs of policy shall be not incompatible with these means, and the claim is certainly no trifling one. But however powerfully it may react on political designs in particular cases, still it must always be regarded as only a modification of them; for the political design is the object, while war is the means, and the means can never be thought of apart from the object."

Clausewitz has had an enormous influence upon Russian thinking and in the development of the Cold War, his classic on war has served them as a guide. For the Cold War is nothing more than war by wholly new methods and by old methods adapted to new times.

Khrushchev came to this session of the General Assembly of the United Nations not to discuss the China question or disarmament or the future of Dag Hammarskjold but to fight a battle of the Cold War, as he did in Paris. His immediate objective was to impress the small nations, particularly those of Africa and Asia, with the strength of Soviet Russia and the futility of the United States. He brought with him all his pro-consuls and added to them the mighty neutrals who live in fear of his power. It was a very impressive performance which Khrushchev spoiled by his natural vulgarity. Nevertheless, the impression he made may be advantageous next year.

Khrushchev is more able in directing the Cold War than Stalin was. Stalin was a revolutionist who only understood direct and immediate action. Khrushchev is a product of a post-revolutionary era and his techniques are less sudden. He is in no hurry. As he is conducting a war, he recognizes that it is unimportant to win a battle; it is only important to win the war. Success in war means the total destruction of an enemy's will to resist. Khrushchev understands that economic warfare can lead to more permanent destruction of the will to resist than a military battle. In the present situation in the United States, for instance, gold is a superior weapon to a bomb; or if it is a bomb we think significant, the Congo is worth more than East Germany, for the Congo's minerals, particularly uranium, are invaluable.

It is necessary to recognize the nature of the Cold War to understand what is happening.

How Do You Stand, Sir?

By U.S. Senator Barry Goldwater

The other day I heard a novelty popular song satirizing that election year admonition to "get out and vote."

Women's clubs and service clubs and various non-partisan community organizations place considerable emphasis on their election year attempts to "get out the vote."

With all due respect to these organizations for their dedicated efforts, I would suggest the responsibility of citizenship cannot be discharged by either "getting out and voting" or "getting out the vote."

What is required here, in my opinion, is first of all that we become an informed participant in the election process.

Some years ago, in a campaign for the Senate conducted in a southern state, the successful candidate attacked his opponent as a man who had deceived the voters, who secretly longed to practice nepotism, whose wife was a thespian. . .and then he demanded to know if the voters were aware his opponent once matriculated.

The absurdity here may be beyond your belief. It seems impossible that in 20th-century America such words as nepotism, thespian and matriculated could be so employed as to imply a sinister aspect to a political candidate. Yet I assure you, competent political observers attribute the defeat of the unsuccessful candidate to the fact that the voters who did not understand these words accepted them as being extremely derogatory.

I am constantly dismayed at the trivial reasons advanced by some citizens for marking their ballots in a certain way. . ."My father was a life-long Democrat." In the past 30 years we have witnessed the Democrat Party shift from a position supporting states rights and individual sovereignty to become the most articulate advocate of the superstate. The Republican Party, which once advocated a strong central government, has clearly recognized the danger of the central government becoming too strong.

It seems to me the Republic is in far greater danger from those who exercise the privilege of voting in an off-hand casual manner than from those who merely ignore the process altogether.

It is an honor and a privilege to be a citizen of this Republic. To be born an American makes us the envy of half the world. There is, it seems to me, a continuing responsibility to become an active, informed participant in the process of self-government.

The candidate's winning smile or wavy hair or ingratiating television performance really has no bearing at all on the candidate's understanding of the responsibility of his office or his ability to perform the duties of that office.

Unfortunately, these campaigns to "just get out the vote" increase the possibility that our national decision will merely announce the results of a popularity contest, rather than reflect a thoughtful judgment on the proper governmental philosophy.

I am in complete accord with those who argue that it is the responsibility of every citizen to register his or her opinion at the polls. To this argument I would add: it is also the responsibility of every citizen to seek to understand and evaluate the prevailing issues which separate the contenders and then to reach a sober, value judgment based on the voter's personal opinion of which candidate and which philosophy offers the best chance for preserving the Republic, maintaining freedom and providing a better tomorrow.

In this age of the cold war and the hydrogen bomb those into whose hands we place the responsibility of government may also determine whether or not the world, as we know it, will survive. How do you stand, sir?

HUGO, Okla. (AP) — A quick-shooting state highway patrolman killed a 700-pound lion which roared and lunged at him in a desperate bid for freedom here Friday night.

Troper Al Hadley stopped the beast with one shot from a .44 magnum pistol.

The lion broke loose from its cage at a trailer community near here. For two hours it stalked a fairground area. Finally it was cornered by a posse in a horse barn.

SICKENED BY SPECTACLE

Monroe, La.

To The Editor:

I saw a political spectacle on TV last Sunday that really made me sick.

Reference is made to the appearance of Lyndon Johnson on "Face the Nation." He made the very misleading statement, and repeated it, that whereas Kennedy voted over 700 times on bills in the last Congress, Mr. Nixon only voted on seven bills.

Johnson knows, and all informed people know, that Mr. Nixon as the presiding officer of the Senate does not vote except on those rare occasions when there is a tie vote and there were just seven such occasions in the last Congress. This was done to create the impression that Nixon was not on the job and is gutter politics. This type of politics is done solely to mislead people who do not know much about Senate procedures.

Who would want a vice-president who deliberately spreads lies?

I was surprised to have read in the recent afternoon edition of your paper that Khrushchev broke bread with some capitalists over 15 carat dinner plates, what an abominable hypocrite.

So Mr. Cyrus Eaton thinks we can coexist with Russia, yes, that is possible on Communist terms. Some of those guests that attended the dinner for Khrushchev given by Mr. Eaton ought to be ashamed of their being present at this function, no wonder they asked that their names be kept anonymous.

I would recommend a must reading by Mr. Eaton pamphlets Nos. one and three of Communist Training Operations which was brought out at the hearings held before the Committee on Un-American Activities by Congressman Francis E. Walter, chairman, in fact it should be read by all Americans.

CONCERNED OVER SAFETY

West Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

As the parent of two small sons, I am concerned with the safety of all children, and it is disturbing to me to know that each year in America there are 15,000 children under the age of 15 killed in accidents, and over one million more are injured. The major cause of these deaths is due to the children being run down by automobiles. Some of these accidents are absolutely unavoidable, of course, but too many of these children are killed by drivers who think that the child will not walk in front of his car, or that the kid on the bike will stay out of his way.

When a little child is taken by death it is hard for us to understand why he or she had to die. When one is killed by the driver of an automobile there is lasting grief for all concerned. The parents will not forget the loss of their child, and the driver involved can not forget. For him there will be no more nights of sound sleep as long as he lives.

Today there are billions of dollars spent by business firms throughout the United States by their advertising and public relations departments. Right here in the Twin Cities we have a firm that has directed its thinking toward the preservation of our children. I think that this is a commendable effort, and I am grateful each time that I meet one of their huge trucks on our streets and highways which has a sign on the front of it which simply reads, "Watch That Child".

RIGHTS ARE DENIED

Oak Grove, La.

To the Editor:

In the September 22 World paper there was news about the rights hearing in New Orleans.

Four district attorneys were denied the right to refute the Negroes' testimony in the voter registrars hearing.

Now, about a year ago, in the case of Greene vs. McElroy, the supreme court held that an engineer in a defense plant, who was denied access to classified material, because of alleged left-wing associations, should be restored to his job because he had no opportunity to confront his accusers.

The court opinion stated thus: "Certain principles have remained relatively immutable in our jurisprudence. One of these is that where governmental action seriously injures an individual, the evidence used to prove the government's case must be disclosed to the individual so that he has an opportunity to show that it is untrue.

"While this is important in the case of documentary evidence, it is even more important where the evidence consists of testimony of individuals or who, in fact, might be perjurers, or persons motivated by malice, vindictiveness, intolerance, prejudice or jealousy. We have formalized these protections in the requirements of confrontation and cross - examination."

As a citizen, what I don't understand is why the district attorneys, for the voter registrars' benefit, in the state, can't have the same rights, since the U. S. supreme court has made such a ruling in the past. Is this justice to all?

JOHN W. SMITH.

10 MEN ARE BRAVE

The following story of 10 brave men, so vividly brings to mind the Bible verse from John, Chapter 15- "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends."

Perhaps you read the story in the papers or heard how Mr. Walter "Buddy" Scott of Tallulah was severely burned in an explosion. This accident occurred late in August.

Over a week ago relatives and friends were advised he would not live through the night unless human skin were donated to use as bandages on the badly burned portions of his body, to keep the necessary substances inside his body from seeping through the wounds. There were eleven local men who immediately responded. Ten of these men actually gave the skin off their limbs. The eleventh, M. C. Stone, had recently been ill and the physician didn't feel it safe to use his skin at present. The ten who were chosen were Robert (Sonny) Todd, Boone Halbach, Jeff Thomas, Stuart Moberley, Louis Nettles, Jake Bryant, Billy Pemberton, Mike Murphy, E. B. Towne Jr., and Dick Horn all of Tallulah.

Two strips of about 1¼ inches wide each were taken from the front and outside of both legs from the thigh to the knee. To be exact — peeled right off. These men did not lay down their lives but did a bravery equal to the spontaneous act as dashing out in the street to save a child from an oncoming car or bursting into a flaming building to save a life. These actions come upon most persons automatically without thought of consequences of their reaction to this deed, but the burning case did require thought of family health and work. But reaching far over all this the human heart and his love for a friend won through. Who says we are NOT our brothers keeper! Indeed we are, and a story such as this should touch the soul and draw the human heart and mind for a brief moment away from the ghastly disorder of the news of today. Amidst all the cold war and strife, our hearts are still warm and we, as Americans, are proud to say we still have time for our neighbors even in this busy world today.

My hat's off to the wives and families of these brave men, who have suffered right along with them, with love and understanding of the deed they have done. These men have suffered a great deal as the bandages would stick and the skin would grow over them and once again they would have to be peeled and start afresh. They have lost many days of work and activities with their friends and families. What are the results? We are extremely sad to say that Mr. Scott passed away. Sad for the loved ones he left behind but perhaps a blessing that he is now out of his suffering and pain, and now with his Maker.

How do these 10 men feel now? They are bereaved, of course, over the loss of such a loved one and perhaps there is a tiny thought of 'this was all for nothing' —Ah, but no! You ask any one of them and they will tell you that they at least have the satisfaction of knowing that they did all they could do to save the life of this friend and you know they would do it again if the occasion asked for it — for you see, this friend would have done the same for them.

Best wishes men and may God speed your recovery and bless you!

K'S HATCHET MEN

To the Editor:

Harrisonburg, La

When I read of Mr. K. and his hatchet men attending the U. N., I cannot refrain from thinking what an opportune time for someone to make a "pot shot".

In recent months, Mr. K. hasn't left any doubt that he has missiles pointed toward all vital spots in the U. S., including New York City, ready at all times to pull the triggers.

I wonder if he had the forethought to unload the one pointed in the direction of the U. N., before he left Russia. If he didn't and some clumsy Russian soldier would stub his toe on the trigger of that missile and set it off. That soldier would make a wonderful contribution to all mankind.

Daily Meditation

As it is written, He that glorieth, let him glory in the Lord. — I Corinthians 1:31.

The self-made man, the proud, the arrogant and the self-satisfied person has no place in his life for God. But what do we have that has not been "received"? Basically, all things come from God, sometimes being enhanced and improved and made more valuable by His children. If we had to depend on our own puny efforts alone for services and goods, we would be poor indeed. But our great heritage is the love of God and the gift of His Son that we may have eternal life in a haven of love and service.

Father, may we glory only in the cross of Christ and Thy love and bounty. In Christ's holy and blessed name we make our plea. Amen.

La. Oil And Gas Industry And The Two Candidates

Any discussion of the oil and gas industry of Louisiana and Texas - - or other Southern states - - in relation to policies concerning it expressed during the present campaign by Vice President Nixon and Senator Kennedy should be approached only with these two facts in mind:

1. The 27½ per cent oil and gas depletion allowance for income tax purposes is part of an established federal tax principle, established by Congress, that when a person derives income through selling his CAPITAL - - as with oil, gas and other minerals which are depleted by each sale - - he should have a special income tax depletion allowance. It is not a "tax loophole." Congress has placed more than 100 such allowances in the tax laws.

Further, this allowance is not merely a benefit for producers of oil and gas. The industry in Louisiana alone employs 88,000 persons which, when families are included, means that the welfare of more than half a million persons - - and their purchasing power - - is affected directly or indirectly by the welfare of Louisiana's oil and gas industry.

In Texas the oil and gas industry employs 229,000 persons. With their families, the welfare of nearly 1,000,000 persons is affected directly or indirectly by the welfare of the Texas oil and gas industry.

2. The tidelands question - - whether certain offshore mineral deposits belong to the state or the federal government - - does not concern the oil and gas industry, financially. Producers pay bonuses and costs of leases, either to federal or state government and do not care which. But every individual in Louisiana is affected by this problem. Without at least some tidelands revenue, Louisiana soon may have to find new revenues by new taxes, or cut the amount of present state services to the people.

Because of these things, the fact that Mr. Nixon stands on the side of the Southern oil and gas states, and Mr. Kennedy does not, is of vital importance in the presidential election.

Frank B. Ellis of New Orleans, State Campaign Director for the Kennedy-Johnson ticket, and others associated with him have sent a letter to all prominent oil and gas producers stating that Senator Kennedy is committed to - - quoting from the letter "(a) . . . the preservation of the depletion allowance; and (b) the equitable equalization of Louisiana offshore boundaries."

Neither statement is correct.

Both carry inferences that are false.

Senator Kennedy himself, in last Thursday's air debate with Mr. Nixon, blew sky high any contention that he stands for "preservation of the depletion allowance," at its present 27½ per cent.

The Ellis letter, which states that he and Congressman Hale Boggs, New Orleans Democrat, "succeeded in obtaining an affirmative commitment as to the oil situation" by Senator Kennedy, was based on a taped TV interview with the Democratic nominee, made by a New Orleans television station for distribution in Louisiana - - and possibly in other Southern states where it might be valuable.

In that interview Mr. Kennedy states specifically that he does not believe the oil and gas depletion allowance should be abolished, but that he does think it should be reduced - - although he agreed that "a case can be made" to keep it as it is. But Mr. Kennedy voted in Congress to reduce the allowance from 27½ per cent to 15 per cent through a sliding scale - - and he still stands for reduction, as he now twice has made clear on the air.

On tidelands (which did not come up in the air debate), Mr. Kennedy says in the special taped interview that he would sign "equitable" tidelands legislation, but he does not say what he means by "equitable." Several Texas sources have raised the point that Mr. Kennedy's statement could mean trying to reduce the 10½ miles offshore area which the Supreme Court has granted Texas and Florida, rather than increasing the 3½ miles offshore granted Louisiana. Or what Louisiana has now - - which is virtually nothing - - could be called "equitable."

In other words, the taped interview seems to be very much of a bunch of double-talk put forth in the hope of deceiving the oil and gas industry in Louisiana and elsewhere.

In last Thursday's air debate with Mr. Nixon, Mr. Kennedy said he would look into the depletion allowance if elected. He gave no indication of supporting the President's 27½ allowance -- as did Mr. Nixon.

Since Mr. Kennedy also voted against the Gulf states on tidelands bills in Congress - - along with his vote to cut the depletion allowance -- there is little question that the welfare of the oil and gas industry and its tens of thousands of employes and their families in the Gulf states certainly rests with election of Mr. Nixon.

Mr. Nixon has stated three times during this campaign that he stands for retention of the 27½ per cent depletion allowance. He voted consistently in Congress for the rights of the Gulf states in all tidelands issues. He has demonstrated his position on such issues in both words and actions - - over and over.

Khrush's Leaving Relief

Soviet Premier Khrushchev's big turbojet once again has carried its principal passenger safely back to Moscow. New York policemen assigned to guard the No. 1 Communist while in the United States cheered with relief when the big airplane cleared Idlewild Airport.

His mission to the United Nations was a failure. As a matter of fact, Khrushchev has put up a poor performance with the tough tactics he has employed since the ill-fated Paris conference last May.

Some observers, noting the Russian dictator's change of heart from peaceful coexistence to a "fighting mad" attitude, believe Khrushchev was told about a year ago to get tough or get out.

These conclusions are supported by two subsequent happenings Red China never has gone along with Khrushchev's denunciation of Stalin and the window dressing of "peace." Also, the highly astute Russian minister, Molotov, whom Khrushchev put in political banishment near the Chinese border, has been called back to the Russian embassy at Vienna.

In other words, the Marxist line of "fight capitalism all the way" may be on the verge of replacing the Khrushchev "experiment" with its strategy of peaceful co - existence. If this is true, Khrushchev may well be on the way out. Of course, this development would not take place immediately just as the ousting of Marshal Bulganin was no sudden move.

Along with possible party resentment against Khrushchev, there was also fear in the Russian military machine over the U-2 flights over Russian soil. When it was definitely established that the high-flying ships were invading Soviet air space, Khrushchev's opponents were able to blame him personally. It was at this time he decided on the "get tough" policy, hoping to frighten the west and keep his own enemies in the party off his neck.

War Today Is Continuous

Khrushchev Lost Battle Of 1960 In United Nations General Assembly; Still Promotes World Unrest

Khrushchev, it appears, lost the 1960 battle in the General Assembly of the United Nations. That does not at all mean that he lost the Cold War.

The nature of war has changed radically in recent years. When we think of war, what arises in our memories is shot and shell, cities destroyed, human beings left homeless, blood and death on all sides.

Today war is continuous. It utilizes altogether new techniques, not only such as missiles, rockets, biological and chemical devices, but since one of the objects of wars, as Clausewitz, the greatest theoretician of war, has pointed out, is for one nation to impose its will upon another, technical methods have been devised to achieve this without shot and shell.

Clausewitz makes the point:

". . . War is an act of force, and to the application of that force there is no limit. Each of the adversaries forces the hand of the other, and a reciprocal action results which in theory can have no limit . . ."

But force is of many natures. For instance, the systematic destruction of the value of a people is a more subtle form of force than killing a division of men, but it nonetheless is an act of war. Soviet Russia, which has adopted what has come to be called Aesopian language, uses the word peace to describe warlike acts which are of the new techniques that do not require shot and shell. For instance, intellectual subversion, which is a method for changing the thought processes of generations, is a technique of war. Its object is to destroy the will to resist an enemy.

Karl von Clausewitz states that war is a political act. Even more, he found the law that war is a political act but that it is one that is carried out by other means. He said:

". . . What now still remains peculiar to war relates merely to the peculiar character of the means it uses. The art of war in general and the commander in each particular case can demand that the tendencies and designs of policy shall be not incompatible with these means, and the claim is certainly no trifling one. But however powerfully it may react on political designs in particular cases, still it must always be regarded as only a modification of them; for the political design is the object, while war is the means, and the means can never be thought of apart from the object."

Clausewitz has had an enormous influence upon Russian thinking and in the development of the Cold War, his classic on war has served them as a guide. For the Cold War is nothing more than war by wholly new methods and by old methods adapted to new times.

Khrushchev came to this session of the General Assembly of the United Nations not to discuss the China question or disarmament or the future of Dag Hammarskjold but to fight a battle of the Cold War, as he did in Paris. His immediate objective was to impress the small nations, particularly those of Africa and Asia, with the strength of Soviet Russia and the futility of the United States. He brought with him all his pro-consuls and added to them the mighty neutrals who live in fear of his power. It was a very impressive performance which Khrushchev spoiled by his natural vulgarity. Nevertheless, the impression he made may be advantageous next year.

Khrushchev is more able in directing the Cold War than Stalin was. Stalin was a revolutionist who only understood direct and immediate action. Khrushchev is a product of a post-revolutionary era and his techniques are less sudden. He is in no hurry. As he is conducting a war, he recognizes that it is unimportant to win a battle; it is only important to win the war. Success in war means the total destruction of an enemy's will to resist. Khrushchev understands that economic warfare can lead to more permanent destruction of the will to resist than a military battle. In the present situation in the United States, for instance, gold is a superior weapon to a bomb; or if it is a bomb we think significant, the Congo is worth more than East Germany, for the Congo's minerals, particularly uranium, are invaluable.

It is necessary to recognize the nature of the Cold War to understand what is happening.

How Do You Stand, Sir?

By U.S. Senator Barry Goldwater

The other day I heard a novelty popular song satirizing that election year admonition to "get out and vote."

Women's clubs and service clubs and various non-partisan community organizations place considerable emphasis on their election year attempts to "get out the vote."

With all due respect to these organizations for their dedicated efforts, I would suggest the responsibility of citizenship cannot be discharged by either "getting out and voting" or "getting out the vote."

What is required here, in my opinion, is first of all that we become an informed participant in the election process.

Some years ago, in a campaign for the Senate conducted in a southern state, the successful candidate attacked his opponent as a man who had deceived the voters, who secretly longed to practice nepotism, whose wife was a thespian. . .and then he demanded to know if the voters were aware his opponent once matriculated.

The absurdity here may be beyond your belief. It seems impossible that in 20th-century America such words as nepotism, thespian and matriculated could be so employed as to imply a sinister aspect to a political candidate. Yet I assure you, competent political observers attribute the defeat of the unsuccessful candidate to the fact that the voters who did not understand these words accepted them as being extremely derogatory.

Two strips of about 1¼ inches wide each were taken from the front and outside of both legs from the thigh to the knee. To be exact — peeled right off. These men did not lay down their lives but did a bravery equal to the spontaneous act as dashing out in the street to save a child from an oncoming car or bursting into a flaming building to save a life. These actions come upon most persons automatically without thought of consequences of their reaction to this deed, but the burning case did require thought of family health and work. But reaching far over all this the human heart and his love for a friend won through. Who says we are NOT our brothers keeper! Indeed we are, and a story such as this should touch the soul and draw the human heart and mind for a brief moment away from the ghastly disorder of the news of today. Amidst all the cold war and strife, our hearts are still warm and we, as Americans, are proud to say we still have time for our neighbors even in this busy world today.

My hat's off to the wives and families of these brave men, who have suffered right along with them, with love and understanding of the deed they have done. These men have suffered a great deal as the bandages would stick and the skin would grow over them and once again they would have to be peeled and start afresh. They have lost many days of work and activities with their friends and families. What are the results? We are extremely sad to say that Mr. Scott passed away. Sad for the loved ones he left behind but perhaps a blessing that he is now out of his suffering and pain, and now with his Maker.

How do these 10 men feel now? They are bereaved, of course, over the loss of such a loved one and perhaps there is a tiny thought of 'this was all for nothing' —Ah, but no! You ask any one of them and they will tell you that they at least have the satisfaction of knowing that they did all they could do to save the life of this friend and you know they would do it again if the occasion asked for it — for you see, this friend would have done the same for them.

Best wishes men and may God speed your recovery and bless you!

K'S HATCHET MEN

To the Editor:

Harrisonburg, La

When I read of Mr. K. and his hatchet men attending the U. N., I cannot refrain from thinking what an opportune time for someone to make a "pot shot".

In recent months, Mr. K. hasn't left any doubt that he has missiles pointed toward all vital spots in the U. S., including New York City, ready at all times to pull the triggers.

I wonder if he had the forethought to unload the one pointed in the direction of the U. N., before he left Russia. If he didn't and some clumsy Russian soldier would stub his toe on the trigger of that missile and set it off. That soldier would make a wonderful contribution to all mankind.

Daily Meditation

As it is written, He that glorieth, let him glory in the Lord. — I Corinthians 1:31.

The self-made man, the proud, the arrogant and the self-satisfied person has no place in his life for God. But what do we have that has not been "received"? Basically, all things come from God, sometimes being enhanced and improved and made more valuable by His children. If we had to depend on our own puny efforts alone for services and goods, we would be poor indeed. But our great heritage is the love of God and the gift of His Son that we may have eternal life in a haven of love and service.

Father, may we glory only in the cross of Christ and Thy love and bounty. In Christ's holy and blessed name we make our plea. Amen.

FLIGHT OF WHAT CHEER

Towns Fight Exit To Big City

By DAN PERKES

WHAT CHEER, Iowa (AP)—The funeral home with its modern front gives Main Street one of its few touches of prosperity. But most of the loyal residents of this once-bustling community stoutly insist their town is not dying.

Yet What Cheer, nestled picturesquely among the verdant, rolling hills of southeast Iowa, like many small farm communities across the nation, is fighting the exodus to the big cities.

What Cheer is caught up in the strange circumstance of a dwindling population in the midst of agricultural prosperity.

Bank president John Baylor says his firm has financed more cattle feeding operations in the past four years than in any comparable period.

Farm and livestock production continues to soar. But the larger farms have swallowed the smaller ones, and it takes fewer farm hands to operate them with modern machinery.

Unlike many other rural community suffering the demise of the small farm, What Cheer is the victim of a double economic punch. The farming changes have only accentuated a population decline which began when the town lost its flourishing coal mining industry as the pits played out years ago.

What Cheer and environs, originally settled by Welsh and English who came to work the mines, swelled to a population of about 10,000 in the late 19th century.

But as the coal became exhausted the 15 mining companies disappeared and the population dwindled—to 1,119 by 1950, 951 now.

"Clay products have replaced coal as What Cheer's industry," said Dwain Mueller, 48, editor of the weekly What Cheer Patriot-Chronicle. "But clay doesn't need the number of workmen the coal industry required."

Oldsters generally see little hope that What Cheer—which legend says was named for an old Welsh greeting—will ever regain high prosperity. The younger generation just can't find jobs, they say, and drift to the bigger cities.

But this is just part of a train of economic consequences that has hit What Cheer and its counterparts.

Farmers across the nation no longer need trade exclusively in nearby towns.

The larger trading centers, now readily accessible to farm folks, offer more varied merchandise—and at cheaper prices because of faster turnover.

Another big blow to What Cheer was the closing of two railroad freight terminals. The lack of passenger train service for almost a generation hasn't helped.

But editor Mueller thinks there are impressive reasons for the people of What Cheer to continue cheerful.

First of all, he believes the decline in population has finally stopped, that it leveled off early in the 1950-60 census period. Present industry, he feels, probably will keep the town at least at present levels. It is in the center of a good farming community, where corn, hogs and feeder cattle are produced in abundance.

He adds there is potential in the town's one big natural resource—clay. There are two varieties of it here—the kind used in production of sewer pipe and blue linings and a white clay, only lightly worked.

What Cheer, says Mueller, also has embarked on a recreation program to keep the young contented and an active effort is being made to attract new industry.

One good point, says Mueller, is that What Cheer has lower taxes than many towns hereabout. "We've got a lot to cheer about in What Cheer and we're going to have more," he says.

Banker Baylor, 44, of the third generation of Baylors in business here, feels too little has been done to get new industry.

"Too few of us are willing to work for progress. The rest are merely content to sit back and watch," he said.

Gary Welch, 30, a hog buyer for a large packing plant, is not enthusiastic.

"The town's only industry can't take care of the local supply of available help. The young people leave. There are no opportunities. Local stores are family owned and handed down to the children.

"What Cheer is just drying up."

The town's only industry, is the What Cheer Clay Products Co. The plant employs more than 100 men in its production of sewer pipe. It has operated on clay beds south of town since 1911. Now it is managed by two young men, Harold Northfield, 28, and his brother, Bill, 26. Both are from Minneapolis, Minn., and took over management in 1956.

"Although the long term market for clay products is very sound," says the younger Northfield, "there is little likelihood the firm will expand in the near future." He adds that business is down about 11 per cent from last year.

Mayor Lloyd Adams feels What Cheer has already hit the bottom and is ready to grow again "if the people work for it."

NEW TREATMENT?

Cancer Patients To Go Into Space

WASHINGTON (AP) — Exotic possibilities such as sending cancer patients into space for therapy from natural radiation are bundled up with mundane questions about administrative waste on earth in a report by the House Space Committee made public Sunday night.

The report on "Life Sciences and Space" amounts to a basic handbook on the problems that face man as he prepares to shove off from familiar earth to explore the solar system and delve into space beyond.

Chairman Overton Brooks, D-La., of the Committee on Science and Astronautics said the little volume reflects testimony by scientists given in hearings earlier this year. The testimony presented many interesting possibilities about life science and space, Brooks said.

"The possibilities are enormous and no one can say for certain that this is possible and this is not possible in this fascinating field," he added.

Among its conclusions, the committee said Congress should make clear to the executive branch that in expanding the various programs of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, the military services and other agencies that they must guard against wasteful duplication of effort or failure to use existing facilities. Except for this advisory note, the report was devoted to considering the fantastic problems and possibilities as scientists begin to prepare for the day when men will follow the present instrumented probes into space aboard rocket vehicles.

In the process of devising techniques for these voyages, things may be discovered of profound influence to ordinary life on earth, the committee said.

An example: Research on mechanical organs to substitute in space for the normal respiratory, circulatory and other systems might mean that man could be converted into something semi-mechanical. If that could be done for space travel, why not utilize it as a device on earth to prevent massive failure of vital organs—a mechanical device to prevent death?

Here are some of the other questions and possibilities posed by the report:

How about the origin and nature of life? Will exploration of space show that life appears spontaneously, given the right environment? Did life first appear some other place and then was carried to earth "by natural forces or by some cosmic travelers of the past?"

"Perhaps some ingredient in the spectrum of radiation reaching a space ship will prove efficacious in treating some forms of cancer if the patient is sent up to a space station for therapy."

How will man go about living on the moon while he explores that close-in portion of space? "We do not know exactly what problems will be involved in planting a base under the surface (of the moon) for protection against meteors, temperature variation and radiation; and we do not know how soon local resources can be mined to supply power, water and oxygen," the report said.

Number 17 Not Quite Real Tops

NEW WORLD WRITING 17. Edited by Stewart Richardson and Corlies M. Smith. Lippincott. $1.65.

Eight short stories, three articles and six poems from two poets make up the newest volume in the series initiated by New American Library and now carried on by different publisher and editors.

The outstanding article is "Ezra Pound: The Guide to Kulchur," by Otto Friedrich. You may quarrel with some of his thinking about the contribution of the great foundations to a culture that always seems to have its hand out; the value of state subsidies: the utility and character of a Lincoln Center. But he is on surer ground in picturing Pound as a complex of distinct but overlapping quantities: The indubitably great poet, as of the "Pisan Cantos;" the anti - Semite; the wartime enemy of his native country; the advocate of crackpot financial theories. He thinks Pound should have been made to answer to the treason charge, but he also thinks the government should have been made to answer to Pound's criticisms — and it's a big but.

The poems in this book, as has happened before, are undistinguished. The short story writer to note first is Burton Raffel, and second, Ben Maddow; the one to skip is James Purdy. As with the other 16 books, you have the uneasy feeling that this, too, ought to be better, but you'd certainly hate it if some editor didn't keep trying.

Adventure In Rebellious Eden Garden

REVOLT IN PARADISE. By K'tut Tantri. Harper. $5.

"Surabaya Sue" — Do you remember the name? She broadcast in behalf of Sukarno and Indonesian independence after World War II. She is this author, but even K'tut Tantri is not her real name. She is a full - blooded Manx, she says, though her birth is registered in Glasgow. She worked for a while in Hollywood but always in the back of her mind was some romantic dreamland and a travelogue seen by chance lured her happily to Bali. She sailed there by exceptionally slow freighter, evidently in the early 1930s. Provided with some money, paints and canvases, she expected to do oils of natives and their life.

Right there her troubles started, as did her particular delights. The Dutch objected bitterly to her living anywhere except in the usual tourist spots. Defying them, she was welcomed by a local rajah who called her his fourth daughter and gave her the name under which she writes. From then on she was an Indonesian of Indonesians, wore native dress, picked up their speech and gladly suffered ostracism by the hoity - toity ruling whites. She saw them flee with undue haste before the Japanese, who caught up with her, however. At first, they were "correct" — as the French said of the Germans — but they promptly changed for worse and worst. Made a prisoner, she was viciously whipped, beaten and tortured in more abominable ways and almost lost her life during two years of solitary confinement. The Dutch on their return were equally ruthless, she says, though in a more sophisticated manner, in their desperate effort to resume control; and the British for a time abetted them. There was a price on her head and several attempts were made to kill her.

It's astonishing that a deep love for the good simple people of the paradise of Bali should have brought this gallant woman such adventure, misfortune, misery, and calamity, and such abiding happiness, too. Pure heroism without a trace of heroics, this story is told with touching directness.

The Memoirs Of General Lord Ismay

THE MEMOIRS OF GENERAL LORD ISMAY. Viking. $6.75.

During the decade in which we have been reading war memoirs, the name of Ismay cropped up continually. He was in the background in Churchill, Montgomery, Eisenhower and no end of other autobiographies. Now, thanks to this book, he moves right up front and for me he's going to stay there.

His parents hoped to guide him into Civil Service but in school he failed the necessary examinations and so turned to the Army — in his very first line is the only word in the whole straight-forward, simply written narrative that may puzzle you: He calls himself a Carthusian, which is a student at the old Charterhouse school.

Ismay says he was Churchill's "agent" and "shadow" as Chief of Staff to the Minister of Defense (Churchill) from 1940 to 1946, and Churchill called him "head of his handling machine." He was at the heart of world-shaking affairs from the days when Churchill was trying to save what he could from the French debacle to the Casablanca, Washington, Quebec, Cairo, Teheran and Yalta Conferences.

This does not fundamentally change the picture of the war, but it heightens and intensifies it immeasurably. There are some aspects of the conflict on which light shines more clearly: Churchill never ultimately defying his military advisers; the English too reticent in disapproving early American eagerness to invade the Continent, and regretting a little that Eisenhower's plan for a broad attack on Berlin, instead of their proposal for a single arrow - like thrust, had been adopted; the English making haste slowly in getting out of India not for Empire's sake but for India.'s

Three aspects of this work need special emphasis: Ismay's freedom from animosity; his unqualified admiration for Churchill; his sense of humor.

I have read nothing that praises Churchill so endlessly, extravagantly and affectionately — and that is so well documented. He told Churchill he would do absolutely anything asked of him, except express an opinion not his own. He calls Churchill "the greatest Englishman of his time, perhaps of all time," and closes his book with words addressed to the Prime Minister in a conversation:

"You were right, as always."

The very first pages seemed to me a little heavy, but almost at once they brighten up wonderfully and, for sheer enjoyment, you won't find a more rewarding war book. There was the soldier, in the early muddled days, standing in the middle of Whitehall and asking which side the War Office was on and being answered by a passing sailor: "At the beginning of the war we thought they were on ours, but now we are not at all sure."

Harvest Of Books Bountiful

By W. G. ROGERS
Associated Press Arts Editor

NEW YORK (AP)—This month and next are book months.

More are published now than at any other time of the year. They are likely, also, to be the cream of the crop. And they aim to catch you in one or both of two receptive, or helpless, moods: Back from a lazy vacation and extra eager to read, or mindful that Christmas is coming and planning to shop very early.

The range of subject matter is an extraordinary as ever: Army uniforms, Jewish cooking, hot rod, commercial credit, binoculars, table settings, furniture, hurricanes, speedboats, department stores, iris, begonias and rhododendrons. There are also books on nature, antiquity, animals, art, travel, poetry, biography and of course the Civil War.

Noel Coward is writing, tardily, his first novel, "Pomp and Circumstance' " due in November (Doubleday). In the same month there will be "Rabbit, Run," by John Updike (Knopf), whose "The Poorhouse Fair" got wide praise, a volume of short stories from Isak Dinesen, "Shadows on the Grass" (Random House); two from the French as different as can be, "Tender and Violent Elizabeth," by Henri Troyat and "Passing Time," by Michel Butor (both Simon & Schuster); and by Bryher, another memorable historical, "Ruan" (Pantheon).

If you are impatient, October offers some lighter fiction: "The Interpreter," by March Cost (Lippincott); "Good Bye, Ava," Richard Bissell, and "The Grapes of Paradise," H. E. Bates (both Little, Brown). But this month has meatier offering, too: "The Last of the Just," by Frenchman Andre Schwarz - Bart (Atheneum), the seering fictional record of the persecution of Jews down through the centuries; and "The Light in the Piazza" by Elizabeth Spencer, remembered admiringly for "The Voice at the Back Door" (McGraw-Hill).

To go by title alone it is possible now to risk the estimate that this fall's most promising category is biography and autobiography. Heading the list could be "Ezra Pound" (Macmillan), by Charles Norman, one - time Associated Press writer who did the excellent study of E. E. Cummings a year or so ago; it's due this month. Dorothy Norman does "Alfred Stieglitz" (Duell, Sloan & Pearce) next month, when also there will be "Portrait of Max," meaning Beerbohm, by S. N. Behrman (Random); "The DeGaulle Nobody Knows," by Alden Hatch (Hawthorn); "Creation is a Patient Search: Self - Portrait, "by Le Corbusier (Praeger); "Confessions of an Art Addict," by the determinedly frank Peggy Guggenheim (Macmillan); "John Foster Dulles," by Deane and David Heller (Holt, Rinehart & Winston); and "Out of the Air," by Mary Margaret McBride (Doubleday).

October books include Kate Smith's "Upon My Lips a Song" (Funk & Wagnalls); "Silhouettes in Diamonds: The Life of Mrs. Potter Palmer," by Ishbel Ross (Harper); "The Public Years," volume two of the Bernard Baruch autobiography (Holt, Rinehart & Winston); "The Memoirs of General Lord Ismay" (Viking); "Marilyn Monroe," Maurice Zolotow (Harcourt, Brace).

There will be two books on singer Maria Callas, one by her mother just published and one by George Jellinek. The Duke of Windsor is author of "Windsor Revisited." Jack Kerouac writes "Lonesome Traveler." To match "The World of Carnegie Hall" by Richard Schickel there is "The Magic of the Opera," about the Met, by Gjon Mili and Mary Ellis Peltz; and two about Egypt and Nasser, "Behind the Egyptian Sphinx," by Irving Sedar and Harold Greenbert, and "The Boss," by Robert St. John.

Last but not least — indeed last but most — are many Civil War books, of which here are 10 outstanding titles:

"Our Incredible Civil War," Burke Davis (Holt, Rinehart & Winston); "Jubal's Raid," Frank E. Vandiver (McGraw - Hill); "The American Heritage Picture Book of the Civil War," edited by Bruce Catton and "Heritage" editors (Doubleday); "Europe Looks at the Civil War," edited by Belle Becker Sideman and Lillian Friedman (Orion); "War for the Union," volume II, by Allan Nevins Scribners); "Tragic Years," Earl S. Miers and Paul M. Angle (Scribners); "Centennial Album of the Civil War," Marvin H. Pakula (Yoseloff); "The Night the War Was Lost," by Charles L. Dufour (Doubleday); "Civil War at Sea," Virgil Carrington (Holt, Rinehart & Winston); and "Walt Whitman's Civil War," edited by Walter Lowenfels (Knopf).

RUNNING THE SCALES
With JOHN CALE

The curtain goes up on the local cultural scene this week with the appearance of Chris Barber Jazz Ensemble Thursday evening at Neville Auditorium.

This combo, billed as a British "Dixieland" band seems to be built around a nationality conflict. The tailored accents of the King's or Queen's English just don't fit the "every man for himself" attitude of New Orleans music, nightlife and traffic.

All the more interesting, we should say, for the opening gun in the Northeast State Concerts Series.

LEATHERNECKS

The concerts by the U. S. Marine Band in Ferriday last week climaxed a four - year effort on the part of the town's Kiwanis club to bring a great musical organization to Concordia parish. Box office receipts were of necessity a success. But beyond this, there was an enthusiasm which swept the town from one end to the other from the time the band arrived until departure time Thursday. The visit of the band to Ferriday was more than a couple of concerts. To musicians and audience alike, this was an occasion. Of course, the Marine Band plays well anywhere, any time. But with the addition of an inspired audience and a town full of people who really worked to make the appearance of the band a possibility, who can deny that the music actually sounded better?

CALDWELL FESTIVAL

The fifth annual Caldwell Parish Art Festival featured local and guest participants in the creative field yesterday. The festival has been a success from the outset but has grown to the extent that it attracts such top names in the nation as Harnett T. Kane, author, who writes about famous homes and families along the lower Mississippi.

Here is another example of a community with a small population which has proven itself capable of taking on a worthwhile cultural achievement. The art festival is sponsored by the Caldwell Parish library board. But it has done far more than promote interest in the library. The annual event has put Columbia on the map as a place for display and discussion of painting, writing, architecture and crafts by persons who just dabble or who are dead serious.

The familiar double feature operas, "Cavalleria Rusticanna," and "I Pagliacci" will play this week in New Orleans as a presentation of the New Orleans Opera House Association. The performances are set for Thursday and Saturday in the Municipal Auditorium.

Igor Gorin, familiar to Monroe audiences from the Community Concerts days will take the lead baritone part in both short operas. Kurt Baum will sing the tenor leads.

LIVE THEATRE

The Junior League of Abilene, Texas, is offering a cash prize of $250 to the author in Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana or Arkansas who can come up with the best original play for child audiences.

Mrs. John H. DeFord, president of the Abilene Junior League points out this is the second year the contest has run. Last year's contest seemed to arouse sufficient interest in playwriting in the four - state district until the organization decided to run the contest a second time.

Detailed contest rules may be obtained from: Children's Theater Playwriting Competition, 518 Leggett Drive, Abilene, Texas. The contest deadline is January 15, 1961.

Contest information says that while the plays are to be written for child audiences, the actors for which the lines are written need not be children.

With Love Is Interesting One On Music

WITH LOVE. By Maurice Chevalier. Little, Brown. $5.

The cane, the straw hat, the jaunty walk, the young and eager smile, the song that's a bit naughty but witty-naughty — that's the Chevalier known to millions of theater and music - hall patrons, and TV viewers and movie goers in his native France and this country.

The big surprise in this book as you recall this French artist's performances or as perhaps you remember him in a face - to - face encounter, is that he was born so long ago, in 1888, and has had a career of 60 years in the public eye. To be sure, it was a small eye to begin with — Montmartre cafes where in his teens he picked up the few francs desperately needed by his mother who had been abandoned by a hard-drinking husband. But success was not long in coming, though for a few years it remained fickle. He got a role in a musical, then in the Folies Bergere where he began his long affair with Mistinguett, 13 years his senior but with supposedly priceless legs. He performed in and out of Marseilles. His first Hollywood film was "Innocents of Paris," and among others, Rene Clair's "Le Silence est d'or" and the famed "Gigi."

In World War I he was badly wounded. In World War II he stayed loyally in occupied France, faithful to a Jewish girl, mostly avoiding the Nazis' "command" performances, being almost lynched on collaboration charges, of which he was completely officially exonerated.

Welsh Tale Grim, Wild And Stormy

Robe of Honour. By Alexander Cordell. Doubleday. $4.50.

You could mine or you could farm and, at each, you starved a little more each month, each year — that was the life of the hymn - singing Welsh in the 1830s and 1840s. The mine was down a shaky 100 - foot ladder, the roof was low, the props crumbling and, bare to the waist, man or woman, you crawled on hands and knees to bring out the black dust lumps in heavy baskets. If you farmed you found the squire putting up more and more highway gates at which he collected toll: it added a shilling to the cost of your lime and took off a shilling from the price you got for corn.

To burn the gates and toll houses, the downtrodden people organized the Rebeccas. Their faces blackened with soot, their sister's or wife's petticoat for disguise, their horses' hooves muffled in burlap, these doughty "daughters" raided by night and sometimes but not always, the dragoons caught up with them. A Rebecca, a Mortymer, young Jethro, is the hero of this fine pulsing romance.

Mam the mother is widowed: Mari has lost her husband, Iesthyn, Jethro's brother, to the soldiers who shipped him off to a penal colony; Morfydd has a boy by the man who didn't live to marry her. Their passions uncovered and raw, they live with the aged hard - drinking Grandfer, their tempers flaring, their hands equally quick for a slap, a blow or a gentle caress.

"All hail the power of Jesus' name," the whole town sings rousingly and religiously but that doesn't keep anybody from a tremendous lusting for a neighbor's girl, a housemaid, even a sister or sister - in - law. Mam is severe with all her brood — the boy and the two girls who nag at him, lovingly or hatefully, as he nags at them; but the mother herself, when she puts off mourning, has her suitors who come hanging over the front fence and asking her out for a walk.

There are superb moments of action, like the grim labor deep in the mine, the fight in the inn, the battle for life with the trooper, the fierce assaults of the rioters on their nighttime errands of destruction. But even more there are the heartbreaking encounters of man and maid, the impassioned embraces of the lovers, and the tearful everlasting farewells. This is a wild and stormy story.

Guide To Good Reading

New books to appeal to a variety of readers were received at the Ouachita Parish Public Library during the past week. Of great literary interest is "The Black Book" by Lawrence Durrell. This is a reprint of an earlier work, which was only published in England. With the emergence of Mr. Durrell as a major modern novelist, there is great interest in his earlier writings. Majo de la Roche has been writing about the people who live at Jalna for many years. It is amazing how she periodically comes up with a new title. Her latest one is called "Morning at Jalna" and has it's setting in the year 1865 and is concerned with Philip and Adeline Whiteoak and their adventures with a Confederate agent during the American Civil War. One of the better writers of historical novels is Shirley Seifert. Her latest book is called "Look to the Rose" and has it's setting in Savannah during the American Civil War. It will appeal especially to women, for it is the story of a courageous woman who lived during that period. It is also historically accurate.

Although Zane Grey has been dead many years, the executors of his estate bring out a new book, taken from the manuscripts he left, almost every year. The latest title is called "The Ranger and Other Stories" and those who like his works will want to read it.

Everyone who has an old book always thinks that it is valuable. Some of them are and many of them are not. If you have old books which you would like to evaluate we have a new book called "Gold in Your Attic" written by Van Allen Bradley. A book which could save lives if carefully heeded is "Heart Attack, New Hope, New Knowledge, New Life" by Myron Prinzmetal.

A book of practical use is the "New automobile repairs manual," edited by Harold Glenn and published by Chilton. This book will be widely used. Cook books are always popular with the library patrons. The newest one is "The Carlton Fredericks Cook Book for Good Nutrition" written by Carlton Fredericks. The book contains much valuable information about nutrition and menu planning as well as recipes.

Jean Kerr, who made such an impression with her "Please Don't Eat the Daisies" has written another humorous commentary on present day American life. It is called "The Snake Has All The Lines" and discusses with humor and wit everything from airplane travel to the ten worst things about a man. We predict a great popularity for this one. A new poetry collection, which will be very useful is "Selected poems of Robert Burns" selected and edited by G. S. Fraser. An informative, thought - proking book, seriously written for serious minds is "The Southerner as American" written by Charles Grier Sellers and published by the University of North Carolina. Reading this book should help people in all sections of the country to understand the Southern way of thought and life and how we became what we are.

Have you ever wondered how the everyday citizen of Russia lives? If so you will want to read "Main Street, U. S. S. R. written by Irving R. Levine. It is an illuminating title.

Books for teenagers are always welcome, for this is an age for which there has not been too much written until the last few years. Among the new titles this week are "The Book of Hugh Flower" by Lorna Beers, a lovely medieval story; "Bittersweet Autumn" by Grace G. Kisinger, which will appeal especially to girls; "Trouble in Hogback Hill" by James L. Summers, which will interest both boys and girls; "Jet Flier, by Joseph Archibald, who is most popular with boys and "Buffalo and Beaver" by Stephen W. Meader, one of our outstanding writers of outdoor life.

The genealogy collection of the Ouachita Parish Public Library is extremely popular with readers, not only from our own Parish, but from surrounding areas. This week a number of valuable additions have been made to the collection. All of these were memorial books, given by friends who knew the interests of the families of the departed ones. They all deal with Virginia and should help people doing research in this state. They are "Virginia Colonial Militia, 1651 - 1776;" by William A. Crozier; "The vestry book of Petsworth Parish (Gloucester County" Va. 1677-1793, copied and edited by C. G. Chamberlayn; "The Vestry Book of Blisland Parish (New Kent and James City Counties, edited by the same author; "The Vestry Book of Upper Nansemond County Virginia, 1743 - 1793" edited by Wilmer L. Hall. Marriage bonds and ministers returns of the following counties, each one a separate volume; "Southampton County, 1750-1810", Surry County, 1768 - 1825, Sussex County, 1754-1810, Greenville County, 1781-1825" and "Chesterfield County, 1771 - 1815" all of these books were compiled by Mrs. H. A. Knorr of Pine Bluff, Arkansas, who has made a wonderful contribution to our knowledge of Virginia. Last of all we have "Marriage Records of Brunswik County, Virginia, 1730-1852" compiled by Augusta B. Fothergill.

FLIGHT OF WHAT CHEER

Towns Fight Exit To Big City

By DAN PERKES

WHAT CHEER, Iowa (AP)—The funeral home with its modern front gives Main Street one of its few touches of prosperity. But most of the loyal residents of this once-bustling community stoutly insist their town is not dying.

Yet What Cheer, nestled picturesquely among the verdant, rolling hills of southeast Iowa, like many small farm communities across the nation, is fighting the exodus to the big cities.

What Cheer is caught up in the strange circumstance of a dwindling population in the midst of agricultural prosperity.

Bank president John Baylor says his firm has financed more cattle feeding operations in the past four years than in any comparable period.

Farm and livestock production continues to soar. But the larger farms have swallowed the smaller ones, and it takes fewer farm hands to operate them with modern machinery.

Unlike many other rural community suffering the demise of the small farm, What Cheer is the victim of a double economic punch. The farming changes have only accentuated a population decline which began when the town lost its flourishing coal mining industry as the pits played out years ago.

What Cheer and environs, originally settled by Welsh and English who came to work the mines, swelled to a population of about 10,000 in the late 19th century.

But as the coal became exhausted the 15 mining companies disappeared and the population dwindled—to 1,119 by 1950, 951 now.

"Clay products have replaced coal as What Cheer's industry," said Dwain Mueller, 48, editor of the weekly What Cheer Patriot-Chronicle. "But clay doesn't need the number of workmen the coal industry required."

Oldsters generally see little hope that What Cheer—which legend says was named for an old Welsh greeting—will ever regain high prosperity. The younger generation just can't find jobs, they say, and drift to the bigger cities.

But this is just part of a train of economic consequences that has hit What Cheer and its counterparts.

Farmers across the nation no longer need trade exclusively in nearby towns.

The larger trading centers, now readily accessible to farm folks, offer more varied merchandise—and at cheaper prices because of faster turnover.

Another big blow to What Cheer was the closing of two railroad freight terminals. The lack of passenger train service for almost a generation hasn't helped.

But editor Mueller thinks there are impressive reasons for the people of What Cheer to continue cheerful.

First of all, he believes the decline in population has finally stopped, that it leveled off early in the 1950-60 census period. Present industry, he feels, probably will keep the town at least at present levels. It is in the center of a good farming community, where corn, hogs and feeder cattle are produced in abundance.

He adds there is potential in the town's one big natural resource—clay. There are two varieties of it here—the kind used in production of sewer pipe and blue linings and a white clay, only lightly worked.

What Cheer, says Mueller, also has embarked on a recreation program to keep the young contented and an active effort is being made to attract new industry.

One good point, says Mueller, is that What Cheer has lower taxes than many towns hereabout. "We've got a lot to cheer about in What Cheer and we're going to have more," he says.

Banker Baylor, 44, of the third generation of Baylors in business here, feels too little has been done to get new industry.

"Too few of us are willing to work for progress. The rest are merely content to sit back and watch," he said.

Gary Welch, 30, a hog buyer for a large packing plant, is not enthusiastic.

"The town's only industry can't take care of the local supply of available help. The young people leave. There are no opportunities. Local stores are family owned and handed down to the children.

"What Cheer is just drying up."

The town's only industry, is the What Cheer Clay Products Co. The plant employs more than 100 men in its production of sewer pipe. It has operated on clay beds south of town since 1911. Now it is managed by two young men, Harold Northfield, 28, and his brother, Bill, 26. Both are from Minneapolis, Minn., and took over management in 1956.

"Although the long term market for clay products is very sound," says the younger Northfield, "there is little likelihood the firm will expand in the near future." He adds that business is down about 11 per cent from last year.

Mayor Lloyd Adams feels What Cheer has already hit the bottom and is ready to grow again "if the people work for it."

Adventure In Rebellious Eden Garden

REVOLT IN PARADISE. By K'tut Tantri. Harper. $5.

"Surabaya Sue" — Do you remember the name? She broadcast in behalf of Sukarno and Indonesian independence after World War II. She is this author, but even K'tut Tantri is not her real name. She is a full - blooded Manx, she says, though her birth is registered in Glasgow. She worked for a while in Hollywood but always in the back of her mind was some romantic dreamland and a travelogue seen by chance lured her happily to Bali. She sailed there by exceptionally slow freighter, evidently in the early 1930s. Provided with some money, paints and canvases, she expected to do oils of natives and their life.

Right there her troubles started, as did her particular delights. The Dutch objected bitterly to her living anywhere except in the usual tourist spots. Defying them, she was welcomed by a local rajah who called her his fourth daughter and gave her the name under which she writes. From then on she was an Indonesian of Indonesians, wore native dress, picked up their speech and gladly suffered ostracism by the hoity - toity ruling whites. She saw them flee with undue haste before the Japanese, who caught up with her, however. At first, they were "correct" — as the French said of the Germans — but they promptly changed for worse and worst. Made a prisoner, she was viciously whipped, beaten and tortured in more abominable ways and almost lost her life during two years of solitary confinement. The Dutch on their return were equally ruthless, she says, though in a more sophisticated manner, in their desperate effort to resume control; and the British for a time abetted them. There was a price on her head and several attempts were made to kill her.

It's astonishing that a deep love for the good simple people of the paradise of Bali should have brought this gallant woman such adventure, misfortune, misery, and calamity, and such abiding happiness, too. Pure heroism without a trace of heroics, this story is told with touching directness.

Harvest Of Books Bountiful

By W. G. ROGERS
Associated Press Arts Editor

NEW YORK (AP)—This month and next are book months.

More are published now than at any other time of the year. They are likely, also, to be the cream of the crop. And they aim to catch you in one or both of two receptive, or helpless, moods: Back from a lazy vacation and extra eager to read, or mindful that Christmas is coming and planning to shop very early.

The range of subject matter is an extraordinary as ever: Army uniforms, Jewish cooking, hot rod, commercial credit, binoculars, table settings, furniture, hurricanes, speedboats, department stores, iris, begonias and rhododendrons. There are also books on nature, antiquity, animals, art, travel, poetry, biography and of course the Civil War.

Noel Coward is writing, tardily, his first novel, "Pomp and Circumstance' " due in November (Doubleday). In the same month there will be "Rabbit, Run," by John Updike (Knopf), whose "The Poorhouse Fair" got wide praise, a volume of short stories from Isak Dinesen, "Shadows on the Grass" (Random House); two from the French as different as can be, "Tender and Violent Elizabeth," by Henri Troyat and "Passing Time," by Michel Butor (both Simon & Schuster); and by Bryher, another memorable historical, "Ruan" (Pantheon).

If you are impatient, October offers some lighter fiction: "The Interpreter," by March Cost (Lippincott); "Good Bye, Ava," Richard Bissell, and "The Grapes of Paradise," H. E. Bates (both Little, Brown). But this month has meatier offering, too: "The Last of the Just," by Frenchman Andre Schwarz - Bart (Atheneum), the seering fictional record of the persecution of Jews down through the centuries; and "The Light in the Piazza" by Elizabeth Spencer, remembered admiringly for "The Voice at the Back Door" (McGraw-Hill).

To go by title alone it is possible now to risk the estimate that this fall's most promising category is biography and autobiography. Heading the list could be "Ezra Pound" (Macmillan), by Charles Norman, one - time Associated Press writer who did the excellent study of E. E. Cummings a year or so ago; it's due this month. Dorothy Norman does "Alfred Stieglitz" (Duell, Sloan & Pearce) next month, when also there will be "Portrait of Max," meaning Beerbohm, by S. N. Behrman (Random); "The DeGaulle Nobody Knows," by Alden Hatch (Hawthorn); "Creation is a Patient Search: Self - Portrait, "by Le Corbusier (Praeger); "Confessions of an Art Addict," by the determinedly frank Peggy Guggenheim (Macmillan); "John Foster Dulles," by Deane and David Heller (Holt, Rinehart & Winston); and "Out of the Air," by Mary Margaret McBride (Doubleday).

October books include Kate Smith's "Upon My Lips a Song" (Funk & Wagnalls); "Silhouettes in Diamonds: The Life of Mrs. Potter Palmer," by Ishbel Ross (Harper); "The Public Years," volume two of the Bernard Baruch autobiography (Holt, Rinehart & Winston); "The Memoirs of General Lord Ismay" (Viking); "Marilyn Monroe," Maurice Zolotow (Harcourt, Brace).

There will be two books on singer Maria Callas, one by her mother just published and one by George Jellinek. The Duke of Windsor is author of "Windsor Revisited." Jack Kerouac writes "Lonesome Traveler." To match "The World of Carnegie Hall" by Richard Schickel there is "The Magic of the Opera," about the Met, by Gjon Mili and Mary Ellis Peltz; and two about Egypt and Nasser, "Behind the Egyptian Sphinx," by Irving Sedar and Harold Greenbert, and "The Boss," by Robert St. John.

Last but not least — indeed last but most — are many Civil War books, of which here are 10 outstanding titles:

"Our Incredible Civil War," Burke Davis (Holt, Rinehart & Winston); "Jubal's Raid," Frank E. Vandiver (McGraw - Hill); "The American Heritage Picture Book of the Civil War," edited by Bruce Catton and "Heritage" editors (Doubleday); "Europe Looks at the Civil War," edited by Belle Becker Sideman and Lillian Friedman (Orion); "War for the Union," volume II, by Allan Nevins Scribners); "Tragic Years," Earl S. Miers and Paul M. Angle (Scribners); "Centennial Album of the Civil War," Marvin H. Pakula (Yoseloff); "The Night the War Was Lost," by Charles L. Dufour (Doubleday); "Civil War at Sea," Virgil Carrington (Holt, Rinehart & Winston); and "Walt Whitman's Civil War," edited by Walter Lowenfels (Knopf).

With Love Is Interesting One On Music

WITH LOVE. By Maurice Chevalier. Little, Brown. $5.

The cane, the straw hat, the jaunty walk, the young and eager smile, the song that's a bit naughty but witty-naughty — that's the Chevalier known to millions of theater and music - hall patrons, and TV viewers and movie goers in his native France and this country.

The big surprise in this book as you recall this French artist's performances or as perhaps you remember him in a face - to - face encounter, is that he was born so long ago, in 1888, and has had a career of 60 years in the public eye. To be sure, it was a small eye to begin with — Montmartre cafes where in his teens he picked up the few francs desperately needed by his mother who had been abandoned by a hard-drinking husband. But success was not long in coming, though for a few years it remained fickle. He got a role in a musical, then in the Folies Bergere where he began his long affair with Mistinguett, 13 years his senior but with supposedly priceless legs. He performed in and out of Marseilles. His first Hollywood film was "Innocents of Paris," and among others, Rene Clair's "Le Silence est d'or" and the famed "Gigi."

In World War I he was badly wounded. In World War II he stayed loyally in occupied France, faithful to a Jewish girl, mostly avoiding the Nazis' "command" performances, being almost lynched on collaboration charges, of which he was completely officially exonerated.

The Memoirs Of General Lord Ismay

THE MEMOIRS OF GENERAL LORD ISMAY. Viking. $6.75.

During the decade in which we have been reading war memoirs, the name of Ismay cropped up continually. He was in the background in Churchill, Montgomery, Eisenhower and no end of other autobiographies. Now, thanks to this book, he moves right up front and for me he's going to stay there.

His parents hoped to guide him into Civil Service but in school he failed the necessary examinations and so turned to the Army — in his very first line is the only word in the whole straight-forward, simply written narrative that may puzzle you: He calls himself a Carthusian, which is a student at the old Charterhouse school.

Ismay says he was Churchill's "agent" and "shadow" as Chief of Staff to the Minister of Defense (Churchill) from 1940 to 1946, and Churchill called him "head of his handling machine." He was at the heart of world-shaking affairs from the days when Churchill was trying to save what he could from the French debacle to the Casablanca, Washington, Quebec, Cairo, Teheran and Yalta Conferences.

This does not fundamentally change the picture of the war, but it heightens and intensifies it immeasurably. There are some aspects of the conflict on which light shines more clearly: Churchill never ultimately defying his military advisers; the English too reticent in disapproving early American eagerness to invade the Continent, and regretting a little that Eisenhower's plan for a broad attack on Berlin, instead of their proposal for a single arrow - like thrust, had been adopted; the English making haste slowly in getting out of India not for Empire's sake but for India.'s

Three aspects of this work need special emphasis: Ismay's freedom from animosity; his unqualified admiration for Churchill; his sense of humor.

I have read nothing that praises Churchill so endlessly, extravagantly and affectionately — and that is so well documented. He told Churchill he would do absolutely anything asked of him, except express an opinion not his own. He calls Churchill "the greatest Englishman of his time, perhaps of all time," and closes his book with words addressed to the Prime Minister in a conversation:

"You were right, as always."

The very first pages seemed to me a little heavy, but almost at once they brighten up wonderfully and, for sheer enjoyment, you won't find a more rewarding war book. There was the soldier, in the early muddled days, standing in the middle of Whitehall and asking which side the War Office was on and being answered by a passing sailor: "At the beginning of the war we thought they were on ours, but now we are not at all sure."

RUNNING THE SCALES

With JOHN CALE

The curtain goes up on the local cultural scene this week with the appearance of Chris Barber Jazz Ensemble Thursday evening at Neville Auditorium.

This combo, billed as a British "Dixieland" band seems to be built around a nationality conflict. The tailored accents of the King's or Queen's English just don't fit the "every man for himself" attitude of New Orleans music, nightlife and traffic.

All the more interesting, we should say, for the opening gun in the Northeast State Concerts Series.

LEATHERNECKS

The concerts by the U. S. Marine Band in Ferriday last week climaxed a four - year effort on the part of the town's Kiwanis club to bring a great musical organization to Concordia parish. Box office receipts were of necessity a success. But beyond this, there was an enthusiasm which swept the town from one end to the other from the time the band arrived until departure time Thursday. The visit of the band to Ferriday was more than a couple of concerts. To musicians and audience alike, this was an occasion. Of course, the Marine Band plays well anywhere, any time. But with the addition of an inspired audience and a town full of people who really worked to make the appearance of the band a possibility, who can deny that the music actually sounded better?

CALDWELL FESTIVAL

The fifth annual Caldwell Parish Art Festival featured local and guest participants in the creative field yesterday. The festival has been a success from the outset but has grown to the extent that it attracts such top names in the nation as Harnett T. Kane, author, who writes about famous homes and families along the lower Mississippi.

Here is another example of a community with a small population which has proven itself capable of taking on a worthwhile cultural achievement. The art festival is sponsored by the Caldwell Parish library board. But it has done far more than promote interest in the library. The annual event has put Columbia on the map as a place for display and discussion of painting, writing, architecture and crafts by persons who just dabble or who are dead serious.

The familiar double feature operas, "Cavalleria Rusticanna," and "I Pagliacci" will play this week in New Orleans as a presentation of the New Orleans Opera House Association. The performances are set for Thursday and Saturday in the Municipal Auditorium.

Igor Gorin, familiar to Monroe audiences from the Community Concerts days will take the lead baritone part in both short operas. Kurt Baum will sing the tenor leads.

LIVE THEATRE

The Junior League of Abilene, Texas, is offering a cash prize of $250 to the author in Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana or Arkansas who can come up with the best original play for child audiences.

Mrs. John H. DeFord, president of the Abilene Junior League points out this is the second year the contest has run. Last year's contest seemed to arouse sufficient interest in playwriting in the four - state district until the organization decided to run the contest a second time.

Detailed contest rules may be obtained from: Children's Theater Playwriting Competition, 518 Leggett Drive, Abilene, Texas. The contest deadline is January 15, 1961.

Contest information says that while the plays are to be written for child audiences, the actors for which the lines are written need not be children.

Cancer Patients To Go Into Space

WASHINGTON (AP) — Exotic possibilities such as sending cancer patients into space for therapy from natural radiation are bundled up with mundane questions about administrative waste on earth in a report by the House Space Committee made public Sunday night.

The report on "Life Sciences and Space" amounts to a basic handbook on the problems that face man as he prepares to shove off from familiar earth to explore the solar system and delve into space beyond.

Chairman Overton Brooks, D-La., of the Committee on Science and Astronautics said the little volume reflects testimony by scientists given in hearings earlier this year. The testimony presented many interesting possibilities about life science and space, Brooks said.

"The possibilities are enormous and no one can say for certain that this is possible and this is not possible in this fascinating field," he added.

Among its conclusions, the committee said Congress should make clear to the executive branch that in expanding the various programs of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, the military services and other agencies that they must guard against wasteful duplication of effort or failure to use existing facilities.

Except for this advisory note, the report was devoted to considering the fantastic problems and possibilities as scientists begin to prepare for the day when men will follow the present instrumented probes into space aboard rocket vehicles.

In the process of devising techniques for these voyages, things may be discovered of profound influence to ordinary life on earth, the committee said.

An example: Research on mechanical organs to substitute in space for the normal respiratory, circulatory and other systems might mean that man could be converted into something semi-mechanical. If that could be done for space travel, why not utilize it as a device on earth to prevent massive failure of vital organs—a mechanical device to prevent death?

Here are some of the other questions and possibilities posed by the report:

How about the origin and nature of life? Will exploration of space show that life appears spontaneously, given the right environment? Did life first appear some other place and then was carried to earth "by natural forces or by some cosmic travelers of the past?"

"Perhaps some ingredient in the spectrum of radiation reaching a space ship will prove efficacious in treating some forms of cancer if the patient is sent up to a space station for therapy."

How will man go about living on the moon while he explores that close-in portion of space? "We do not know exactly what problems will be involved in planting a base under the surface (of the moon) for protection against meteors, temperature variation and radiation; and we do not know how soon local resources can be mined to supply power, water and oxygen," the report said.

Number 17 Not Quite Real Tops

NEW WORLD WRITING 17. Edited by Stewart Richardson and Corlies M. Smith. Lippincott. $1.65.

Eight short stories, three articles and six poems from two poets make up the newest volume in the series initiated by New American Library and now carried on by different publisher and editors.

The outstanding article is "Ezra Pound: The Guide to Kulchur," by Otto Friedrich. You may quarrel with some of his thinking about the contribution of the great foundations to a culture that always seems to have its hand out; the value of state subsidies; the utility and character of a Lincoln Center. But he is on surer ground in picturing Pound as a complex of distinct but overlapping quantities: The indubitably great poet, as of the "Pisan Cantos;" the anti - Semite; the wartime enemy of his native country; the advocate of crackpot financial theories. He thinks Pound should have been made to answer to the treason charge, but he also thinks the government should have been made to answer to Pound's criticisms — and it's a big but.

The poems in this book, as has happened before, are undistinguished. The short story writer to note first is Burton Raffel, and second, Ben Maddow; the one to skip is James Purdy. As with the other 16 books, you have the uneasy feeling that this, too, ought to be better, but you'd certainly hate it if some editor didn't keep trying.

Welsh Tale Grim, Wild And Stormy

Robe of Houour. By Alexander Cordell. Doubleday. $4.50.

You could mine or you could farm and, at each, you starved a little more each month, each year — that was the life of the hymn - singing Welsh in the 1830s and 1840s. The mine was down a shaky 100 - foot ladder, the roof was low, the props crumbling and, bare to the waist, man or woman, you crawled on hands and knees to bring out the black dust lumps in heavy baskets. If you farmed you found the squire putting up more and more highway gates at which he collected toll; it added a shilling to the cost of your lime and took off a shilling from the price you got for corn.

To burn the gates and toll houses, the downtrodden people organized the Rebeccas. Their faces blackened with soot, their sister's or wife's petticoat for disguise, their horses' hooves muffled in burlap, these doughty "daughters" raided by night and sometimes but not always, the dragoons caught up with them. A Rebecca, a Mortymer, young Jethro, is the hero of this fine pulsing romance.

Mam the mother is widowed; Mari has lost her husband, Iesthyn, Jethro's brother, to the soldiers who shipped him off to a penal colony; Morfydd has a boy by the man who didn't live to marry her. Their passions uncovered and raw, they live with the aged hard - drinking Grandfer, their tempers flaring, their hands equally quick for a slap, a blow or a gentle caress.

"All hail the power of Jesus' name," the whole town sings rousingly and religiously but that doesn't keep anybody from a tremendous lusting for a neighbor's girl, a housemaid, even a sister or sister - in - law. Mam is severe with all her brood — the boy and the two girls who nag at him, lovingly or hatefully, as he nags at them; but the mother herself, when she puts off mourning, has her suitors who come hanging over the front fence and asking her out for a walk.

There are superb moments of action, like the grim labor deep in the mine, the fight in the inn, the battle for life with the trooper, the fierce assaults of the rioters on their nighttime errands of destruction. But even more there are the heartbreaking encounters of man and maid, the impassioned embraces of the lovers, and the tearful everlasting farewells. This is a wild and stormy story.

Guide To Good Reading

New books to appeal to a variety of readers were received at the Ouachita Parish Public Library during the past week. Of great literary interest is "The Black Book" by Lawrence Durrell. This is a reprint of an earlier work, which was only published in England. With the emergence of Mr. Durrell as a major modern novelist, there is great interest in his earlier writings. Majo de la Roche has been writing about the people who live at Jalna for many years. It is amazing how she periodically comes up with a new title. Her latest one is called "Morning at Jalna" and has it's setting in the year 1865 and is concerned with Philip and Adeline Whiteoak and their adventures with a Confederate agent during the American Civil War. One of the better writers of historical novels is Shirley Seifert. Her latest book is called "Look to the Rose" and has it's setting in Savannah during the American Civil War. It will appeal especially to women, for it is the story of a courageous woman who lived during that period. It is also historically accurate.

Although Zane Grey has been dead many years, the executors of his estate bring out a new book, taken from the manuscripts he left, almost every year. The latest title is called "The Ranger and Other Stories" and those who like his works will want to read it.

Everyone who has an old book always thinks that it is valuable. Some of them are and many of them are not. If you have old books which you would like to evaluate we have a new book called "Gold in Your Attic" written by Van Allen Bradley. A book which could save lives if carefully heeded is "Heart Attack, New Hope, New Knowledge, New Life" by Myron Prinzmetal.

A book of practical use is the "New automobile repairs manual," edited by Harold Glenn and published by Chilton. This book will be widely used. Cook books are always popular with the library patrons. The newest one is "The Carlton Fredericks Cook Book for Good Nutrition" written by Carlton Fredericks. The book contains much valuable information about nutrition and menu planning as well as recipes.

Jean Kerr, who made such an impression with her "Please Don't Eat the Daisies" has written another humorous commentary on present day American life. It is called "The Snake Has All The Lines" and discusses with humor and wit everything from airplane travel to the ten worst things about a man. We predict a great popularity for this one. A new poetry collection, which will be very useful is "Selected poems of Robert Burns" selected and edited by G. S. Fraser. An informative, thought - proking book, seriously written for serious minds is "The Southerner as American" written by Charles Grier Sellers and published by the University of North Carolina. Reading this book should help people in all sections of the country to understand the Southern way of thought and life and how we became what we are.

Have you ever wondered how the everyday citizen of Russia lives? If so you will want to read "Main Street, U. S. S. R. written by Irving R. Levine. It is an illuminating title.

Books for teenagers are always welcome, for this is an age for which there has not been too much written until the last few years. Among the new titles this week are "The Book of Hugh Flower" by Lorna Beers, a lovely medieval story; "Bittersweet Autumn" by Grace G. Kisinger, which will appeal especially to girls; "Trouble in Hogback Hill" by James L. Summers, which will interest both boys and girls; "Jet Flier, by Joseph Archibald, who is most popular with boys and "Buffalo and Beaver" by Stephen W. Meader, one of our outstanding writers of outdoor life.

The genealogy collection of the Ouachita Parish Public Library is extremely popular with readers, not only from our own Parish, but from surrounding areas. This week a number of valuable additions have been made to the collection. All of these were memorial books, given by friends who knew the interests of the families of the departed ones. They all deal with Virginia and should help people doing research in this state. They are "Virginia Colonial Militia, 1651 - 1776;" by William A. Crozier; "The vestry book of Petsworth Parish (Gloucester County" Va. 1677-1793, copied and edited by C. G. Chamberlayn; "The Vestry Book of Blisland Parish (New Kent and James City Counties, edited by the same author; "The Vestry Book of Upper Nansemond County Virginia, 1743 - 1793" edited by Wilmer L. Hall. Marriage bonds and ministers returns of the following counties, each one a separate volume; "Southampton County, 1750-1810", Surry County, 1768 - 1825, Sussex County, 1754-1810, Greenville County, 1781-1825" and "Chesterfield County, 1771 - 1815" all of these books were compiled by Mrs. H. A. Knorr of Pine Bluff, Arkansas, who has made a wonderful contribution to our knowledge of Virginia. Last of all we have "Marriage Records of Brunswik County, Virginia, 1730-1852" compiled by Augusta B. Fothergill.

Business Better, Public Happier

By WILLIAM FERRIS
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Business made further autumn improvement last week and sentiment appeared to be a little happier.

It still was a question, however, as to whether this improvement was as much as might be expected at this time of year, when business normally is steaming ahead after a summer lull.

Undoubtedly the most interesting developments were in the automobile field, where 1961 models have gone on display. Public reaction to these models was being carefully watched as a guide to 1961 economic prospects.

Possibly significant was news from Chrysler Corp. that its dealers sold more cars in the first 10 days of October than for any such period since 1955. American Motors sales in this period were ahead of the impressive sales of a year ago.

EXTRA DIVIDEND

Directors of Ford Motor Co. declared an extra dividend, an action which could be taken as expressing confidence in the future as well as satisfaction with the past. Auto production moved up with compact car output at a record.

Freight carloadings advanced for the fourth straight week and steel production increased slightly, although operations at only a few percentage points above half-capacity obviously were not the reason for the wild cheering in Pittsburgh.

Some encouraging words came from Roger Blough, chairman of U. S. Steel Corp., whose record as a forecaster is better than most businessman and quite a few economists. (He was almost alone in a cautious approach at the start of 1960).

Blough told a Canadian meeting of the National Industrial Conference Board he was convinced the outlook is for "a strong and resilent long-run growth." He felt inventory reduction in steel had gone about as far as it can go.

HEAVY SUPPLIES

All was far from rosy, however. Heavy supplies continued to plague many industries. A notable example was copper, where all big producers cut prices of the red metal to 30 cents a pound from 33 cents.

Electricity production, a good measure of economic activity, provided little to cheer about. It declined slightly for the week, although running ahead of a year ago. But production in the important mid-Atlantic states showed a decline from a year earlier.

General Electric Co. had the rather dubious honor of providing examples of two developments in the business area: lower earnings and more labor trouble. Third quarter net income was 20 per cent below 1960 and the company was hit by a strike.

During last week the government reported a modest improvement in jobs. Employment totaled 67,767,000 and unemployment 3,388,000. Statistically, 57 out of 1,000 able and willing workers couldn't find jobs last month compared with 59 out of 1,000 a month earlier.

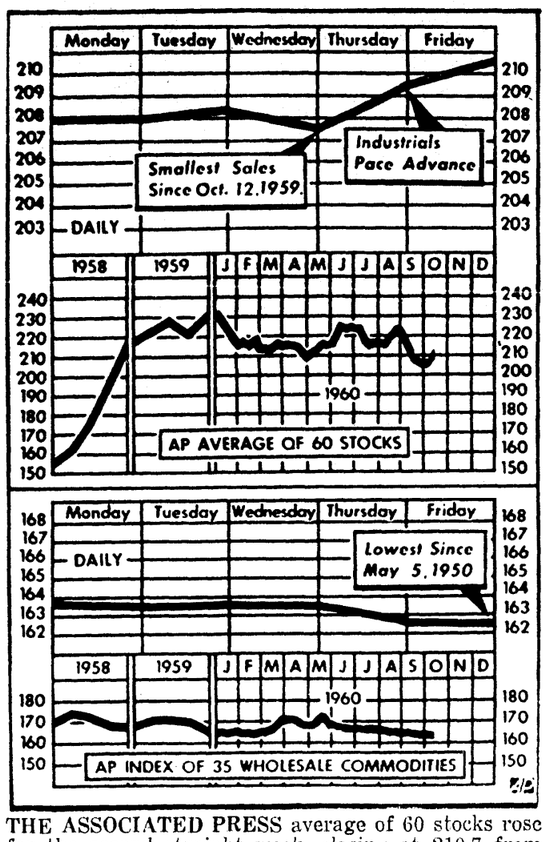
SHORTER WEEK

Somewhat disturbing was the report that the factory work week averaged 39.6 hours in September compared with 39.8 in August. Ordinarily, the work week lengthens before the number of jobs expands.

The Commerce Department reported that personal income in September moved to a record rate of $408,400,000,000 a year. However, the wage and salary income components in the total personal income figure declined slightly.

Trading in Wall Street was rather dull, possibly because of the World Series, but prices made further upward progress. Government bonds experienced one day of brisk demand and higher prices, but this activity quickly subsided.

FINANCIAL $ OIL-GAS NEWS



THE ASSOCIATED PRESS average of 60 stocks rose for the second straight week, closing at 210.7 from 208.0 a week ago. For the second week in a row the commodity index moved lower, closing at 162.5, the lowest point since May 5, 1950. A week earlier the index stood at 163.8. Livestock and nonferrous metals showed the largest losses. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

CHALLENGE TO STEEL

Aluminum Seeking Role In Oil World

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Aluminum is seeking a larger role in supplying equipment in the oil driller.

Manufacturers of the light weight metal hope eventually to be in position to make a serious challenge to steel's firm grip over the oil field equipment market.

Reynolds Metals Co. officials this week said the first commercial test of a full string of aluminum drill pipe has been completed successfully.

Additional tests are to be made but Reynolds officials believe aluminum drill pipe soon will be competing with steel.

Results of the test made on a Shell Oil Co. drilling rig in De Witt County, 140 miles southwest of Houston, exceeded expectations.

CAPACITY

The test indicated a conventional rig designed to handle 10,000 feet of steel drill pipe could handle 16,000 feet of aluminum pipe.

Economy of operation, therefore, is taking shape as one of the selling points aluminum will use when it is ready to enter the drill pipe market.

W. G. Reynolds, executive vice president, said the lightweight aluminum offers numerous possibilities for economy.

"Aluminum pipe weighs only about half as much as steel and for this reason aluminum drill pipe will penetrate up to twice as deep as steel before exceeding a rig's capacity," he said.

A 30-foot section of aluminum 4½-inch pipe weighs about 250 pounds, compared to 450 pounds for steel.

FACTORS

Other factors outlined by Reynolds included:

1. Reduced hoisting costs in that from one-third to one-half less horsepower is needed to pull and run a string of aluminum drill pipe.

2. Less expensive drilling equipment is needed because of aluminum's light weight.

3. Substantial savings in transportation costs in that more footage of drill pipe can be carried on a single truck when the pipe is moved to a new location.

4. Aluminum's high value as scrap.

"At present scrap market prices, a return of about $1.75 per foot can be realized after a piece of aluminum drill pipe becomes unusuable," Reynolds said.

He said there have been no signs of pitting or galvanic type corrosion in any of the tests and that wear from abrasion has been no worse than is normally encountered with steel pipe.

The drill pipe used by Shell was fitted with special tool joints engineered by Reed Roller Bit Co., a Houston firm that began a research program on aluminum drill pipe requirements four years ago.

Six years of research with a 500-foot string of pipe preceded the De Witt test. This 500-foot string drilled over 60,000 feet in various test areas.

Reynolds also is eyeing other items of oil field equipment.

In May a drilling rig with numerous parts made from aluminum was shipped to South America for use in the jungles of central Bolivia. Reynolds engineers helped design the rig. The aluminum parts cut the weight to less than 400,000 pounds or about half that of an equivalent conventional rig.

Two years ago Reynolds aided in designing and installing aluminum drilling platforms on Venezuela's Lake Maracaibo, where warm brackish waters present very severe corrosion problems.

HOW I TALKED MYSELF INTO $14,000

By a Wall Street Journal Subscriber

In meetings with business associates and customers I used to be the silent one. I used to "clam up" when the talk turned to politics or economics. All I could talk about was sports.

Then I started reading The Wall Street Journal. It gave me an understanding of what goes on in the world. I learned about the changes taking place in America — new inventions, new industries, new ways to earn money. In conversations with other men I found I could interpret business and government trends a little better than they could. They wondered where I got my "inside dope."

As a result, I gained confidence in talking with people. My boss gave me more important assignments. And my income increased. Last year I earned $14,000.

This story is typical. If you think The Wall Street Journal is just for millionaires, you are wrong. The Journal helps salaried men making $7,500 to $25,000 a year. It is valuable to small business men. It can be of enormous benefit to the ambitious young man who wants to win advancement.

The Wall Street Journal is the complete business DAILY. Has largest staff of writers on business and finance. The only business paper served by all three big press associations. It costs $24 a year, but you can get a Trial Subscription for three months for $7. Just tear out this ad and attach check for $7 and mail. Or tell us to bill you.

$1 MILLION-PLUS LAST WEEK

Sharp Decline Seen In Building Permits

Building permit values dipped to $34,955 last week, a sharp decline after the $1 million-plus of the previous week.

Dale Martha issued the following 16 permits:

Monday, Oct. 10:

Alva Spurlock, add carport to frame residence, 807 Thomas Ave., 240 square feet, $150.

J. P. Burke, add bedroom and living room to frame residence, 909 Thomas Ave., 182 square feet, $500.

R. O. Ware, add one room 163 square feet to frame residence, 1414 DeSiard St., $300.

Beulah Winslow, close in porch, 98 square feet, 3803 E. Gayton St., $25.

Tuesday, Oct. 11:

Frank Diggins, add 96 square feet to frame residence, 1206 Rogers, $100.

Wednesday, Oct. 12:

W. M. Morehead, add porch and bathroom to frame residence, 3104 Gayton St., 168 square feet, $150.

Thursday, Oct. 13:

Best Homes Co. Inc., construct frame model residence, five rooms and bath, 2011 Louisville Ave., 1020 square feet, $3000.

Jim Walters, construct frame model residence, three rooms and bath, 2004 Louisville Ave., 640 square feet, $2600.

Tina Parker, alter frame kitchen, 1001 Oak St., $1,000.

E. S. Rushing, construct brick veneer office, three rooms and bath, One Chauvin, 260 square feet, $750.

J. S. James received two permits to construct brick veneer residences: 1. Five rooms, two baths, 1375 square feet, 1101 Roselawn, $12,000; 2. Five rooms and bath, 1240 square feet, 1708 Reed St., $12,000.

A. F. McMullen, add carport and bath to frame residence, 912 S. Third St., $750.

Willie L. Toliver, alter frame porch, 1302 Grammont St., $30.

Friday, Oct. 14:

J. B. Sullivan, add carport and storage to brick veneer residence. 1700 South 10 St., 95 square feet, $600.

Frank Balsamo, move frame residence from 108 S. Third St. to 713 Mississippi, 20 by 40 by 18 feet high, $1000.

Gas Reduction Tax Increases Highway Funds

The scheduled one - cent reduction in the federal gasoline tax next June 30 will bring an increase of more than $225 million a year in funds available for the nation's interstate highway construction program, the Louisiana Petroleum Council parish organization noted today.

"Highway construction will benefit, not suffer, with expiration of the temporary gasoline levy," H. J. Geiger, Chairman Louisiana Petroleum Council pointed out.

"Congress has provided that when the federal tax drops back to three cents, some $802 million a year in automotive excise taxes that now go into the General Fund of the U. S. Treasury will then be earmarked for roadbuilding. This is well over $225 million more than now comes from the temporary one - cent gasoline levy, according to House Report 1120 presented in the last session of Congress," he noted.

Actor, Wife Separate

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actor Barry Sullivan, 47, and his wife Gita Hall, 31, have separated again, attorneys said Friday.

Guards Exchange Fire

VIENNA, Austria (AP)—Austrian and Communist Hungarian frontier guards have exchanged fire for the first time since the 1956 uprising in Hungary, an Austrian guard said Friday.

Customs guard Richard Kampits, 27, said he fired back two days ago when a Hungarian soldier shot at him and missed.

14 Well Completions Set New Record In Oil, Gas District

The Monroe Gas field of Union Parish came through last week and sent the total of new producers soaring to a new high for the year in the district with the completion of 12 wells.

Two other producers were reported in the 14-parish Monroe district of the State Department of Conservation bringing the total to 14, which is the largest number of completions in the district in a single week so far this year.

Duncan S. Cook, district manager, also listed in his report one re-completed well, 15 new locations and eight holes that were declared dry and abandoned. There were 28 active rigs in the fields of the district at the end of the week.

These are the new completions:

CONCORDIA

Milestone Forks Field —Union Producing Co. et al's H. A. Turner et al in sec. 17-8-10E, no. 9 completed to flow 87 barrels through a 7-64 in. choke from perforations at 5138 - 40 ft., tubing pressure 570 lbs., casing pressure 680 lbs., gas oil ratio 200:1, gravity 44.

LaSALLE

Olla Field — Ark Fuel Oil Corp.'s Trem. Lbr. Co. B-31 in sec. 29-10-2E, completed to pump 42 barrels from perforations at 2306 - 25 ft., gravity 29.

UNION

Monroe Field — La Gas Producing Co.'s Olin Gas Trans. Co. no. 23 in sec. 25-21-2E, completed to flow 810 MCF, rock pressure 970 lbs.

La Gas Prod. Co.'s Olin Gas Trans. Co. no. 28 in sec. 25-21-2E, completed to flow 850 barrels, rock pressure 970 lbs.

Monla Gas Co.'s H. D. Green no. 1 in sec. 30-22-3E, completed flow 143 MCF, rock pressure 945 lbs.

Monla Gas Co.'s Mrs. E. C. Traylor no. 1 in sec. 30-22-3E, completed to flow 323 MCF, rock pressure 1005 lbs.

Olin Gas Trans. Corp.'s Fee Gas no. 403 in sec. 35-21-3E, completed to flow 305 MCF, rock pressure 425 lbs.

Olin Gas Trans. Corp's Fee Gas no. 455 in sec. 34-21-3E, completed with an initial oil flow of 410 MCF, rock pressure 465 lbs.

Olin Gas Trans Corp.'s Fee Gas no. 456 in sec. 3-20-3E, completed with an initial oil flow of 374 MCF, rock pressure 485 lbs.

Southwest Gas Producing Co.'s La Gas Lands no. 3-A in sec. 32-23-4E, completed to flow 2530 MCF rock pressure 555 lbs.

Southwest Gas Producing Co.'s La Gas Lands no. 4 in sec. 32-23-4E, completed to flow 1960 MCF rock pressure 705 lbs.

Southwest Gas Producing Co.'s K. D. Lankford no. 16 in sec. 30-23-4E, completed to flow 1490 MCF rock pressure 800 lbs.

Southwest Gas Producing Co.'s K. D. Lankford no. 17 in sec. 30-23-4E, completed to flow 1630 MCF, rock pressure 805 lbs.

Southwest Gas Producing Co.'s Irma Haile No. 1 in sec. 13-22-3E, completed to flow 2790 MCF, rock pressure 465 lbs.

LaSALLE

Olla Field — Placid Oil Co.'s La Central no. 62 in sec. 2-9-2E, re-completed to pump 53 barrels from perforations 2258 - 68 ft.

These are the new locations:

CATAHOULA

Wildcat Field — Justiss - Mears Oil Co. et al's Isaac Boatner no. 1, located 1630 ft. north and 2310 ft. east of the SW corner of sec. 5-6-5E.

Marlin Exp.'s Catahoula Co. no. 1, located 330 ft. from the west line and 660 ft. from the south line of the SW¼-NW¼ of sec. 8-8-7E.

ABANDONMENTS

Three holes were plugged and abandoned in Catahoula Parish, one in the California Bayou Field and two in the Wildcat field of Concordia; one in the West Catahoula Lake Field of La Salle and one in the Olla field of the same parish; one in the Wildcat field of Richland and the final abandonment was in the Truxno field of Union Parish.

Second Amite Well May Be Bright Find

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—A second well shows the new McElveen field of Amite County may be one of the state's more promising oil finds.

The well is the Rimes No. 1 in the new McElveen field about six miles southwest of the McComb oil field. It logged 31 feet of oil sand, compared with 16 feet of sand in the discovery well.

The new Justiss-Mears, Barnwell & Latimer well is the northwest offset of the discovery well and is in section 23, 3 north 6 east. Production tests are now underway.

A new oil field find is assured in Adams County at Griffin & Keary's wildcat, the McGehee-Ford No. 1, sec. 30-5n-ew. The well flowed 175 barrels of oil per cent from 6,551-53 feet.

YAZOO COUNTY

In Yazoo County, Humble Oil is below 14,800 feet in its wildcat, the Thompson No. 1, sec. 3-9n-1w. Oil sands of undetermined commercial worth have been logged at 10,162 feet and at 10,297 feet. The venture is to go deep enough to test the Smackover lime, with the formation now being drilled thought to be the Cotton Valley.

In Jones County, Ginther, Warren & Co. have completed the Holifield No. 1, sec. 18-6n-11w, pumping 43 barrels daily from 8,992-9,004 feet. The wildcat is one mile north of the small Ovett field.

In Smith County near the Raleigh field, Kern County Land Co. has abandoned its wildcat, the Central No. 1, sec. 26-2n-7e, after unsuccessful tries to complete it. Operators perforated at 11,155-58 feet, with production tests recovering only a small amount of oil and salt water.

In Rankin County, American Petrofina Co. is below 11,850 feet in its important wildcat, the Ragsdale No. 1, sec. 19-5n-5e, with the hole scheduled to go to 12,000 feet. Oil shows of undetermined commercial worth have been logged at 10,242 and also at 10,789 feet.

ISSAQUENA COUNTY

In Issaquena County, Gulf Oil is below 8,100 feet in its wildcat, the Eable Bend No. 1, sec. 8-18n-3e, with the well set to go to 16,500 feet.

In Yazoo County, Gulf is below 9,200 feet in its wildcat, the West Satartia No. 1, sec. 33-10n-4w, with the well to go to 10,600 feet. The venture is about 3 miles east of an abandoned wildcat drilled last year that logged oil shows of uncommercial worth.

In Amite County, E. L. Erickson is below 7,00 feet in his wildcat, the Gaughan-O'Connor No. 1, sec. 6-3n-12w. The well was to go to 12,816 feet this year, with deepening plans to 13,416 feet later.

Field drilling during the past week saw three oil wells and one gas condensate well completed.

LITTLE CREEK

In the Little Creek oil field the Pike county side, Plymouth Oil Co., completed its Bacot heirs No. 2, sec. 4-4n-8e, pumping at the rate of 147 barrels of oil per day from 10,721-33 feet.

WITH INTRODUCTION OF '61 MODELS

Auto Price Classes Become Jumbled

By BEN PHLEGAR
AP Automotive Writer

DETROIT (AP) — One of the most necessary items at the current National Auto Show is a program. In the automobile game for 1961 it's mighty hard to tell the players without one.

The price classes, once a convenient way of separating the makes, are totally jumbled. Styling gimmicks have been borrowed and switched so liberally that, as one man said, only small boys and the manufacturers can tell the models apart at first glance.

As for price—you don't have to go very far back to remember the days of the "low-priced three." For 1961 this group might well be called the "low-priced 11," even though the prices aren't exactly low.

COMPACTS

The compacts, smaller in size but in some models every bit as big in price, crept in below the traditional Ford-Chevrolet-Plymouth grouping. At first it was Rambler; then Studebaker. Corvair, Falcon and Valiant came along and were joined in the spring by Comet.

The Dodge Lancer is the only new for-1961 model willing to be called a compact although the Buick Special, Pontiac Tempest and Oldsmobile F-5 are compact models of their parent cars.

Dodge has almost abandoned the medium-price field and with its full-sized Dart is competing model-for-model with Plymouth, Chevrolet and Ford. For the coming year Mercury figures its volume will come from two new series in this immediate price bracket.

In the higher-price field Chrysler has brought out a full new series marked $200 under anything the division offered last year.

The industry is waiting anxiously to see how the switches in pricing and size effect the market.

Olds and Buick particularly feel their smaller cars will attract shoppers who never considered these lines before. Lincoln-Mercury dealers, gratified at the new business attracted by their Comet, hope the lower-priced Mercurys increase their showroom traffic even more.

The new size cars also have given Pontiac a new target. The division already is second in total sales in General Motors and with its four-cylinder Tempest it is aiming at first in the smaller car GM field which includes Chevrolet's Corvair.

STYLING

As for styling, consider these switches selected at random:

All five General Motors cars—Chevrolet through Cadillac—have adopted strongly flavored Ford Motor Co. lines. The flat, squared-off roof line with wide rear side panels—first popularized on the Continental and Thunderbird—is available on all GM cars. The massive front bumpers, forward projecting fending lines and flaring rear bumpers of Olds, Buick and to some extent Cadillac also have been seen on the Continental and Lincoln.

Cotton Futures Closed Lower

NEW YORK (AP)—Cotton futures were mostly lower this week, closing 10 cents a bale higher to $1.80 a bale lower

The October 1960 delivery, in which trading expired Thursday, went off the board $1.55 a bale above the previous week's close. The strength of the October, 1960 delivery was attributed to short coverings stimulated by the prompt stoppage of notices.

The balance of the list showed firmness at times on demand influenced by expectations that total distribution of the staple this season will approximate the estimated crop and by the possibility of a relatively high 1961 crop price support level.

Gains subsequently eased however, on profit-taking and selling in the final day's session on the large acreage allotment for the 1961 crop.

Business Better, Public Happier

AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Business made further autumn improvement last week and sentiment appeared to be a little happier.

It still was a question, however, as to whether this improvement was as much as might be expected at this time of year, when business normally is steaming ahead after a summer lull.

Undoubtedly the most interesting developments were in the automobile field, where 1961 models have gone on display. Public reaction to these models was being carefully watched as a guide to 1961 economic prospects.

Possibly significant was news from Chrysler Corp. that its dealers sold more cars in the first 10 days of October than for any such period since 1955. American Motors sales in this period were ahead of the impressive sales of a year ago.

EXTRA DIVIDEND

Directors of Ford Motor Co. declared an extra dividend, an action which could be taken as expressing confidence in the future as well as satisfaction with the past. Auto production moved up with compact car output at a record.

Freight carloadings advanced for the fourth straight week and steel production increased slightly, although operations at only a few percentage points above half-capacity obviously were not the reason for the wild cheering in Pittsburgh.

Some encouraging words came from Roger Blough, chairman of U. S. Steel Corp., whose record as a forecaster is better than most businessman and quite a few economists. (He was almost alone in a cautious approach at the start of 1960).

Blough told a Canadian meeting of the National Industrial Conference Board he was convinced the outlook is for "a strong and resilient long-run growth." He felt inventory reduction in steel had gone about as far as it can go.

HEAVY SUPPLIES

All was far from rosy, however. Heavy supplies continued to plague many industries. A notable example was copper, where all big producers cut prices of the red metal to 30 cents a pound from 33 cents.

Electricity production, a good measure of economic activity, provided little to cheer about. It declined slightly for the week, although running ahead of a year ago. But production in the important mid-Atlantic states showed a decline from a year earlier.

General Electric Co. had the rather dubious honor of providing examples of two developments in the business area: lower earnings and more labor trouble. Third quarter net income was 20 per cent below 1960 and the company was hit by a strike.

During last week the government reported a modest improvement in jobs. Employment totaled 67,767,000 and unemployment 3,388,000. Statistically, 57 out of 1,000 able and willing workers couldn't find jobs last month compared with 59 out of 1,000 a month earlier.

SHORTER WEEK

Somewhat disturbing was the report that the factory work week averaged 39.6 hours in September compared with 39.8 in August. Ordinarily, the work week lengthens before the number of jobs expands.

The Commerce Department reported that personal income in September moved to a record rate of $408,400,000,000 a year. However, the wage and salary income components in the total personal income figure declined slightly.

Trading in Wall Street was rather dull, possibly because of the World Series, but prices made further upward progress. Government bonds experienced one day of brisk demand and higher prices, but this activity quickly subsided.

CHALLENGE TO STEEL

Aluminum Seeking Role In Oil World

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Aluminum is seeking a larger role in supplying equipment in the oil driller.

Manufacturers of the light weight metal hope eventually to be in position to make a serious challenge to steel's firm grip over the oil field equipment market.

Reynolds Metals Co. officials this week said the first commercial test of a full string of aluminum drill pipe has been completed successfully.

Additional tests are to be made but Reynolds officials believe aluminum drill pipe soon will be competing with steel.

Results of the test made on a Shell Oil Co. drilling rig in De Witt County, 140 miles southwest of Houston, exceeded expectations.

CAPACITY

The test indicated a conventional rig designed to handle 10,000 feet of steel drill pipe could handle 16,000 feet of aluminum pipe.

Economy of operation, therefore, is taking shape as one of the selling points aluminum will use when it is ready to enter the drill pipe market.

W. G. Reynolds, executive vice president, said the lightweight aluminum offers numerous possibilities for economy.

"Aluminum pipe weighs only about half as much as steel and for this reason aluminum drill pipe will penetrate up to twice as deep as steel before exceeding a rig's capacity," he said.

A 30-foot section of aluminum 4½-inch pipe weighs about 250 pounds, compared to 450 pounds for steel.

FACTORS

Other factors outlined by Reynolds included:

1. Reduced hoisting costs in that from one-third to one-half less horsepower is needed to pull and run a string of aluminum drill pipe.

2. Less expensive drilling equipment is needed because of aluminum's light weight.

3. Substantial savings in transportation costs in that more footage of drill pipe can be carried on a single truck when the pipe is moved to a new location.

4. Aluminum's high value as scrap.

"At present scrap market prices, a return of about $1.75 per foot can be realized after a piece of aluminum drill pipe becomes unusuable," Reynolds said.

He said there have been no signs of pitting or galvanic type corrosion in any of the tests and that wear from abrasion has been no worse than is normally encountered with steel pipe.

The drill pipe used by Shell was fitted with special tool joints engineered by Reed Roller Bit Co., a Houston firm that began a research program on aluminum drill pipe requirements four years ago.

Six years of research with a 500-foot string of pipe preceded the De Witt test. This 500-foot string drilled over 60,000 feet in various test areas.

Reynolds also is eyeing other items of oil field equipment.

In May a drilling rig with numerous parts made from aluminum was shipped to South America for use in the jungles of central Bolivia. Reynolds engineers helped design the rig. The aluminum parts cut the weight to less than 400,000 pounds or about half that of an equivalent conventional rig.

Two years ago Reynolds aided in designing and installing aluminum drilling platforms on Venezuela's Lake Maracaibo, where warm brackish waters present very severe corrosion problems.

HOW I TALKED MYSELF INTO $14,000

By a Wall Street Journal Subscriber

In meetings with business associates and customers I used to be the silent one. I used to "clam up" when the talk turned to politics or economics. All I could talk about was sports.

Then I started reading The Wall Street Journal. It gave me an understanding of what goes on in the world. I learned about the changes taking place in America – new inventions, new industries, new ways to earn money. In conversations with other men I found I could interpret business and government trends a little better than they could. They wondered where I got my "inside dope."

As a result, I gained confidence in talking with people. My boss gave me more important assignments. And my income increased. Last year I earned $14,000.

This story is typical. If you think The Wall Street Journal is just for millionaires, you are wrong. The Journal helps salaried men making $7,500 to $25,000 a year. It is valuable to small business men. It can be of enormous benefit to the ambitious young man who wants to win advancement.

The Wall Street Journal is the complete business DAILY. Has largest staff of writers on business and finance. The only business paper served by all three big press associations. It costs $24 a year, but you can get a Trial Subscription for three months for $7. Just tear out this ad and attach check for $7 and mail. Or tell us to bill you.

Published daily right in the Southwest to bring you vital business and Washington news immediately. Address: The Wall Street Journal, 911 Young St., Dallas 2, Texas.

$1 MILLION-PLUS LAST WEEK

Sharp Decline Seen In Building Permits

Building permit values dipped to $34,955 last week, a sharp decline after the $1 million-plus of the previous week.

Dale Martha issued the following 16 permits:

Monday, Oct. 10:

Alva Spurlock, add carport to frame residence, 807 Thomas Ave., 240 square feet, $150.

J. P. Burke, add bedroom and living room to frame residence, 909 Thomas Ave., 182 square feet, $500.

R. O. Ware, add one room 163 square feet to frame residence, 1414 DeSiard St., $300.

Beulah Winslow, close in porch, 98 square feet, 3803 E. Gayton St., $25.

Tuesday, Oct. 11:

Frank Diggins, add 96 square feet to frame residence, 1206 Rogers, $100.

Wednesday, Oct. 12:

W. M. Morehead, add porch and bathroom to frame residence, 3104 Gayton St., 168 square feet, $150.

Thursday, Oct. 13:

Best Homes Co. Inc., construct frame model residence, five rooms and bath, 2011 Louisville Ave., 1020 square feet, $3000.

Jim Walters, construct frame model residence, three rooms and bath, 2004 Louisville Ave., 640 square feet, $2600.

Tina Parker, alter frame kitchen, 1001 Oak St., $1,000.

E. S. Rushing, construct brick veneer office, three rooms and bath, One Chauvin, 260 square feet, $750.

J. S. James received two permits to construct brick veneer residences: 1. Five rooms, two baths, 1375 square feet, 1101 Roselawn, $12,000; 2. Five rooms and bath, 1240 square feet, 1708 Reed St., $12,000.

A. F. McMullen, add carport and bath to frame residence, 912 S. Third St., $750.

Willie L. Toliver, alter frame porch, 1302 Grammont St., $30.

Friday, Oct. 14:

J. B. Sullivan, add carport and storage to brick veneer residence. 1700 South 10 St., 95 square feet, $600.

Frank Balsamo, move frame residence from 108 S. Third St. to 713 Mississippi, 20 by 40 by 18 feet high, $1000.

Gas Reduction Tax Increases Highway Funds

The scheduled one - cent reduction in the federal gasoline tax next June 30 will bring an increase of more than $225 million a year in funds available for the nation's interstate highway construction program, the Louisiana Petroleum Council parish organization noted today.

"Highway construction will benefit, not suffer, with expiration of the temporary gasoline levy," H. J. Geiger, Chairman Louisiana Petroleum Council pointed out.

"Congress has provided that when the federal tax drops back to three cents, some $802 million a year in automotive excise taxes that now go into the General Fund of the U. S. Treasury will then be earmarked for roadbuilding. This is well over $225 million more than now comes from the temporary one - cent gasoline levy, according to House Report 1120 presented in the last session of Congress," he noted.

Guards Exchange Fire

VIENNA, Austria (AP)—Austrian and Communist Hungarian frontier guards have exchanged fire for the first time since the 1956 uprising in Hungary, an Austrian guard said Friday.

Customs guard Richard Kampits, 27, said he fired back two days ago when a Hungarian soldier shot at him and missed.

WITH INTRODUCTION OF '61 MODELS

Auto Price Classes Become Jumbled

By BEN PHLEGAR
AP Automotive Writer

DETROIT (AP) — One of the most necessary items at the current National Auto Show is a program. In the automobile game for 1961 it's mighty hard to tell the players without one.

The price classes, once a convenient way of separating the makes, are totally jumbled. Styling gimmicks have been borrowed and switched so liberally that, as one man said, only small boys and the manufacturers can tell the models apart at first glance.

As for price—you don't have to go very far back to remember the days of the "low-priced three." For 1961 this group might well be called the "low-priced 11," even though the prices aren't exactly low.

COMPACTS

The compacts, smaller in size but in some models every bit as big in price, crept in below the traditional Ford-Chevrolet-Plymouth grouping. At first it was Rambler; then Studebaker, Corvair, Falcon and Valiant came along and were joined in the spring by Comet.

The Dodge Lancer is the only new for-1961 model willing to be called a compact although the Buick Special, Pontiac Tempest and Oldsmobile F-5 are compact models of their parent cars.

Dodge has almost abandoned the medium-price field and with its full-sized Dart is competing model-for-model with Plymouth, Chevrolet and Ford. For the coming year Mercury figures its volume will come from two new series in this immediate price bracket.

In the higher-price field Chrysler has brought out a full new series marked $200 under anything the division offered last year.

The industry is waiting anxiously to see how the switches in pricing and size effect the market.

Olds and Buick particularly feel their smaller cars will attract shoppers who never considered these lines before. Lincoln-Mercury dealers, gratified at the new business attracted by their Comet, hope the lower-priced Mercurys increase their showroom traffic even more.

The new size cars also have given Pontiac a new target. The division already is second in total sales in General Motors and with its four-cylinder Tempest it is aiming at first in the smaller car GM field which includes Chevrolet's Corvair.

STYLING

As for styling, consider these switches selected at random:

All five General Motors cars—Chevrolet through Cadillac—have adopted strongly flavored Ford Motor Co. lines. The flat, squared-off roof line with wide rear side panels—first popularized on the Continental and Thunderbird—is available on all GM cars. The massive front bumpers, forward projecting fending lines and flaring rear bumpers of Olds, Buick and to some extent Cadillac also have been seen on the Continental and Lincoln.

Pontiac has returned to the divided grille which was its distinguishing feature in 1959. Last year the ill-fated Edsel borrowed it. For 1960 Pontiac switched to a wide grille pointed forward in the middle. For 1961 the Dodge Lancer took over that one.

Dodge Dart is using a concave grille like the one Falcon had last year. The side view of Chevrolet's front fenders reminds some of the 1960 Plymouth styling.

The Rambler American borrows Corvair-styled round tail lights and in its new convertible has some of the flavor of the Lark convertible.

RAMBLER

The standard Rambler, to be know now as the Rambler Classic, uses a front grille much like the one you saw on the 1960 Chevrolet. Ford, which switched back to its basic styling of 1957 and 1959, has a front-end treatment similar to the 1960 Cadillac.

Mercury's new rear-end arrangement has been seen before on the Continental. Lincoln Continental for 1961 goes to the conservative single tail light once used on the ultra expensive Mark II series of Continental.

Slanted headlights on Chrysler and De Soto have been used previously by Lincoln and Continental while the fins on the Imperial have been squared off in the Cadillac fashion of a year or two ago.

These are personal impressions. Yours may be different. But similarity, rather than difference, appears to be the rule.

14 Well Completions Set New Record In Oil, Gas District

The Monroe Gas field of Union Parish came through last week and sent the total of new producers soaring to a new high for the year in the district with the completion of 12 wells.

Two other producers were reported in the 14-parish Monroe district of the State Department of Conservation bringing the total to 14, which is the largest number of completions in the district in a single week so far this year.

By RICHARD GREENE
Oil Editor

Duncan S. Cook, district manager, also listed in his report one re-completed well, 15 new locations and eight holes that were declared dry and abandoned. There were 28 active rigs in the fields of the district at the end of the week.

These are the new completions:

CONCORDIA

Milestone Forks Field —Union Producing Co. et al's H. A. Turner et al in sec. 17-8-10E, no. 9 completed to flow 87 barrels through a 7-64 in. choke from perforations at 5138 - 40 ft., tubing pressure 570 lbs., casing pressure 680 lbs., gas oil ratio 200:1, gravity 44.

LaSALLE

Olla Field — Ark Fuel Oil Corp.'s Trem. Lbr. Co. B-31 in sec. 29-10-2E, completed to pump 42 barrels from perforations at 2306 - 25 ft., gravity 29.

UNION

Monroe Field — La Gas Producing Co.'s Olin Gas Trans. Co. no. 23 in sec. 25-21-2E, completed to flow 810 MCF, rock pressure 970 lbs.

La Gas Prod. Co.'s Olin Gas Trans. Co. no. 28 in sec. 25-21-2E, completed to flow 850 barrels, rock pressure 970 lbs.

Monla Gas Co.'s H. D. Green no. 1 in sec. 30-22-3E, completed flow 143 MCF, rock pressure 945 lbs.

Monla Gas Co.'s Mrs. E. C. Traylor no. 1 in sec. 30-22-3E, completed to flow 323 MCF, rock pressure 1005 lbs.

Second Amite Well May Be Bright Find

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—A second well shows the new McElveen field of Amite County may be one of the state's more promising oil finds.

The well is the Rimes No. 1 in the new McElveen field about six miles southwest of the McComb oil field. It logged 31 feet of oil sand, compared with 16 feet of sand in the discovery well.

The new Justiss-Mears, Barnwell & Latimer well is the northwest offset of the discovery well and is in section 23, 3 north 6 east. Production tests are now underway.

A new oil field find is assured in Adams County at Griffin & Keary's wildcat, the McGehee-Ford No. 1, sec. 30-5n-ew. The well flowed 175 barrels of oil per cent from 6,551-53 feet.

YAZOO COUNTY

In Yazoo County, Humble Oil is below 14,800 feet in its wildcat, the Thompson No. 1, sec. 3-9n-1w. Oil sands of undetermined commercial worth have been logged at 10,162 feet and at 10,297 feet. The venture is to go deep enough to test the Smackover lime, with the formation now being drilled thought to be the Cotton Valley.

In Jones County, Ginther, Warren & Co. have completed the Holifield No. 1, sec. 18-6n-11w, pumping 43 barrels daily from 8,992-9,004 feet. The wildcat is one mile north of the small Ovett field.

In Smith County near the Raleigh field, Kern County Land Co. has abandoned its wildcat, the Central No. 1, sec. 26-2n-7e, after unsuccesstul tries to complete it. Operators perforated at 11,155-58 feet, with production tests recovering only a small amount of oil and salt water.

In Rankin County, American Petrofina Co. is below 11,850 feet in its important wildcat, the Ragsdale No. 1, sec. 19-5n-5e, with the hole scheduled to go to 12,000 feet. Oil shows of undetermined commercial worth have been logged at 10,242 and also at 10,789 feet.

ISSAQUENA COUNTY

In Issaquena County, Gulf Oil is below 8,100 feet in its wildcat, the Eable Bend No. 1, sec. 8-18n-3e, with the well set to go to 16,500 feet.

In Yazoo County, Gulf is below 9,200 feet in its wildcat, the West Satartia No. 1, sec. 33-10n-4w, with the well to go to 10,600 feet. The venture is about 3 miles east of an abandoned wildcat drilled last year that logged oil shows of uncommercial worth.

In Amite County, E. L. Erickson is below 7,00 feet in his wildcat, the Gaughan-O'Connor No. 1, sec. 6-3n-12w. The well was to go to 12,816 feet this year, with deepening plans to 13,416 feet later.

Field drilling during the past week saw three oil wells and one gas condensate well completed.

LITTLE CREEK

In the Little Creek oil field the Pike county side, Plymouth Oil Co., completed its Bacot heirs No. 2, sec. 4-4n-8e, pumping at the rate of 147 barrels of oil per day from 10,721-33 feet.

Cotton Futures Closed Lower

NEW YORK (AP)—Cotton futures were mostly lower this week, closing 10 cents a bale higher to $1.80 a bale lower

The October 1960 delivery, in which trading expired Thursday, went off the board $1.55 a bale above the previous week's close. The strength of the October, 1960 delivery was attributed to short coverings stimulated by the prompt stoppage of notices.

The balance of the list showed firmness at times on demand influenced by expectations that total distribution of the staple this season will approximate the estimated crop and by the possibility of a relatively high 1961 crop price support level.

Gains subsequently eased however, on profit-taking and selling in the final day's session on the large acreage allotment for the 1961 crop.

PAUL MARTIN LOOKS 'EM OVER

Long Live The Pirates

The World Series is over. The Pittsburgh Pirates won it and deserved everything they got. The Yankees won their share with sheer bat power and with apparent ease, but as long as there was a chance in the close ones it was the Pirates who fought the Yanks to a standstill to pick up the tough ones.

The Pirates earned their world championship as most anti-Yanks will agree even if some die-hards grab for the Tony Kubek incident as a crutch. While the Bucs were earning their's, it was almost as if the Yankees were made presents of the three they won.

A couple of weeks ago we said the Yankees "could" end the series in five games. If they played the series over next week, the Yanks still "could" win it, but you can bet the Pirates would get a lot more consideration.

It was not for love of the New York outfit that we picked the Yanks to win it. We've long pulled for underdog teams and think domination of any sport by one team isn't good. We look coldly at the facts and frequently pick teams to win that we hope takes a licking.

A case in point close to home is the Northeast State Indians. Coach Jack Rowan has a good team. We think it has improved a lot over last year. Pre-game statistics indicate McNeese State should win last night's game. So we are on record as favoring McNeese. But we were not pulling for a McNeese victory. Don't you believe it. We would be happy to be wrong if the score shows a Northeast upset.

No matter who you were pulling for in the series, it was a good one. It had color. It was a storybook series. We picked the Yanks because we thought they had the guns. Who would have thought they would shoot up all their ammunition in three games.

Personally, we're glad the Pirates won if for no other reason than that Ted Heckathorn, who used to work in our sports department, was a solid Pirate fan in the years when the Bucs couldn't get out of the second division. Ted, no longer writing sports, is happy now that the Pirates are on top.

Pirate fan Mabry H. Hinton, Perryville, debunked series experience and batting power as any reason to support the Yankees. He was the only anti-Yank to honor his difference with his signature in a pre-series note to us. So he's entitled to say, "I told you so."

There's always some who must be ashamed of their convictions. They don't sign their cards or letters. The champ non-signer this year is a guy who waits until the series is over, then can't wait to get his note through the mail chute. Makes you wonder if he didn't bet on the Yanks, lose his shirt, and want to take it out on us. Should teach him not to gamble. For every winner there is a loser.

Basket Clinics, Tests

Basketball officials and coaches take note. Rules clinics got underway in south Louisiana the past week, and the Louisiana High School Athletic Association events will move into this area with clinics at Ferriday and Monroe as well as other north Louisiana cities.

T. H. Waters, commissioner of the LHSAA, advises rules clinics for both boys and girls basketball, are scheduled for Ferriday High School gymnasium Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

The Monroe clinic, scheduled for the Ouachita Parish High gym, will be held a week later, Wednesday, Oct. 26, also at 7:30 p.m.

Clinics the past week were at Hammond and Thibodaux. Others still on tap in north Louisiana areas are Natchitoches, next Monday; Shreveport, next Tuesday, and Alexandria, Oct. 27.

"I want to urge all officials and coaches to attend one of these clinics," Waters reports. "They are for the purpose of reviewing and interpreting old and new rules as well as for teaching and discussing the techniques of officiating.

At the LHSAA spring meeting this year a new rule was passed making it mandatory that only officials who have passed supervised rules tests shall officiate in basketball tournaments and playoffs.

Waters said this rule is being waived until December 1 because there is a limited number of officials able to qualify under the rule. By December 1 the officials will have had ample time to qualify and apply to the mandate of the state's high schools.

Rules tests are scheduled for November. The dates for the tests in the various districts are Hammond, Nov. 10; Monroe, Natchitoches, and Baton Rouge, Nov. 14; Ferriday, Shreveport, and Thibodaux, Nov. 15; Alexandria, DeRidder, and New Orleans, Nov. 16; and Lake Charles and Lafayette, Nov. 17.

Gibbs Steers Ole Miss Past Tulane, 26-13

By ED TUNSTALL

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Quarterback Jake Gibbs weaved his magic from behind an impenetrable web Saturday night and directed top-ranked Mississippi to a 26-13 Southeastern Conference victory over hard-knocking Tulane before 72,000 fans.

Gibbs, 22-year-old senior from Grenada, Miss., threw three touchdown passes to end Johnny Brewer and scored the other Mississippi tally on a six-yard run.

But before the Rebels chalked up their fifth straight victory without a loss, they had to subdue a stubborn Tulane offensive sparked by the passing of quarterback Phil Nugent.

The Rebels, the nation's No. 1 team in the Associated Press poll, collected their first touchdown on a 42-yard pass from Gibbs to Brewer on the opening play of the second quarter. Halfback George Blair's kick pushed the Rebels out in front 7-0.

In the third quarter, the Rebels posted touchdown No. 2 following recovery of a Tulane fumble from the Tulane 37. Mississippi scored in nine plays with Gibbs rolling around left end for the touchdown and the Rebels left the field at halftime with a 13-0 margin.

Guard Billy Ray Jones recovered Tulane halfback Tom Mason's fumble on the Tulane 14 in the third period and on the next play, Gibbs fired to Brewer for the score.

The final Mississippi touchdown came with 10 minutes left with Gibbs again connecting to Brewer for 23 yards.

Nugent was the driving force in both Tulane touchdown drives. The broad-shoulder Tulane signal caller threw to Mason for the first touchdown in the third period and was the shining light in producing the second touchdown, climaxed by halfback Billy Ary's one-yard plunge in the closing minutes.

Breaks Backfire To Ruin Indians

By BOB ANDERSON
The World Sports Editor

LAKE CHARLES, LA. — Northeast's Indians failed as both opportunists and gamblers here Saturday night as the McNeese Cowboys took a 14-8 Gulf States Conference victory.

The Tribe cashed in on only one of three golden scoring opportunities and one gamble — a pass deep in McNeese territory — was intercepted by Cowboys halfback Charlie Stevenson.

The other Northeast threat ended on the Cowboy 13 on fourth down.

Northeast recovered three fumbles, two of them grabbed by tackle Luther French, and use the second to set up a 38-yard TD march climaxed by Don Wattigny's one foot quarterback sneak into the end zone.

McNeese, playing before a homecoming crowd, scored first in the second period as deadeye Don Breaux, the conference's total offense and passing leader, engineered a 61 - yard march ended by Breaux' one - yard sneak.

The Cowboys scored again early in the third when Stevenson intercepted the other gamble a Ferdy Cruce pass on the Northeast 19.

Halfback Ted Brevelle scored three plays later on a three-yard trip off tackle. Lenny Kahn kicked his second extra point to give the Cowboys a 14-0 lead.

Northeast had threatened in the second period when French recovered a Breaux bobble on the McNeese 34. Cruce reeled off a 17-yard run around end on the first play but the Tribe gained only three yards in the next three plays.

On fourth down at the 'Poke 14, Jack Webb attempted to pass, was rushed badly and had to run. He made it only to the 13 and McNeese took over.

Stevenson, Rayville's gift to Les Devall's Cowboys had a great night. He intercepted three Northeast passes to more than make up for a fumble of a punt that gave Northeast a chance to go ahead in the fourth period.

Stevenson dropped John Kelly's 41-yard punt on his 25 and Indian Billy Foster recovered on the Cowboys' 29.

Don Wattigny gained three, Willie Ragan five and Al Ott two for a first down on the 19 but Wattigny tried a pass on first down and Stevenson picked it off at the five and returned to the 20. That was the last Indian threat although they got hold of the ball two more times in the fourth.

The Tribe took over after a punt on the Northeast 34 a few plays later but could only gain eight.

Then in the fading moments, the Indians got the ball again after a punt at their 9 but Stevenson capped a great night of crime with his third interception, grabbing a Webb pass at the 35 and returning to the 17. The game ended before another play could be run.

The victory shoved McNeese over the 500 mark for the season. The Cowboys now have a 3-record and Northeast 2-3 mark. Both are 1-1 in the GSC now.

Except for the one scoring drive, Northeast's offense never really got going. Johnny Steed, Lenny Kahn, Malcolm Kraus and Reuben Davis throttled most of the Tribe's offensive thrusts and never gave the Indian passers a leisurely moment. Northeast completed only two of seven passes.

McNeese's line gave Breaux good protection and the tall junior hit on four of eight throws for 62 yards.

Nolan Viator played most of the game at quarterback for the home club and stuck strictly to the ground.

Northeast's defense, led by French, Foster, Delmas Thorne, Dan Keith and Gerry Marchbank, didn't do too bad against the 'Poke ground game, although the cow hands picked up 157 yards overland, but they never gave Breaux the big rush act on pass plays.

McNeese started its first scoring drive on its 39 late in the fourth. Breaux hit Lloyd Guillot with a 19-yard pass on the first play and later hit the same halfback with an 11-yard toss to keep the push moving.

Early in the second, the quarterback moved off guard for a yard and the touchdown.

McNeese kicked off to open the second half and Ken Thornhill returned from the end zone to the 20. Cruce lost two yards and Ragan lost one. Since the ground game was going backwards, the Tribe decided to throw and Cruce, on a pitchout, tossed it. Stevenson grabbed it at the 35 and dashed to the 19. Viator picked up five, Brevelle eight, Viator three and Brevelle carried in on in from the three.

Then French recovered another bobble by Brevelle at the McNeese 38. Wattigny went around end for 13 and later alled to Cruce who went for nine more to the 16. Wattigny gained one, Ott six, Wattigny two and Payne made the first down to the four. Payne went for three again, Wattigny gained only a couple of feet on the right side, then went to the left for the touchdown.

Ragan lined up as if to kick the extra point but the pass from center was low to Webb, down as if to hold. Joe Friday stood up and hit Gene Harbert under the goal posts for the two-pointer and McNeese led, 14-8, with 3:42 left in the third.

On the first play of the fourth, Stevenson punted to the Tribe 27. The Indians couldn't go and Kelly, who punted for a 40-yard average during the evening, booted it right back to Stevenson at the 25. Charlie dropped it and Foster recovered at the 29. Then came Stevenson's game — saving interception.

Cruce was the top Northeast ground - gainer with 31 yards on seven carries. Wattigny netted 24 yards on eight trips and Ott got 21 yards in nine carries.

Viator was the top mover overland for McNeese, gaining 51 yards in nine rushes.

OFFENSIVE BATTLE

LaGrange Gators Dump Rebels For 40-19 Win

By JERRY HARKNESS
Staff Sports Writer

A highly polished, hard working LaGrange Gator football machine invaded West Monroe last night and ruined Homecoming festivities by pounding out a 40-19 victory over the hard - hitting Rebels.

West Monroe fought down to the wire and turned the tide for a brief span in the last half, but the passing of Gator quarterback Richard Guillory kept the Rebs guessing for most of the bruising battle.

The Gators from Lake Charles showed why they are ranked high among the state's best, from the opening kickoff of last night's game, moving the ball in for a score after only four plays from scrimmage. Bruising halfback James Bryan blasted through the Rebel secondary and scored from 21 yards out to put the Gators ahead, 6-0. After West Monroe was forced to punt on the next set of downs LaGrange came right back for another touchdown, with Bryan going over again, this time on a 60 yard sprint, refusing to go down after being hit by several Rebels. Fullback George Berger ran the point after for a 13-0 lead.

West Monroe wasn't playing dead and with only 45 seconds gone in the second period quarterback Jimmy VanZile hit fullback John Covington with a pass at the Gator 17 - yard - line and the fullback put his head down and barreled into pay dirt from the 13. They try for the point after failed.

Guillory started his roll out option antics with 7:09 minutes left in the second period and hit end C. G. Babin with one of three of his touchdown passes. Babin was all alone in the left corner of the end zone. Guillory added the extra point.

The Gators drove to the Rebel four, aided by a 26 yard Guillory to Bryan pass, late in the second period and Berger blasted over for a 26-6 LaGrange lead.

After a LaGrange score was called back for a holding penalty, the Gators drove to the Rebel five where Guillory hit Babin with a flat pass for the touchdown. Guillory added the extra point and LaGrange held a 33-6 halftime advantage.

After a scoreless third period the Rebels began to come alive on rugged defensive play by the entire forward wall and some fine running by halfback Billy Doerner who was hurt midway in the final quarter. West Monroe scored two touchdowns in the last quarter, the first on a beautiful 34-yard pass from Jimmy VanZile to Buck Fox. Leading by 33-12, Gator quarterback Guillory was rushed hard by Reb center Richard Cook and threw a bad pass that was picked off by Jim VanZile. The Rebels then executed the game's finest play, with VanZile handing off to Don Harrel who went to the left, stopped and passed back to VanZile, who was all alone downfield. The trackster turned on the speed and went 46 yards for a touchdown. Covington added the point after.

LaGrange scored the final touchdown on a lofty pass from Guillory to Babin covering 37 yards, with 57 seconds left in the game. Guillory booted the extra point.

Snead Birdie Binge Catches Wall After 36

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (AP)—Ageless Sam Snead birdied six of the last eight holes Saturday to grab a tie with Art Wall Jr. after 36 holes of the West Virginia State Open Golf Tournament. Each was 12 strokes under par with a 126 total.

Snead galloped home with his second straight 64 at the two-thirds mark of the 54-hole medal play event to be concluded over the par-70 Spring Valley Country Club course Sunday.

The Slammer made the turn on his round even with par, but beat regulation by six strokes with a 29 on the second nine. Wall, leader by two strokes with a course record 62 in Friday's opening 18-hole round, carded a 66.

Five strokes off the pace with a 133 was Arnold Palmer, who fired a 67. Deadlocked with 136s were pros Don Shock of Columbus, Ohio, and Jim Barber of Winchester, Ky.

Jaguars Master Arkansas Rivals In 26-24 Scrap

PINE BLUFF, Ark., (Special)—Cyrus Lancaster and Robert Sims notched two touchdowns each to lead the Southern University Jaguars a 26-14 SWAC football win over Arkansas AM&N here Saturday night.

Lancaster, Southern's All - American quarterback candidate, sent the Jaguars into a 6-0 first quarter lead with a 49 - yard scamper from scrimmage, then followed with a tingling 35 - yard exhibition in the second quarter.

Tech Overhauls Pensacola Navy

By PETE DOSHER

RUSTON, La. (Special) — Louisiana Tech's Paul Hynes dashed 58 yards for one touchdown, caught a 14-yard pass for another, and set up a third with an interception here last night to lead the Louisiana Tech Bulldogs to a 28-19 victory over a strong Pensacola Navy eleven.

Tech's secondary, led by Johnny Hudson's three interceptions, kept the Flyers aerial barrage under control most of the night, allowing only four completions and grabbing off six of the Navy's 21 passes.

The Techsters built up a 28-6 lead over the Groshawks before the Navy outfit rallied for two TDs in the final quarter to narrow the margin.

Tech had ten first down to six for the Navy, but the Floyers outgained the Bulldogs in total yardage, 265 to 241. Although completing only four passes, Pensacola struck for distance on those, gaining 158 yards through the air.

Dick Super was a standout runner for the Navy team. He got behind Tech's secondary for the Navy's first score on a 69-yard pass play and got off a 62-yard gallop from scrimmage.

The Bulldogs got a TD with 4:25 left in the second period, covering 47 yards in 14 plays. Mickey Slaughter hit Hynes with a 14-yard scoring toss.

Bud Alexander kicked the extra point.

Pensacola struck back swiftly with a lightning pass play when Kelvin Huehn hit Super on the play covering 69 yards. The extra point try was blocked.

Tech took the ensuing kickoff and went 70 yards in 11 plays with four pass completions by Slaughter eating up most of the yardage. Slaughter hit Tom Causey on passes of 16 and 11 yards, Hynes for 24 yards, and a 12-yard toss to Jerry Hudson that carried to the three. Slaughter took it over and Alexander's kick gave Tech a 14-6 lead with 2:05 left in the half.

Tech got a one - chance golden opportunity for another TD when Johnny Hudson intercepted a Navy pass at the Pensacola 45, rammed to the 30, and lateralled to Jack Lestage who was knocked out of bounds at the one with one second left. Lestage was halted in one thrust at the line as the half ended.

The Bulldogs wasted no time extending their lead after the half when Hynes, on the first play from scrimmage, went 5 yards for the TD and Alexander added his third extra to make it 21-6.

A few moments later Hynes intercepted a Navy pass at midfield and returned it two yards. Slaughter hit Causey for 13 and Jerry Hudson on a 26 - yarder that carried to the two. Max Rudd bucked it over, and Alexander's kick made it 28-6.

Super, a real swifty, returned the kickoff 21 to the Navy 35 and then got loose for 62 to the Tech three. However, Tech held and took over at the four.

The Navy pushed over two TDS in the final period to close the gap. Huehn connected with Bill Brennan on a 56 - yard aerial to the Tech three. Three plays later Huehn, on a running play, recovered a fumble in the endzone for a touchdown. Dick Marks' kick was good, cutting the margin to 28-13.

A fumble at the Tech 19 gave the Flyers another chance. Johnny Arms, ex - SLI star, took it over from the seven. A pass try for the point was no good.

The Tech men were knocking on the door again at the Navy five after a sixth interception of the night, but time ran out.

Fernandez Gets Nod Over Moyer

NEW YORK (AP)—Jorge Fernandez, an aggressive welterweight from Buenos Aires, gained a unanimous 10-round decision over favored Denny Moyer Saturday night in a nationally televised fight at Madison Square Garden.

Fernandez kept the pressure on the slick-boxing Moyer all the way to gain a 5-4-1 edge on the score cards of Referee Arthur Mercante and Judge Leo Birnbaum. Judge Joe Agnello scored it 6-4 for the Argentine slugger.

21-Game Fare For La. Tech Cage Squad

RUSTON (Special) — A 21-game schedule and participation in the annual Gulf South Classic at Shreveport is on tap for Coach Cecil Crowley's re - building Louisiana Tech cagers during the fast approaching season.

Basketball practice gets underway at Tech Monday, with one starter back from last year and six lettermen.

One of the new features of the Tech schedule is a twinbill on consecutive nights featuring Tech, Northwestern State, Southwest Texas and Mississippi Southern. Southwest Texas won the NAIA title this past season.

All four of the teams involved fielded topflight quintets a year ago. In the first night of action in the doubleheader, Tech plays Southwest Texas and Northwestern State meets Mississippi Southern. The next night, Dec. 13, Tech plays Southern and NSC meets the Texas club.

Tech plays its first five games at home before hitting the road during the Christmas holidays to compete in the Gulf South Classic at Shreveport. Besides the consecutive doubleheaders, Tech meets Southeast Oklahoma, East Texas State and Mississippi Tech meets Southeast Oklahoma, Tast Texas State and Mississippi State in Ruston in early December.

Here is the Tech schedule:
Dec. 3—Southeast Oklahoma at Ruston.
Dec. 5—East Texas State at Ruson.
Dec. 8—Miss. State at Ruston.
Dec. 12—Twin bill at Ruson (Tech vs. Southwest Texas and Northwestern State vs. Miss. Southern).
Dec. 13—Twin bill at Ruston (Tech vs. Miss. Southern and Northwestern State vs. Southwest Texas).
Dec. 28, 29 and 30—Gulf South Classic at Shreveport.
Jan. 2—Arkansas Tech at Ruston.
Jan. 5—U. of Southwestern at Ruston.
Jan. 7—Northwestern State at Natchitoches.
Jan. 10—Southeastern at Ruston.
Jan. 16—McNeese State at Lake Charles.
Jan. 21—Northeast State at Ruston.
Jan. 26—Arkansas Tech at Russellville, Ark.
Jan. 30—Miss. Southern at Hattiesburg.
Feb. 2—U. of Southwestern at Lafayette.
Feb. 4—Centenary College at Ruston.
Feb. 6—Southeastern at Hammond.
Feb. 11—Northwestern State at Ruston.
Feb. 14—McNeese State at Ruston.
Feb. 18—Georgia Southern at Ruston.
Feb. 21—Centenary at Shreveport.
Feb. 25—Northeast State at Monroe.

Rice Swarms All Over SMU In 47-0 Rout

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—The Rice Owls found Southern Methodist an easy mark Saturday night, smashed the Mustangs 47-0 and joined Baylor as the only undefeated, untied team in the Southwest Conference.

The game was the first conference contest of the season for both teams.

Rice scored four times on runs, twice on passes and once on a pass interception. At the end, just about every man on the Rice squad had taken the field.

Jerry Candler ran 4 yards to tally, Billy Cox 1, Leslie Blume 1 and Lonnie Caddell 2.

Cox passed 30 yards to Johnny Burrell and Alvin Hartman tossed 24 to Blume.

And to ice the cake, Charles Boatman intercepted a Mustang pass on the SMU 32 and ran it back to score.

The Mustangs, with four losses and no victories this season, did not cross the 50-yard line until deep in the fourth quarter. Then they went to the Rice 16 but could not budge the Owl defenses and surrendered the ball on fourth down.

PAUL MARTIN LOOKS 'EM OVER

Long Live The Pirates

The World Series is over. The Pittsburgh Pirates won it and deserved everything they got. The Yankees won their share with sheer bat power and with apparent ease, but as long as there was a chance in the close ones it was the Pirates who fought the Yanks to a standstill to pick up the tough ones.

The Pirates earned their world championship as most anti-Yanks will agree even if some die-hards grab for the Tony Kubek incident as a crutch. While the Bucs were earning their's, it was almost as if the Yankees were made presents of the three they won.

A couple of weeks ago we said the Yankees "could" end the series in five games. If they played the series over next week, the Yanks still "could" win it, but you can bet the Pirates would get a lot more consideration.

It was not for love of the New York outfit that we picked the Yanks to win it. We've long pulled for underdog teams and think domination of any sport by one team isn't good. We look coldly at the facts and frequently pick teams to win that we hope takes a licking.

A case in point close to home is the Northeast State Indians. Coach Jack Rowan has a good team. We think it has improved a lot over last year. Pre-game statistics indicate McNeese State should win last night's game. So we are on record as favoring McNeese. But we were not pulling for a McNeese victory. Don't you believe it. We would be happy to be wrong if the score shows a Northeast upset.

No matter who you were pulling for in the series, it was a good one. It had color. It was a storybook series. We picked the Yanks because we thought they had the guns. Who would have thought they would shoot up all their ammunition in three games.

Personally, we're glad the Pirates won if for no other reason than that Ted Heckathorn, who used to work in our sports department, was a solid Pirate fan in the years when the Bucs couldn't get out of the second division. Ted, no longer writing sports, is happy now that the Pirates are on top.

Pirate fan Mabry H. Hinton, Perryville, debunked series experience and batting power as any reason to support the Yankees. He was the only anti-Yank to honor his difference with his signature in a pre-series note to us. So he's entitled to say, "I told you so."

There's always some who must be ashamed of their convictions. They don't sign their cards or letters. The champ non-signer this year is a guy who waits until the series is over, then can't wait to get his note through the mail chute. Makes you wonder if he didn't bet on the Yanks, lose his shirt, and want to take it out on us. Should teach him not to gamble. For every winner there is a loser.

Basket Clinics, Tests

Basketball officials and coaches take note. Rules clinics got underway in south Louisiana the past week, and the Louisiana High School Athletic Association events will move into this area with clinics at Ferriday and Monroe as well as other north Louisiana cities.

T. H. Waters, commissioner of the LHSAA, advises rules clinics for both boys and girls basketball, are scheduled for Ferriday High School gymnasium Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

The Monroe clinic, scheduled for the Ouachita Parish High gym, will be held a week later, Wednesday, Oct. 26, also at 7:30 p.m.

Clinics the past week were at Hammond and Thibodaux. Others still on tap in north Louisiana areas are Natchitoches, next Monday; Shreveport, next Tuesday, and Alexandria, Oct. 27.

"I want to urge all officials and coaches to attend one of these clinics," Waters reports. "They are for the purpose of reviewing and interpreting old and new rules as well as for teaching and discussing the techniques of officiating.

At the LHSAA spring meeting this year a new rule was passed making it mandatory that only officials who have passed supervised rules tests shall officiate in basketball tournaments and playoffs.

Waters said this rule is being waived until December 1 because there is a limited number of officials able to qualify under the rule. By Decemer 1 the officials will have had ample time to qualify and apply to the mandate of the state's high schools.

Rules tests are scheduled for November. The dates for the tests in the various districts are Hammond, Nov. 10; Monroe, Natchitoches, and Baton Rouge, Nov. 14; Ferriday, Shreveport, and Thibodaux, Nov. 15; Alexandria, DeRidder, and New Orleans, Nov. 16; and Lake Charles and Lafayette, Nov. 17.

Gibbs Steers Ole Miss Past Tulane, 26-13

By ED TUNSTALL

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Quarterback Jake Gibbs weaved his magic from behind an impenetrable web Saturday night and directed top-ranked Mississippi to a 26-13 Southeastern Conference victory over hard-knocking Tulane before 72,000 fans.

Gibbs, 22-year-old senior from Grenada, Miss., threw three touchdown passes to end Johnny Brewer and scored the other Mississippi tally on a six-yard run.

But before the Rebels chalked up their fifth straight victory without a loss, they had to subdue a stubborn Tulane offensive sparked by the passing of quarterback Phil Nugent.

The Rebels, the nation's No. 1 team in the Associated Press poll, collected their first touchdown on a 42-yard pass from Gibbs to Brewer on the opening play of the second quarter. Halfback George Blair's kick pushed the Rebels out in front 7-0.

In the third quarter, the Rebels posted touchdown No. 2 following recovery of a Tulane fumble from the Tulane 37. Mississippi scored in nine plays with Gibbs rolling around left end for the touchdown and the Rebels left the field at halftime with a 13-0 margin.

Guard Billy Ray Jones recovered Tulane halfback Tom Mason's fumble on the Tulane 14 in the third period and on the next play, Gibbs fired to Brewer for the score.

The final Mississippi touchdown came with 10 minutes left with Gibbs again connecting to Brewer for 23 yards.

Nugent was the driving force in both Tulane touchdown drives. The broad-shoulder Tulane signal caller threw to Mason for the first touchdown in the third period and was the shining light in producing the second touchdown, climaxed by halfback Billy Ary's one-yard plunge in the closing minutes.

OFFENSIVE BATTLE

LaGrange Gators Dump Rebels For 40-19 Win

By JERRY HARKNESS
Staff Sports Writer

A highly polished, hard working LaGrange Gator football machine invaded West Monroe last night and ruined Homecoming festivities by pounding out a 40-19 victory over the hard - hitting Rebels.

West Monroe fought down to the wire and turned the tide for a brief span in the last half, but the passing of Gator quarterback Richard Guillory kept the Rebs guessing for most of the bruising battle.

The Gators from Lake Charles showed why they are ranked high among the state's best, from the opening kickoff of last night's game, moving the ball in for a score after only four plays from scrimmage. Bruising halfback James Bryan blasted through the Rebel secondary and scored from 21 yards out to put the Gators ahead, 6-0. After West Monroe was forced to punt on the next set of downs LaGrange came right back for another touchdown, with Bryan going over again, this time on a 60 yard sprint, refusing to go down after being hit by several Rebels. Fullback George Berger ran the point after for a 13-0 lead.

West Monroe wasn't playing dead and with only 45 seconds gone in the second period quarterback Jimmy VanZile hit fullback John Covington with a pass at the Gator 17 - yard - line and the fullback put his head down and barreled into pay dirt from the 13. They try for the point after failed.

Guillory started his roll out option antics with 7:09 minutes left in the second period and hit end C. G. Babin with one of three of his touchdown passes. Babin was all alone in the left corner of the end zone. Guillory added the extra point.

The Gators drove to the Rebel four, aided by a 28 yard Guillory to Bryan pass, late in the second period and Berger blasted over for a 26-6 LaGrange lead.

After a LaGrange score was called back for a holding penalty, the Gators drove to the Rebel five where Guillory hit Babin with a flat pass for the touchdown. Guillory added the extra point and LaGrange held a 33-6 halftime advantage.

After a scoreless third period the Rebels began to come alive on rugged defensive play by the entire forward wall and some fine running by halfback Billy Doerner who was hurt midway in the final quarter. West Monroe scored two touchdowns in the last quarter, the first on a beautiful 34-yard pass from Jimmy VanZile to Buck Fox. Leading by 33-12, Gator quarterback Guillory was rushed hard by Reb center Richard Cook and threw a bad pass that was picked off by Jim VanZile. The Rebels then executed the game's finest play, with VanZile handing off to Don Harrel who went to the left, stopped and passed back to VanZile, who was all alone downfield. The trackster turned on the speed and went 46 yards for a touchdown. Covington added the point after.

LaGrange scored the final touchdown on a lofty pass from Guillory to Babin covering 37 yards, with 57 seconds left in the game. Guillory booted the extra point.

Snead Birdie Binge Catches Wall After 36

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (AP)—Ageless Sam Snead birdied six of the last eight holes Saturday to grab a tie with Art Wall Jr. after 36 holes of the West Virginia State Open Golf Tournament. Each was 12 strokes under par with a 128 total.

Snead galloped home with his second straight 64 at the two-thirds mark of the 54-hole medal play event to be concluded over the par-70 Spring Valley Country Club course Sunday.

The Slammer made the turn on his round even with par, but beat regulation by six strokes with a 29 on the second nine. Wall, leader by two strokes with a course record 62 in Friday's opening 18-hole round, carded a 66.

Five strokes off the pace with a 133 was Arnold Palmer, who fired a 67. Deadlocked with 136s were pros Don Shock of Columbus, Ohio, and Jim Barber of Winchester, Ky.

Jaguars Master Arkansas Rivals In 26-24 Scrap

PINE BLUFF, Ark., (Special)—Cyrus Lancaster and Robert Sims notched two touchdowns each to lead the Southern University Jaguars a 26-14 SWAC football win over Arkansas AM&N here Saturday night.

Lancaster, Southern's All - American quarterback candidate, sent the Jaguars into a 6-0 first quarter lead with a 49 - year scamper from scrimmage, then followed with a tingling 85 - yard exhibition in the second quarter.

Fernandez Gets Nod Over Moyer

NEW YORK (AP)—Jorge Fernandez, an aggressive welterweight from Buenos Aires, gained a unanimous 10-round decision over favored Denny Moyer Saturday night in a nationally televised fight at Madison Square Garden.

Fernandez kept the pressure on the slick-boxing Moyer all the way to gain a 5-4-1 edge on the score cards of Referee Arthur Mercante and Judge Leo Birnbaum. Judge Joe Agnello scored it 6-4 for the Argentine slugger.

Tech Overhauls Pensacola Navy

By PETE DOSHER

RUSTON, La. (Special) — Louisiana Tech's Paul Hynes dashed 58 yards for one touchdown, caught a 14-yard pass for another, and set up a third with an interception here last night to lead the Louisiana Tech Bulldogs to a 28-19 victory over a strong Pensacola Navy eleven.

Tech's secondary, led by Johnny Hudson's three interceptions, kept the Flyers aerial barrage under control most of the night, allowing only four completions and grabbing off six of the Navy's 21 passes.

The Techsters built up a 28-6 lead over the Groshawks before the Navy outfit rallied for two TDs in the final quarter to narrow the margin.

Tech had ten first down to six for the Navy, but the Floyers outgained the Bulldogs in total yardage, 265 to 241. Although completing only four passes, Pensacola struck for distance on those, gaining 158 yards through the air.

STATISTICS	Pensacola	Tech
First downs	6	10
Yards rushing	107	110
Yards passing	158	131
Passes	4-21	10-21
Passes int. by	1	6
Fumbles lost	0	1
Punts	6-33.4	8-38.0
Penalties	1-5	4-28

Dick Super was a standout runner for the Navy team. He got behind Tech's secondary for the Navy's first score on a 69-yard pass play and got off a 62-yard gallop from scrimmage.

The Bulldogs got a TD with 4:25 left in the second period, covering 47 yards in 14 plays. Mickey Slaughter hit Hynes with a 14-yard scoring toss.

Bud Alexander kicked the extra point.

Pensacola struck back swiftly with a lightning pass play when Kelvin Huehn hit Super on the play covering 69 yards. The extra point try was blocked.

Tech took the ensuing kickoff and went 70 yards in 11 plays with four pass completions by Slaughter eating up most of the yardage. Slaughter hit Tom Causey on passes of 16 and 11 yards, Hynes for 24 yards, and a 12-yard toss to Jerry Hudson that carried to the three. Slaughter took it over and Alexander's kick gave Tech a 14-6 lead with 2:05 left in the half.

Tech got a one - chance golden opportunity for another TD when Johnny Hudson intercepted a Navy pass at the Pensacola 45, rammed to the 30, and lateralled to Jack Lestage who was knocked out of bounds at the one with one second left. Lestage was halted in one thrust at the line as the half ended.

The Bulldogs wasted no time extending their lead after the half when Hynes, on the first play from scrimmage, went 5 yards for the TD and Alexander added his third extra to make it 21-6.

A few moments later Hynes intercepted a Navy pass at midfield and returned it two yards. Slaughter hit Causey for 13 and Jerry Hudson on a 28 - yarder that carried to the two. Max Rudd bucked it over, and Alexander's kick made it 28-6.

Super, a real swifty, returned the kickoff 21 to the Navy 35 and then got loose for 62 to the Tech three. However, Tech held and took over at the four.

The Navy pushed over two TDS in the final period to close the gap. Huehn connected with Bill Brennan on a 56 - yard aerial to the Tech three. Three plays later Huehn, on a running play, recovered a fumble in the endzone for a touchdown. Dick Marks' kick was good, cutting the margin to 28-13.

A fumble at the Tech 19 gave the Flyers another chance. Johnny Arms, ex - SLI star, took it over from the seven. A pass try for the point was no good.

The Tech men were knocking on the door again at the Navy five after a sixth interception of the night, but time ran out.

Breaks Backfire To Ruin Indians

By BOB ANDERSON
The World Sports Editor

LAKE CHARLES, LA. — Northeast's Indians failed as both opportunists and gamblers here Saturday night as the McNeese Cowboys took a 14-8 Gulf States Conference victory.

The Tribe cashed in on only one of three golden scoring opportunities and one gamble — a pass deep in McNeese territory — was intercepted by Cowboys halfback Charlie Stevenson.

The other Northeast threat ended on the Cowboy 13 on fourth down.

Northeast recovered three fumbles, two of them grabbed by tackle Luther French, and use the second to set up a 38-yard TD march climaxed by Don Wattigny's one foot quarterback sneak into the end zone.

STATISTICS	Northeast	McNeese
First downs	6	10
Yards rushing	115	157
Yards passing	12	62
Passes	7-2	8-4
Passes Int. by	0	3
Fumbles Lost	0	3
Penalties	1-5	4-20
Punting	7-40.0	5-37.2

McNeese, playing before a homecoming crowd, scored first in the second period as deadeye Don Breaux, the conference's total offense and passing leader, engineered a 61 - yard march ended by Breaux' one - yard sneak.

The Cowboys scored again early in the third when Stevenson intercepted the other gamble a Ferdy Cruce pass on the Northeast 19.

Halfback Ted Brevelle scored three plays later on a three-yard trip off tackle. Lenny Kahn kicked his second extra point to give the Cowboys a 14-0 lead.

Northeast had threatened in the second period when French recovered a Breaux bobble on the McNeese 34. Cruce reeled off a 17-yard run around end on the first play but the Tribe gained only three yards in the next three plays.

On fourth down at the 'Poke 14, Jack Webb attempted to pass, was rushed badly and had to run. He made it only to the 13 and McNeese took over.

Stevenson, Rayville's gift to Les Devall's Cowboys had a great night. He intercepted three Northeast passes to more than make up for a fumble of a punt that gave Northeast a chance to go ahead in the fourth period.

Stevenson dropped John Kelly's 41-yard punt on his 25 and Indian Billy Foster recovered on the Cowboys' 29.

Don Wattigny gained three, Willie Ragan five and Al Ott two for a first down on the 19 but Wattigny tried a pass on first down and Stevenson picked it off at the five and returned to the 20. That was the last Indian threat although they got hold of the ball two more times in the fourth.

The Tribe took over after a punt on the Northeast 34 a few plays later but could only gain eight.

Then in the fading moments, the Indians got the ball again after a punt at their 9 but Stevenson capped a great night of crime with his third interception, grabbing a Webb pass at the 35 and returning to the 17. The game ended before another play could be run.

The victory shoved McNeese over the 500 mark for the season. The Cowboys now have a 3-record and Northeast 2-3 mark. Both are 1-1 in the GSC now.

Except for the one scoring drive, Northeast's offense never really got going. Johnny Steed, Lenny Kahn, Malcolm Kraus and Reuben Davis throttled most of the Tribe's offensive thrusts and never gave the Indian passers a leisurely moment. Northeast completed only two of seven passes.

McNeese's line gave Breaux good protection and the tall junior hit on four of eight throws for 62 yards.

Nolan Viator played most of the game at quarterback for the home club and stuck strictly to the ground.

Northeast's defense, led by French, Foster, Delmas Thorne, Dan Keith and Gerry Marchbank, didn't do too bad against the 'Poke ground game, although the cow hands picked up 157 yards overland, but they never gave Breaux the big rush act on pass plays.

McNeese started its first scoring drive on its 39 late in the fourth. Breaux hit Lloyd Guillot with a 19-yard pass on the first play and later hit the same halfback with an 11-yard toss to keep the push moving.

Early in the second, the quarterback moved off guard for a yard and the touchdown.

McNeese kicked off to open the second half and Ken Thornhill returned from the end zone to the 20. Cruce lost two yards and Ragan lost one. Since the ground game was going backwards, the Tribe decided to throw and Cruce, on a pitchout, tossed it. Stevenson grabbed it at the 35 and dashed to the 19. Viator picked up five, Brevelle eight, Viator three and Brevelle carried in on in from the three.

Then French recovered another bobble by Brevelle at the McNeese 38. Wattigny went around end for 13 and later alled to Cruce who went for nine more to the 16. Wattigny gained one, Ott six, Wattigny two and Payne made the first down to the four. Payne went for three again, Wattigny gained only a couple of feet on the right side, then went to the left for the touchdown.

Ragan lined up as if to kick the extra point but the pass from center was low to Webb, down as if to hold. Joe Friday stood up and hit Gene Harbert under the goal posts for the two-pointer and McNeese led, 14-8, with 3:42 left in the third.

On the first play of the fourth, Stevenson punted to the Tribe 27. The Indians couldn't go and Kelly, who punted for a 40-yard average during the evening, booted it right back to Stevenson at the 25. Charlie dropped it and Foster recovered at the 29. Then came Stevenson's game — saving interception.

Cruce was the top Northeast ground - gainer with 31 yards on seven carries. Wattigny netted 24 yards on eight trips and Ott got 21 yards in nine carries.

Viator was the top mover overland for McNeese, gaining 51 yards in nine rushes.

21-Game Fare For La. Tech Cage Squad

RUSTON (Special) — A 21-game schedule and participation in the annual Gulf South Classic at Shreveport is on tap for Coach Cecil Crowley's re - building Louisiana Tech cagers during the fast approaching season.

Basketball practice gets underway at Tech Monday, with one starter back from last year and six lettermen.

One of the new features of the Tech schedule is a twinbill on consecutive nights featuring Tech, Northwestern State, Southwest Texas and Mississippi Southern. Southwest Texas won the NAIA title this past season.

All four of the teams involved fielded topflight quintets a year ago. In the first night of action in the doubleheader, Tech plays Southwest Texas and Northwestern State meets Mississippi Southern. The next night, Dec. 13, Tech plays Southern and NSC meets the Texas club.

Tech plays its first five games at home before hitting the road during the Christmas holidays to compete in the Gulf South Classic at Shreveport. Besides the consecutive doubleheaders, Tech meets Southeast Oklahoma, East Texas State and Mississippi Tech meets Southeast Oklahoma, Tast Texas State and Mississippi State in Ruston in early December.

Here is the Tech schedule:
Dec. 3—Southeast Oklahoma at Ruston.
Dec. 5—East Texas State at Ruson.
Dec. 8—Miss. State at Ruston.
Dec. 12—Twin bill at Ruson (Tech vs. Southwest Texas and Northwestern State vs. Miss. Southern).
Dec. 13—Twin bill at Ruston (Tech vs. Miss. Southern and Northwestern State vs. Southwest Texas).
Dec. 28, 29 and 30—Gulf South Classic at Shreveport.
Jan. 2—Arkansas Tech at Ruston.
Jan. 5—U. of Southwestern at Ruston.
Jan. 7—Northwestern State at Natchitoches.
Jan. 10—Southeastern at Ruston.

Rice Swarms All Over SMU In 47-0 Rout

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—The Rice Owls found Southern Methodist an easy mark Saturday night, smashed the Mustangs 47-0 and joined Baylor as the only undefeated, untied team in the Southwest Conference.

The game was the first conference contest of the season for both teams.

Rice scored four times on runs, twice on passes and once on a pass interception. At the end, just about every man on the Rice squad had taken the field.

Jerry Candler ran 4 yards to tally, Billy Cox 1, Leslie Blume 1 and Lonnie Caddell 2.

Cox passed 30 yards to Johnny Burrell and Alvin Hartman tossed 24 to Blume.

And to ice the cake, Charles Boatman intercepted a Mustang pass on the SMU 32 and ran it back to score.

The Mustangs, with four losses and no victories this season, did not cross the 50-yard line until deep in the fourth quarter. Then they went to the Rice 16 but could not budge the Owl defenses and surrendered the ball on fourth down.

Bradley First To Enter Seventh Twin City Open

Monte Bradley, runnerup in last year's Twin City Open Golf Tournament, became the first entrant in this year's meet, scheduled for Oct. 28, 29 and 30 at West Monroe Highland Park Country Club.

Bradley, a Hillsboro, Texas, golfer, finished two strokes behind winner Davis Love in the $3,000 tournament last fall. His entry fee was received early this month, approximately four weeks in advance of the opening of the tournament.

Other entries so far are John Cook of Minneapolis, Minn., and Johnny Myers, who plays out of Bastrop and Minneapolis.

This year's tournament will be the seventh. Last fall's meet drew such outstanding professionals as Love, Bradley, J. C. Goosie, Dick Metz, Bert Weaver, Joe Campbell, "Rookie of the Year" in 1959, and Freddy Haas and more are expected for this month's tournament.

Outstanding amateurs who participated in the 1959 tournament were Jackie Cupit, Richard Crawford and Babe Hiskey. Among the better local amateurs to compete were Clyde Nash and Bill Jones.

Cupit, top amateur last year here, has established himself as one of the finest non - professionals in the South. He won this year's Cotton States Invitational at Bayou DeSiard Country Club as well as the Lake Charles Open. He's a former University of Houston golfer and brother of Buster Cupit, former pro at the old McGuire Country Club, now Highland.

The Twin City Open will consist of 18 - hole medal play per day, a total of 54 holes, for both amateurs and professionals. A total of $2,500 in prize money will be doled out to the top 15 pros with $650 going to the winner. Medalist prize money of $25 will be awarded the low pro each day. An additional $500 in prizes will be awarded to the top 10 amateur finishers.

Product of weeks of work and preparation by Highland Park members, the tournament should provide some of the finest golf seen in this area. The nine - hole course is reported to be in its best shape ever.

Additional information on the tournament can be obtained from Highland pro Billy Brown.

Indian Runners Follow Eiland To Defeat Tech

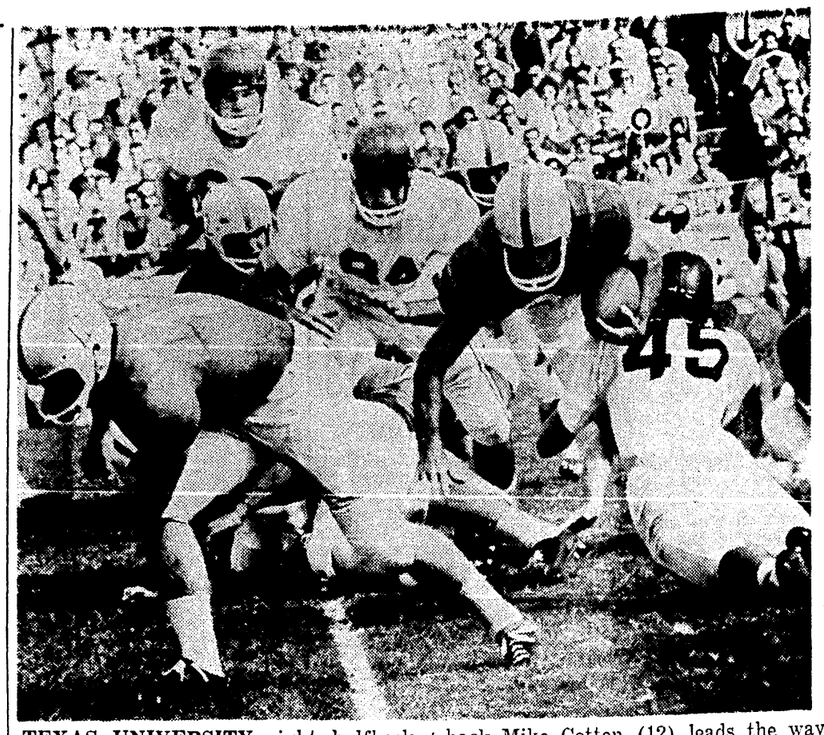
RUSTON, La. (Special) — The Northeast State cross country racers defeated Louisiana Tech, 23-32, here yesterday afternoon with Indian ace "Buddy" Eiland of Farmerville heading the pace over the 3.2 miles route.

Eiland, Northeast's classy miler and distance runner, posted 14:31.2 minutes for the winning time.

Bob Hayes, Tech's ace, was at Eiland's heels for second place, trailed by Northeast's Jack Williams, third, and Bill Fry, fourth.

Order of the finish for the remaining ten places was Robin Bryan, Tech, fifth; Joel Hebert, Tech, sixth; Chuck McCullen, Northeast, seventh; George Abbott, Northeast, eighth; Earl Wright, Tech, ninth; and Robert Ellis, Tech, tenth.

It was the same score by which Louisiana Tech fell before McNeese a week before. Southeastern meets the Northeast text next Saturday at Hammond.



TEXAS UNIVERSITY right halfback Bobby Gurwitz finds a hole in the Arkansas line and picks up four yards in this first period action of yesterday's game at Austin, Tex. Longhorn quarterback Mike Cotten (12) leads the way for further yardage, but Gurwitz was stopped by Razorback fullback Joe Paul Alberty (45). Arkansas' left end Steve Butler is No. 84. Bolt Falters, 4 Others Take Tourney Lead

COSTA MESA, Calif. (AP) — Tommy Bolt, renowned for his lost temper, lost his touch and his lead Saturday, falling behind four players in the third round of the $20,000 Orange County Open Golf Tournament.

George Bayer of Gleneagles, Ill., and three Californians — Al Geiberger of Studio City, Bill Casper Jr. of Apple Valley and Charlie Sifford of Los Angeles—finished in a tie fr the 54-hole lead with 207s.

Bolt, who held a three-stroke advantage after the second round, shot a 3-over-par 74 and dropped into a second-place tie with Jack Fleck of Los Angeles and Jay Hebert of Lafayette, La.

Bayer and Geiberger shot 70s and Casper and Sifford had 69s.

Bolt covered the first nine in par 36, then blew up and took a 38 on the back nine. He had shot two straight 31s on this same back side.

Scandals Rocking German Athletes

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — German sports presently is rocked by a wave of post-Olympic scandals which might lead to a drastic house cleaning.

Just look at a few most recent headlines in German papers: "Armin Hary in feud with film company," "Martin Lauer suspended from national team," "Carl Kaufmann writes about his love affairs," "Dieter Gieseler in TV quiz."

Weeks after they won their medals at the Rome Olympics some sports stars are in the news again but this time not on the sports page.

Here is a survey—case after the case—of the various incidents:

1.—Hary, gold medal winner in the 100-meter sprint and as a member of the 400-meter relay, demanded $23,800 each from the Gloria Film Company in Munich for leading roles in three non-sports films. Gloria turned him down and consequently dropped the option on the runner. Hary was quoted by a newspaper as saying:

"My name has the same market value as those of Curt Jurgens or O. W. Fischer. I demand real money and not a tip."

2.—Lauer, world record hurdler and gold medal winner in the 400-meter relay, wrote a lengthy article in one of Germany's leading illustrated magazines in which he attacked Garman track officials, other members of the German national team, Italian organizers of the Rome Olympics, the press and most other things under the sun.

In this article he also complained that most prizes given to him after competition in national or international meets—like wrist watches, cups, bags—are no longer of much value to him.

He indicated he could use instead a new tire for his car or cloth for a new suit.

He also told the German Track and Field Association he was unable to compete in track meets against Poland and Sweden because of an old foot injury, but at the same time declared his readiness to compete in an international meet in Italy.

The association acted quickly: Lauer was suspended from all foreign competitions for one year and kicked off the national team.

3.—Kaufmann, the New York-born German quarter-miler who won a silver medal in the 400-meter world record race in Rome, presented himself in an article in the same magazine as a miniature Casanova and "play boy of the cinder track" who likes women and song.

Presently the tall, good looking athlete and music student is in the United States to make some recordings and appear as a singer in Walt Disney shows.

German papers speculate that not Carl but his German manager wrote the article for sheer publicity purposes.

4.—Gieseler, blond, good looking silver medal winner in the 1,000-meter bicycle time trial, recently appeared in a popular German TV quiz show and was asked by the quizmaster what he as an amateur does for a living.

Gophers Hold Off Illini For 21-10 Triumph

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Unbeaten Minnesota survived wave on wave of Illinois assaults and rallied behind the three-touchdown salvo of Sandy Stephens for a 21-10 Big Ten Conference homecoming victory Saturday.

Mauled and bewildered for three periods, the Gophers stormed for two touchdowns in the fourth period for their fourth straight victory and second in the Big Ten.

Stephens, a churning 215-pound quarterback, delivered the knockout with less than three minutes left when he rifled a 41-yard pass to Bob Deegan and then scored moments later on a twisting run from the 18.

It was a remarkable flip-flop for Minnesota, a six-point favorite that seemed at times to be on the verge of being overrun by the nimble quarterback option sprints of little John Easterbrook and the fullback hammer blows of Bill and Jim Brown.

Frigid Waters End Chadwick Channel Swim

PORT PATRICK, Scotland (AP) —The career of distance swimmer Florence Chadwick closed Saturday with an unsuccessful attempt to swim the icy Northern Channell between Ireland Scotland.

The Californian, who was trimped at every recognized long-distance swim — including the Straits of Gibraltar, the Dardanelles and the English Channel both ways—finally admitted that this last big target had beaten her.

"I quit," she said as they pulled her out of the water, numbed with cold. "This is my last big swim."

It was the fourth time the 42-year-old San Diego swimmer had tried to swim the 19-mile northern channel, and her third attempt within a month. It was the last great stretch of water she wanted to swim before retiring.

She plunged into the sea in the predawn darkness of Donag adec, Northern Ireland, and had covered 14 miles in seven hours when the cold got the better of her. She was then 6 miles from the Scottish coast and in sight of land.

Roberts Lands Pole Position In Stock Race

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—A 50-car field was completed Saturday for the 400-mile $65,000 stock car race over the mile and a half high banked Charlotte Motor Speedway Sunday.

Glen (Fireball) Roberts of Daytona Beach, Fla., will start in the pole position. Beside him will be Jack Smith of Spartanburg, S.C. Both will drive Pontiacs.

Roberts qualified at 133.465 miles per hour on four laps around the asphalt oval. Smith qualified at 131.933 m.p.h.

Thirty-eight drivers and one alternate qualified Saturday, including Joe Lee Johnson of Chattanooga, Tenn., who won the $107,770 inaugural race here on July 19. He will start in 15th position in a 1960 Chevrolet. His qualifying speed was 129.450 m.p.h.

Cornell Falls

NEW HAVEN (AP)—Unbeaten Yale trounced Cornell 22-6 Saturday to gain undisputed possession of first place in the Ivy League. The Elis were sparked by Bob Blanchard, Tom Singleton and Ted Hard, who scored touchdowns. Cornell's score was a nine-yard pass and run from George Telesh to George Ekstrom.

Arkansas Surprises Texas On Last Minute Field Goal

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—Only 15 seconds away from defeat, Mickey Cissell kicked a 30-yard field goal Saturday to give the Arkansas Razorbacks a come - from-behind 24-23 Southwest Conference upset victory over the Texas Longhorns.

Trailing at times by 14 and nine points, quarterback George McKinney riddled the Texas defenses with three touchdown passes, hitting end Jimmy Collier with a nine-yard scorer in the second quarter, end Steve Butler with a two-yard tally throw in the third and halfback Jarrell Williams with a 19-yard payoff in the fourth period.

With Texas leading 23-21, Arkansas began moving after a short kick from the Texas 38 with halfback Lance Alworth doing the damage to the Texas 25.

A desperate pass fell from the hands of Collier with 30 seconds left, then McKinney positioned the field goal with a keeper to the 13. Kicking from the 20, Cissell's field goal boot was low but cleared the bar by about a foot.

Sophomore fullback John Allen Cook put Texas out front in the second quarter with a one - yard touchdown blast, and halfback Jack Collins made it 14-0 minutes later on another one-yard scoring run. McKinney found Collier with his nine-yarder to make the score 14-7 at halftime.

Arkansas knotted the score early in the third quarter on McKinney's pass to Butler.

Texas tackle Dan Petty, who also booted two extra points, lofted a 25-yard field goal to put Texas out in front 17-14, and quarterback Mike Cotten added what appeared to be the clinching Texas touchdown on a one-yard keeper.

McKinney, who connected on nine of 1 passes for 138 yards, brought the Razorbacks right back with a 69-yard march, climaxed by his 19-yard touchdown throw to Jarrell Williams. Cissell added his third successful point - after-touchdown.

QUALIFYING WEDNESDAY

Women's Event For Muny Course

The Twin City Women's Golf Championship will be up for grabs at Municipal Golf Club this week with Mrs. Clyde Nash defending the title she won a year ago at Bayou DeSiard Country Club.

Tuesday is the entry deadline when registration fees must be posted, and the qualifying round is scheduled for Wednesday. Contenders will take practice rounds Tuesday, but will be unable to do so tomorrow as the course will be closed Monday.

Match play will follow during the week and early next week with the finals in all flights and consolations, plus an added field consolation, to be played Wednesday, October 26.

The City of Monroe will host the participants at a barbecue dinner following the final matches.

Bernice Watkins, representing Highland Park of West Monroe, and Virginia High, Bayou DeSiard of Monroe, and Norma Campbell, Municipal of Monroe, make up the tournament committee. Next year's tourney goes to Highland.

Municipal's course was renovated during the summer. All greens are new, there are new tees, and some hazards were eliminated or improved. Hugh Britt, club pro, has the course in its finest condition for the tournament, and some good scores are forecast.

Minstrel, Garwol 1-2 In Rich Race

NEW YORK (AP)—Roving Minstrel and Garwol, an entry owned by the Harbor View Farm of Florida and New York financier Louis Wolfson, ran 1-2 in the $13,900 Champagne Stakes at Belmont Park Saturday.

Roving Minstrel, bought for $80,000 about a month ago, battled head and head with his stablemate for the final three-sixteenths of a mile in a furious stretch drive and won out by a nose.

Garwol finished 529 lengths ahead of Frank Sherman's Bronzerullah, who set the pace for three-quarters of a mile in the mile event being run for the 89th time. Bronzerullah got third money by a nose over Leonard P. Sasso's Globemaster in the field of nine 2-year-olds.

The time of 1:35 3-5 was the second fastest for the race, oldest 2-year-old stakes in America, which first was run at Jerome Park in the Bronx in 1867.

Katherine Price's Carry Back, who won the $96,300 Cowdin Stakes at Belmont Oct. 3 over Globemaster and Garwol, refused to break from the starting gate when it opened. The $1.95 to $1.00 favorite was left about 10 lengths behind before jockey Bill Hartack could get him underway. Carry Back pulled up ninth and last.

The Wolfson entry paid $8.80, $8.40 and $5.10 as the second choice of the crowd of 39,039, which turned out in summer-like weather. Bronzerullah returned $7.10. The starters all carried 122 pounds in this, the richest race of the New York season with a net of $106,310 going to the winner.

Calumet Farm's Bold Prince finished fifth, followed by Ambiopoise, Sherluck, Annihilation and Carry Back.

BANDITS, STOVALL STAR

Kentucky Field Goal Beats LSU In Fading Minutes, 3-0

By JOHN G. DIETRICH

LEXINGTON, Ky (UPI)— Kentucky and Louisiana State, both trying to escape from the southeastern conference cellar, struggled through 57 futile minutes Saturday night before sophomore halfback Clark Mayfield's 28-yard field goal gave Kentucky a 3-0 victory.

Another sophomore, quarterback Jerry Woolum, made Kentucky a constant threat to break the game open, but Louisiana State's "Chinese Bandits" turned back every thrust until Mayfield's perfect placement kick with 2:38 to play decided the issue.

Only the Bandits, with the help of Jerry tSovall's magnificent punting, kept Louisiana State in the running, for their offensive unit could manage only three first downs al' evening and none in the second half.

Kentucky's deepest penetration was to the 11-yard line in the third period, on the strength of a 21-yard bolt up the middle by halfback Bill Ransdell on a draw play.

That drive was blunted like all the rest when guard Roy Winston broke off to smear Wollum for a 9-yard loss and center Charlie Strange intercepted Woolum's pass on the fourth down.

Kentucky again pushed into the Louisiana State territory early in the fourth period when Woolum connected on a 17-yard pass to end Tom Hutchinson on the Tiger 35. But another Woolum pass was intercepted, this time by guard Dennis Gaubatz.

It was Gaubatz also who had stemmed the tide for Louisiana State in the first half by recovering a Kentucky fumble on the Tiger 35.

Louisiana State's most serious move of the game followed, but it too, ground to a half when Kentucky center Earl Goode piled up a third-down play and the Bengals declined to gamble in a fourth-and-one situation on the Kentucky 41.

Louisiana State got a break early in the second half when R. L. Guillot recovered a Kentucky fumble on the Wildcat 24, but three running plays gained exactly nothing and a field goal try by Wendell Harris was wide to the left.

Kentucky's front line, led by Goode and end Dick Mueller, shackled a Louisiana State attack with only 79 yards running and one pass completion good for eight yards.

Kentucky meanwhile was rolling up 124 yards on Woolum's passes and 98 more by rushing, but the Chinese Bandits and Stovall's 47-yard averagepunting forced the Wildcats to call on Mayfield's foot to gain their SEC victory in the last 11 tries.

Kansas Forced To Share Draw With Sooners

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP)—Kansas' sputtering and fidgety Jayhawks steamed from behind in the last quarter but had to settle for a 13-13 football tie with the Oklahoma Sooners when last-minute strategy backfired.

The Jayhawks, trailing from Oklahoma's touchdown drive with the opening kickoff, tied the score on a 79-yard drive midway in the fourth period and had a first down on the Oklahoma 2 yard line with 24 seconds on the clock.

Place kick expert John Suder was hustled in and his short field goal attempt shot straight into the air. It ended Kansas' best bid for a victory over the Sooners since 1946 and dropped them out of the conference lead.

The Jayhawks' last touchdown came on a nine-yard pitchout from quarterback John Hadl to halfback Bert Coan. Kansas elected to go for a tie and Suder's kick was good.

Kansas, rated No. 9 nationally, now has a mark of two victories and a tie. It was Oklahoma's first Big Eight game.

Oklahoma cashed in on touchdown drives of 65 and 76 yards. The Sooners took the opening kickoff across in 12 plays for the first score. Halfback Mike McClellan scored both touchdowns from one and 13 yards. His second touchdown climaxed a drive that followed the second half kickoff.

Kansas scored on Hadl's three-yard keeper late in the second period. But the Jayhawks trailed by a point when Suder—who had kicked 21 consecutive conversions was wide on the post. Karl Milstead, Oklahoma guard, had converted from placement after the Sooner's first touchdown. His second conversion was blocked.

Schloredt Lost To Washington With Fracture

By JACK HEWINS

SEATTLE AP — Washington's All - America quarterback Bob Schloredt, suffered a broken shoulder Saturday but Bob Nivner took over and piloted the iron - muscled Huskies to a 10-8 football victory over the Bruins of UCLA.

Neither team made any headway until Schloredt was hurt breaking up a UCLA pass late in the first half. He crashed into the intended receiver and was taken out.

The shock of his loss seemed to spur the Huskies. They powered from their 27 - yard line to the Uclan 19. George Fleming, Washington's kicking star, dropped back to the 23 and booted a perfect field goal to give his team a 3-0 lead.

Carrying their momentum over into the second half, Washington hammered and slashed 81 yards in 12 plays for a touchdown, sending Don McKeta the final yard. Fleming converted from placement and Washington had all its points for the day.

Scrapping desperately, the Bruins took control in the final quarter but Washington thwarted their first threat by holding for downs on its own 13.

The scoreboard clock reached the final five minutes when UCLA launched its final attack. The Bruins rolled 71 yards in a dozen plays, most of the distance coming on Bill Kelmer's bullet passes. Kilmer flipped seven yards to sub end Craig Chudy for a touchdown and then passed to Jim Johnson for the two - point bonus.

Sutler $128.40 Surprise Victor In Ben Franklin

CAMDEN, N.J. (AP)—Sutler, a 63-1 shot, surprised Saturday by winning the $25,000-added Benjamin Franklin Handicap at Garden State Park.

The winner, owned by Mrs. Theodora. Randolph beat another long shot, Ouija Board, by two lenghts. Careless John, the 4-5 favorite, faded to third in the stretch.

Sutler, who was meeting top talent for the first time, paid $128.40, $43.00 and $11.60. Ouija Board brought back $42.60 and $11.40 while Careless John returned $2.40.

Harlan Dalton rode the upset winner who negotiated the mile and one sixteenth in 1.44 1-5.

The race grossed $29,175 and $18,636.75 went to the winner.

Twin City Golf Slated At Muny

The Twin City Golf Championships will be held at Monroe's Municipal course next Saturday and Sunday, Municipal pro Hugh Britt has announced.

Won by Clayton Cole, former Northeast golfer now at the University of Houston, last year, the tournament is open to all amateurs in Monroe and West Monroe.

Deadline for entering the tournament is noon Saturday, Oct. 22, Britt said. The meet will consist of 36 holes medal play, 18 Saturday and 18 Sunday. The 18 holes Saturday will be the qualifying round with flights of eight to be set up for Sunday. The top two golfers in each flight will be awarded prizes.

The golfer with the low total at the end of the 36 holes will be the champion, regardless of flight. The City of Monroe will award the winner a trophy, Britt said.

Britt said play Saturday would be either twosomes, threesomes or foursomes. Tee off time for the final 18 holes Sunday will be noon.

Anyone desiring more information about the tournament is urged to call Britt at FA 2-2330.

Phil Rube Pays Backers $20.20 At Narragansett

PAWTUCKET, R.I. (AP)—Making his first start of the meeting after two important earlier victories at Suffolk Downs, W.J. Beattie's Phil Rube, a 3-year-old homebred, Saturday won the $17,265 Providence Stakes before 16,003 at Narragansett Park.

Confidently handled by Bill Skuse, leading rider of the meeting, Phil Rube came from behind with a tremendous late charge through the pack and won by a length and a half over the heavy favorite, Jerry Derenzo's April Skies.

Phil Rube paid $20.20, $7.20 and $3 after his mile and an eighth victory in 1:53 He added $11,222 to his earnings which now total $34,643 in 16 starts this season

Bolt Falters, 4 Others Take Tourney Lead

COSTA MESA, Calif. (AP) — Tommy Bolt, renowned for his lost temper, lost his touch and his lead Saturday, falling behind four players in the third round of the $20,000 Orange County Open Golf Tournament.

George Bayer of Gleneagles, Ill., and three Californians — Al Geiberger of Studio City, Bill Casper Jr. of Apple Valley and Charlie Sifford of Los Angeles—finished in a tie fr the 54-hole lead with 207s.

Bolt, who held a three-stroke advantage after the second round, shot a 3-over-par 74 and dropped into a second-place tie with Jack Fleck of Los Angeles and Jay Hebert of Lafayette, La.

Bayer and Geiberger shot 70s and Casper and Sifford had 69s.

Bolt covered the first nine in par 36, then blew up and took a 38 on the back nine. He had shot two straight 31s on this same back side.

Missouri Has Too Much For Kansas State

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — Missouri's power ruming backs shattered hopelessly outmanned Kansas State 45-0 Saturday and remained unbeaten with their fifth consecutive victory and second in Big Eight Conference football play.

It took the sixth-ranked Tigers 11½ minutes to collect their first touchdown—grinding out a 78-yard drive — but after that Missouri moved almost at will against the K-State defenders.

Senior halfack Donnie Smith staged an offensive show as he tied a Missouri varsity record of three touchdowns in one game. The 179-pounder from Springfield, Mo., pierced the right side of the K-State line as if it were tissue paper, rolling up 86 yards in 16 carries.

Missouri also received touchdowns from Mel West on a 24-yard third quarter gallop, a four-yard burst from Jim Miles and a one-yard plunge by Carl Crawford, both in the fourth quarter.

Although he was overshadowed by Smith in the scoring column, West, Missouri's leading ground gainer the past two years, was the top gainer with 110 yards on 18 carries.

It was K-State's fourth straight loss.

Baylor Tags Texas Tech In Rain, 14-7

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI)— Halfback Ronnie Bull, driving hard on a rain-soaked field, scored two touchdowns and personally led the Baylor Bears to a 14-7 victory over Texas Tech before 29,000 fans here Saturday night.

Bull took a screen pass from quarterback Ronnie Stanley and raced 50 yards down the sidelines early in the second period to put the Bears out front. He came back, after the Red Raiders had tied the score, to plunge one yard late in the second quarter to score the other Bear touchdown.

Sophomore quarterback Johnny Lovelace marked up the Tech touchdown with a four-yard dash into the end zone five seconds deep in the second period.

Fullback Larry Corley converted after both of Bull's touchdowns and quarterback Glen Amerson converted after the Tech score.

A misty rain, which turned into a downpour just before the half, didn't seem to bother the teams. Baylor tried 18 passes and Tech 13.

San Jose Socks Stanford, 34-20

STANFORD, Calif. (AP)—San Jose State's underdog Spartans buried Stanford's football hopes 34-20 Saturday with 176-pound fullback Johny Johnson running for four touchdowns.

The speedy 19-year-old sophomore from Port Arthur, Tex., tallied two first quarter scores on runs of three and 29 yards, then added another pair in the second half, both on one yard shots.

Only once before in the 17-game neighborhood rivalry has the Spartan scalped the Indian, but Coach Bob Titchenal's forces did it with a vengeance for their second victory in three games this season.

Bradley First To Enter Seventh Twin City Open

Monte Bradley, runnerup in last year's Twin City Open Golf Tournament, became the first entrant in this year's meet, scheduled for Oct. 28, 29 and 30 at West Monroe Highland Park Country Club.

Bradley, a Hillsboro, Texas, golfer, finished two strokes behind winner Davis Love in the $3,000 tournament last fall. His entry fee was received early this month, approximately four weeks in advance of the opening of the tournament.

Other entries so far are John Cook of Minneapolis, Minn., and Johnny Myers, who plays out of Bastrop and Minneapolis.

This year's tournament will be the seventh. Last fall's meet drew such outstanding professionals as Love, Bradley, J. C. Goosie, Dick Metz, Bert Weaver, Joe Campbell, "Rookie of the Year" in 1959, and Freddy Haas and more are expected for this month's tournament.

Outstanding amateurs who participated in the 1959 tournament were Jackie Cupit, Richard Crawford and Babe Hiskey. Among the better local amateurs to compete were Clyde Nash and Bill Jones.

Cupit, top amateur last year here, has established himself as one of the finest non - professionals in the South. He won this year's Cotton States Invitational at Bayou DeSiard Country Club as well as the Lake Charles Open. He's a former University of Houston golfer and brother of Buster Cupit, former pro at the old McGuire Country Club, now Highland.

The Twin City Open will consist of 18 - hole medal play per day, a total of 54 holes, for both amateurs and professionals. A total of $2,500 in prize money will be doled out to the top 15 pros with $650 going to the winner. Medalist prize money of $25 will be awarded the low pro each day. An additional $500 in prizes will be awarded to the top 10 amateur finishers.

Product of weeks of work and preparation by Highland Park members, the tournament should provide some of the finest golf seen in this area. The nine - hole course is reported to be in its best shape ever.

Additional information on the tournament can be obtained from Highland pro Billy Brown.

Scandals Rocking German Athletes

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — German sports presently is rocked by a wave of post-Olympic scandals which might lead to a drastic house cleaning.

Just look at a few most recent headlines in German papers: "Armin Hary in feud with film company," "Martin Lauer suspended from national team," "Carl Kaufmann writes about his love affairs," "Dieter Gieseler in TV quiz."

Weeks after they won their medals at the Rome Olympics some sports stars are in the news again but this time not on the sports page.

Here is a survey—case after the case—of the various incidents:

1.—Hary, gold medal winner in the 100-meter sprint and as a member of the 400-meter relay, demanded $23,800 each from the Gloria Film Company in Munich for leading roles in three non-sports films. Gloria turned him down and consequently dropped the option on the runner. Hary was quoted by a newspaper as saying:

"My name has the same market value as those of Curt Jurgens or O. W. Fischer. I demand real money and not a tip."

2.—Lauer, world record hurdler and gold medal winner in the 400-meter relay, wrote a lengthy article in one of Germany's leading illustrated magazines in which he attacked Garman track officials, other members of the German national team, Italian organizers of the Rome Olympics, the press and most other things under the sun.

In this article he also complained that most prizes given to him after competition in national or international meets—like wrist watches, cups, bags—are no longer of much value to him.

He indicated he could use instead a new tire for his car or cloth for a new suit.

He also told the German Track and Field Association he was unable to compete in track meets against Poland and Sweden because of an old foot injury, but at the same time declared his readiness to compete in an international meet in Italy.

The association acted quickly: Lauer was suspended from all foreign competitions for one year and kicked off the national team.

3.—Kaufmann, the New York-born German quarter-miler who won a silver medal in the 400-meter world record race in Rome, presented himself in an article in the same magazine as a miniature Casanova and "play boy of the cinder track" who likes women and song.

Presently the tall, good looking athlete and music student is in the United States to make some recordings and appear as a singer in Walt Disney shows.

German papers speculate that not Carl but his German manager wrote the article for sheer publicity purposes.

4.—Gieseler, blond, good looking silver medal winner in the 1,000-meter bicycle time trial, recently appeared in a popular German TV quiz show and was asked by the quizmaster what he as an amateur does for a living.

Indian Runners Follow Eiland To Defeat Tech

RUSTON, La. (Special) — The Northeast State cross country racers defeated Louisiana Tech, 23-32, here yesterday afternoon with Indian ace "Buddy" Eiland of Farmerville heading the pace over the 3.2 miles route.

Eiland, Northeast's classy miler and distance runner, posted 14:31.2 minutes for the winning time.

Bob Hayes, Tech's ace, was at Eiland's heels for second place, trailed by Northeast's Jack Williams, third, and Bill Fry, fourth.

Order of the finish for the remaining ten places was Robin Bryan, Tech, fifth; Joel Hebert, Tech, sixth; Chuck McCullen, Northeast, seventh; George Abbott, Northeast, eighth; Earl Wright, Tech, ninth; and Robert Ellis, Tech, tenth.

It was the same score by which Louisiana Tech fell before McNeese a week before. Southeastern meets the Northeast text next Saturday at Hammond.

Gophers Hold Off Illini For 21-10 Triumph

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Unbeaten Minnesota survived wave on wave of Illinois assaults and rallied behind the three-touchdown salvo of Sandy Stephens for a 21-10 Big Ten Conference homecoming victory Saturday.

Mauled and bewildered for three periods, the Gophers stormed for two touchdowns in the fourth period for their fourth straight victory and second in the Big Ten.

Stephens, a churning 215-pound quarterback, delivered the knockout with less than three minutes left when he rifled a 41-yard pass to Bob Deegan and then scored moments later on a twisting run from the 18.

It was a remarkable flip-flop for Minnesota, a six-point favorite that seemed at times to be on the verge of being overrun by the nimble quarterback option sprints of little John Easterbrook and the fullback hammer blows of Bill and Jim Brown.

Frigid Waters End Chadwick Channel Swim

PORT PATRICK, Scotland (AP) —The career of distance swimmer Florence Chadwick closed Saturday with an unsuccessful attempt to swim the icy Northern Channell between Ireland Scotland.

The Californian, who was trimped at every recognized long-distance swim — including the Straits of Gibraltar, the Dardanelles and the English Channel both ways—finally admitted that this last big target had beaten her.

"I quit," she said as they pulled her out of the water, numbed with cold. "This is my last big swim."

It was the fourth time the 42-year-old San Diego swimmer had tried to swim the 19-mile northern channel, and her third attempt within a month. It was the last great stretch of water she wanted to swim before retiring.

She plunged into the sea in the predawn darkness of Donag adee, Northern Ireland, and had covered 14 miles in seven hours when the cold got the better of her. She was then 6 miles from the Scottish coast and in sight of land.

Roberts Lands Pole Position In Stock Race

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—A 50-car field was completed Saturday for the 400-mile $65,000 stock car race over the mile and a half high banked Charlotte Motor Speedway Sunday.

Glen (Fireball) Roberts of Daytona Beach, Fla., will start in the pole position. Beside him will be Jack Smith of Spartanburg, S.C. Both will drive Pontiacs.

Roberts qualified at 133.465 miles per hour on four laps around the asphalt oval. Smith qualified at 131.933 m.p.h.

Thirty-eight drivers and one alternate qualified Saturday, including Joe Lee Johnson of Chattanooga, Tenn., who won the $107,770 inaugural race here on July 19. He will start in 15th position in a 1960 Chevrolet. His qualifying speed was 129.450 m.p.h.

Cornell Falls

NEW HAVEN (AP)—Unbeaten Yale trounced Cornell 22-6 Saturday to gain undisputed possession of first place in the Ivy League. The Elis were sparked by Bob Blanchard, Tom Singleton and Ted Hard, who scored touchdowns. Cornell's score was a nine-yard pass and run from George Telesh to George Ekstrom.

Arkansas Surprises Texas On Last Minute Field Goal

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—Only 15 seconds away from defeat, Mickey Cissell kicked a 30-yard field goal Saturday to give the Arkansas Razorbacks a come - from-behind 24-23 Southwest Conference upset victory over the Texas Longhorns.

Trailing at times by 14 and nine points, quarterback George McKinney riddled the Texas defenses with three touchdown passes, hitting end Jimmy Collier with a nine-yard scorer in the second quarter, end Steve Butler with a two-yard tally throw in the third and halfback Jarrell Williams with a 19-yard payoff in the fourth period.

With Texas leading 23-21, Arkansas began moving after a short kick from the Texas 38 with halfback Lance Alworth doing the damage to the Texas 25.

A desperate pass fell from the hands of Collier with 30 seconds left, then McKinney positioned the field goal with a keeper to the 13. Kicking from the 20, Cissell's field goal boot was low but cleared the bar by about a foot.

Sophomore fullback John Allen Cook put Texas out front in the second quarter with a one - yard touchdown blast, and halfback Jack Collins made it 14-0 minutes later on another one-yard scoring run. McKinney found Collier with his nine-yarder to make the score 14-7 at halftime.

Arkansas knotted the score early in the third quarter on McKinney's pass to Butler.

Texas tackle Dan Petty, who also booted two extra points, lofted a 25-yard field goal to put Texas out in front 17-14, and quarterback Mike Cotten added what appeared to be the clinching Texas touchdown on a one-yard keeper.

McKinney, who connected on nine of 1 passes for 138 yards, brought the Razorbacks right back with a 69-yard march, climaxed by his 19-yard touchdown throw to Jarrell Williams. Cissell added his third successful point - after-touchdown.

QUALIFYING WEDNESDAY

Women's Event For Muny Course

The Twin City Women's Golf Championship will be up for grabs at Municipal Golf Club this week with Mrs. Clyde Nash defending the title she won a year ago at Bayou DeSiard Country Club.

Tuesday is the entry deadline when registration fees must be posted, and the qualifying round is scheduled for Wednesday. Contenders will take practice rounds Tuesday, but will be unable to do so tomorrow as the course will be closed Monday.

Match play will follow during the week and early next week with the finals in all flights and consolations, plus an added field consolation, to be played Wednesday, October 26.

The City of Monroe will host the participants at a barbecue dinner following the final matches.

Bernice Watkins, representing Highland Park of West Monroe, and Virginia High, Bayou DeSiard of Monroe, and Norma Campbell, Municipal of Monroe, make up the tournament committee. Next year's tourney goes to Highland.

Municipal's course was renovated during the summer. All greens are new, there are new tees, and some hazards were eliminated or improved. Hugh Britt, club pro, has the course in its finest condition for the tournament, and some good scores are forecast.

Minstrel, Garwol 1-2 In Rich Race

NEW YORK (AP)—Roving Minstrel and Garwol, an entry owned by the Harbor View Farm of Florida and New York financier Louis Wolfson, ran 1-2 in the $13,900 Champagne Stakes at Belmont Park Saturday.

Roving Minstrel, bought for $80,000 about a month ago, battled head and head with his stablemate for the final three-sixteenths of a mile in a furious stretch drive and won out by a nose.

Garwol finished 529 lengths ahead of Frank Sherman's Bronzerullah, who set the pace for three-quarters of a mile in the mile event being run for the 89th time. Bronzerullah got third money by a nose over Leonard P. Sasso's Globemaster in the field of nine 2-year-olds.

The time of 1:35 3-5 was the second fastest for the race, oldest 2-year-old stakes in America, which first was run at Jerome Park in the Bronx in 1867.

Katherine Price's Carry Back, who won the $96,300 Cowdin Stakes at Belmont Oct. 3 over Globemaster and Garwol, refused to break from the starting gate when it opened. The $1.95 to $1.00 favorite was left about 10 lengths behind before jockey Bill Hartack could get him underway. Carry Back pulled up ninth and last.

The Wolfson entry paid $8.80, $8.40 and $5.10 as the second choice of the crowd of 39,039, which turned out in summer-like weather. Bronzerullah returned $7.10. The starters all carried 122 pounds in this, the richest race of the New York season with a net of $106,310 going to the winner.

Calumet Farm's Bold Prince finished fifth, followed by Ambiopoise, Sherluck, Annihilation and Carry Back.

Phil Rube Pays Backers $20.20 At Narragansett

PAWTUCKET, R.I. (AP)—Making his first start of the meeting after two important earlier victories at Suffolk Downs, W.J. Beattie's Phil Rube, a 3-year-old homebred, Saturday won the $17,265 Providence Stakes before 16,003 at Narragansett Park.

Confidently handled by Bill Skuse, leading rider of the meeting, Phil Rube came from behind with a tremendous late charge through the pack and won by a length and a half over the heavy favorite, Jerry Derenzo's April Skies.

Phil Rube paid $20.20, $7.20 and $3 after his mile and an eighth victory in 1:53 He added $11,222 to his earnings which now total $34,643 in 16 starts this season

BANDITS, STOVALL STAR

Kentucky Field Goal Beats LSU In Fading Minutes, 3-0

By JOHN G. DIETRICH

LEXINGTON, Ky (UPI)— Kentucky and Louisiana State, both trying to escape from the southeastern conference cellar, struggled through 57 futile minutes Saturday night before sophomore halfback Clark Mayfield's 28-yard field goal gave Kentucky a 3-0 victory.

Another sophomore, quarterback Jerry Woolum, made Kentucky a constant threat to break the game open, but Louisiana State's "Chinese Bandits" turned back every thrust until Mayfield's perfect placement kick with 2:38 to play decided the issue.

Only the Bandits, with the help of Jerry tSovall's magnificent punting, kept Louisiana State in the running, for their offensive unit could manage only three first downs al' evening and none in the second half.

Kentucky's deepest penetration was to the 11-yard line in the third period, on the strength of a 21-yard bolt up the middle by halfback Bill Ransdell on a draw play.

That drive was blunted like all the rest when guard Roy Winston broke off to smear Wollum for a 9-yard loss and center Charlie Strange intercepted Woolum's pass on the fourth down.

Kentucky again pushed into the Louisiana State territory early in the fourth period when Woolum connected on a 17-yard pass to end Tom Hutchinson on the Tiger 35. But another Woolum pass was intercepted, this time by guard Dennis Gaubatz.

It was Gaubatz also who had stemmed the tide for Louisiana State in the first half by recovering a Kentucky fumble on the Tiger 35.

Louisiana State's most serious move of the game followed, but it too, ground to a half when Kentucky center Earl Goode piled up a third-down play and the Bengals declined to gamble in a fourth-and-one situation on the Kentucky 41.

Louisiana State got a break early in the second half when R. L. Guillot recovered a Kentucky fumble on the Wildcat 24, but three running plays gained exactly nothing and a field goal try by Wendell Harris was wide to the left.

Kentucky's front line, led by Goode and end Dick Mueller, shackled a Louisiana State attack with only 79 yards running and one pass completion good for eight yards.

Kentucky meanwhile was rolling up 124 yards on Woolum's passes and 98 more by rushing, but the Chinese Bandits and Stovall's 47-yard averagepunting forced the Wildcats to call on Mayfield's foot to gain their SEC victory in the last 11 tries.

Bolt Falters, 4 Others Take Tourney Lead

COSTA MESA, Calif. (AP) — Tommy Bolt, renowned for his lost temper, lost his touch and his lead Saturday, falling behind four players in the third round of the $20,000 Orange County Open Golf Tournament.

George Bayer of Gleneagles, Ill., and three Californians — Al Geiberger of Studio City, Bill Casper Jr. of Apple Valley and Charlie Sifford of Los Angeles—finished in a tie fr the 54-hole lead with 207s.

Bolt, who held a three-stroke advantage after the second round, shot a 3-over-par 74 and dropped into a second-place tie with Jack Fleck of Los Angeles and Jay Hebert of Lafayette, La.

Bayer and Geiberger shot 70s and Casper and Sifford had 69s.

Bolt covered the first nine in par 36, then blew up and took a 38 on the back nine. He had shot two straight 31s on this same back side.

Missouri Has Too Much For Kansas State

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — Missouri's power running backs shattered hopelessly outmanned Kansas State 45-0 Saturday and remained unbeaten with their fifth consecutive victory and second in Big Eight Conference football play.

It took the sixth-ranked Tigers 11½ minutes to collect their first touchdown—grinding out a 78-yard drive — but after that Missouri moved almost at will against the K-State defenders.

Senior halfack Donnie Smith staged an offensive show as he tied a Missouri varsity record of three touchdowns in one game. The 179-pounder from Springfield, Mo., pierced the right side of the K-State line as if it were tissue paper, rolling up 86 yards in 16 carries.

Missouri also received touchdowns from Mel West on a 24-yard third quarter gallop, a four-yard burst from Jim Miles and a one-yard plunge by Carl Crawford, both in the fourth quarter.

Although he was overshadowed by Smith in the scoring column, West, Missouri's leading ground gainer the past two years, was the top gainer with 110 yards on 18 carries.

It was K-State's fourth straight loss.

Baylor Tags Texas Tech In Rain, 14-7

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI)— Halfback Ronnie Bull, driving hard on a rain-soaked field, scored two touchdowns and personally led the Baylor Bears to a 14-7 victory over Texas Tech before 29,000 fans here Saturday night.

Bull took a screen pass from quarterback Ronnie Stanley and raced 50 yards down the sidelines early in the second period to put the Bears out front. He came back, after the Red Raiders had tied the score, to plunge one yard late in the second quarter to score the other Bear touchdown.

Sophomore quarterback Johnny Lovelace marked up the Tech touchdown with a four-yard dash into the end zone five seconds deep in the second period.

Fullback Larry Corley converted after both of Bull's touchdowns and quarterback Glen Amerson converted after the Tech score.

A misty rain, which turned into a downpour just before the half, didn't seem to bother the teams. Baylor tried 18 passes and Tech 13.

San Jose Socks Stanford, 34-20

STANFORD, Calif. (AP)—San Jose State's underdog Spartans buried Stanford's football hopes 34-20 Saturday with 176-pound fullback Johny Johnson running for four touchdowns.

The speedy 19-year-old sophomore from Port Arthur, Tex., tallied two first quarter scores on runs of three and 29 yards, then added another pair in the second half, both on one yard shots.

Only once before in the 17-game neighborhood rivalry has the Spartan scalped the Indian, but Coach Bob Titchenal's forces did it with a vengeance for their second victory in three games this season.

FIELD GOAL WINS

Auburn Pulls 9-7 Victory Over Tech

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Senior quarterback Bryant Harvard flipped an eight-yard scoring pass and brokeup a major Georgia Tech threat with an interception Saturday as Auburn downed the Engineers 9-7.

Harvard, sometimes overshadowed by flashy teammate Bobby Hunt, guided the Tigers 67 yards with the opening kickoff, climaxing the march with an eight-yard scoring toss to end Joe Leichtnan. Fullback Ed Dyas' extra point try was blocked but he later added a 37-yard field goal for the winning margin.

Georgia Tech, battling back gamely, thrice battered at the Auburn goal line, finally making good in the last period as quarterback Stan Gann hit halfback Billy Williamson in the open with a 29-yard touchdown pass.

Field goal expert Tommy Wells converted after the Tech score but missed an earlier attempt to set a new collegiate field goal record from 17. It was his first miss in eight tries for a three-pointer this season.

Harvard pulled the Tigers out of a deep hole in the third period by intercepting Gann's pass on his own three and returning it to the Auburn 11. Late in the last period, he hauled in another Gann toss deep in Auburn territory as the Engineers were bidding desperately for another score.

Dyas, in good health after being crippled all season by injuries, also provided some punch to the Tiger attack. He carried six times for 27 yards in the scoring march, bucking for four on ne crucial fourth down play with inches to go.

Dyas was wide on another try for a field goal from 37 yards out in the fourth period.

The Tigers dominated play completely in the first period, reeling off 25 plays to five for Georgia Tech. After their scoring march, they got the ball on their own 35, then marched to the Tech 18 but were set back by a holding penalty. A Harvard to Jimmy Burson pass was good for 11 yards, then Dyas dropped back to boot his field goal.

Late in the first half, Tech's Chick Graning got loose for 48 yards to put the Engineers on the Auburn 13. Gann gained two but then missed two pass attempts and Wells dropped back to try for a record-making field goal. His bid for a 27-yarder was no good.

Georgia Tech's only score came midway in the last period. Starting on his own 44, Gann found end Taz Anderson open for an 11-yard pass, then hit end Gerald Burch for 12 more. After two incomplete tosses, he spotted Williamson behind the Auburn secondary for a 29-yard touchdown play.

Scoring:

Aub—Leichtnam 8 pass from Harvard (kick failed)
Aub—Fg Dyas 37
Tech— Williamson 29 pass from Gann (Wells kick)

Trojans Come From Behind To Trip Bears

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Sophomore fullback Hal Tobin brought Southern California from behind with a 63-yard touchdown run and halfback Lynn Gaskill added a 42-yard gallop to ice it in the second half Saturday as the Trojans defeated scrappy California 27-10.

A crowd of 39,830 saw the teams in their first Big Five Conference clash, and few left Memorial Coliseum until Gaskill, on a pitchout, scooted down the sideline in front of the Trojan bench for his six points.

Southern Cal ended its scoring in the last two minutes when Skip Johnson intercepted a pass and ran untouched 23 yards for a touchdown.

The Golden Bears, who held the Trojans to a 7-7 tie at the half, took a momentary lead early in the third quarter on a 22-yard field goal by Jim Ferguson.

It was short-lived. The 201-pound Tobin broke through the Bear line, shook off Steve Bates, the last man with a chance at him, and rambled on for the most brilliant and longest run of the afternoon.

California fought back and reached the Trojan 16 in the hectic fourth. The Bears were pushed back and Ferguson's try for a field goal from the 28 hit the goal post to the right.

Name Cicotte Minor League Star Of Year

COLUMBUS, Ohio, (AP) — Angelar Al Cicotte, 30-year-old pitcher who had a 16-7 record with the Toronto pennant winners in the International League, Saturday was named the minor league player of the year.

The nephew of former Chicago White Sox hurler Ed Cicotte was being sought by at least nine major league clubs as the season ended. He finished with a 1.79 earned run average, best in his circuit, and had an 11-inning no-hit 1-0 victory over Montreal Sept. 3.

Cicotte broke into baseball in 1948 with the Butler of the Mid-Atlantic League. He has been with four major league clubs—the Yankees, Senators, Tigers and Indians.

The right-hander, who stands 6-3, hurled three victories in the International League playoffs, but lost twice to Louisville in the Junior World Series. That did not prevent his selection, however, since the National Association of Baseball Writers had completed voting by that time.

Cicotte finished ahead of outfielder Willie Davis of Spokane in the final voting. Davis, who has moved up to the Los Angeles Dodgers, batted in 75 runs with a .346 average at Spokane.

The Toronto pitcher will receive a cash award and a trophy. They will be presented by International League President Frank Shaughnessy in New York, Oct. 27.

Old War Skule's Ex-Grid Greats Are On Program

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Col. J. Lester White, president of the Cadets of the Ole War Skule, said Saturday the program for the group's Oct. 22 meeting here will be built around four former gridiron greats at Louisiana State University.

The four are Harry P. Gamble, New Orleans, co-captain of the teams of 1893-95; Edwin F. Gayle, Lake Charles, outstanding player on the same teams; G. E. (Doc) Fenton, Baton Rouge, all-America player on the championship team of 1908; and W. Morton Evans of Baton Rouge, who scored the only touchdown in the game to beat Tulane in 1911.

The cadets make up an informal organization of men who attended classes at LSU or served on the faculty or staff in any capacity before the university was moved to its present campus more than 30 years ago.

Colorado State Drops CC, 21-14

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP)—Colorado State College gave up a first period touchdown to Colorado College but came back in the second half for a 21-15 Rocky Mountain Conference football victory Saturday.

CC's chances faded after halfback Pete Pleasant, who scored the Tigers' opening touchdown, broke his right ankle and left the game in the second period.

Georgia Blasts Maroons, 20-17

ATHENS Ga (UPI) — Quarterback Francis Tarkenton moved Georgia into position with his accurate passing and Durwood Pennington kicked a 25-yard field goal with eight seconds left in the game Saturday to give the Bulldogs a come-from-behind 20-17 win over the hustling Mississippi State Marons.

A throng of 36,000 partisan fans cheered wildly as Tarkenton had threaded the needle on five straight passes to move the ball into position for the winning marker. It was the second field goal for Pennington who had booted a 31-yarder earlier in the fourth quarter.

Mississippi State jumped into an early lead with 17 points in the second quarter and led at halftime 17-7.

Mississippi State opened the scoring the second period when Sammy Dantone kicked a 25-yard field goal. On the kickoff, halfback Billy Jackson went 75 yards to the Mississippi State 12. Three plays later Georgia went ahead when Bill Godfrey went over from the two. Pennington's kick was good.

The Maroons came right back and marched down field for a touchdown with quarterback Charlie Furlow passing three yards to end Randy Hutto. And Dantone's try for the extra point failed.

Less than three minutes later tackle Fred Perkins picked off an errant Tarkenton pass on the Georgia 36 and returned it 25 yards. Two plays later quarterback Billy Hill went over from the four. Dantone converted the extra point. With 1:21 left in the first half, Bobby Bethune intercepted a Tarkenton pass on the Maroon two and Mississippi State ran out the clock.

At the start of the second half Georgia took the ball and moved 81 yards on 14 plays, with halfback Fred Brown busting over from the one-yard line. Pennington again booted the extra point, setting the stage for his last period heroics.

Tarkenton hit 19 of 24 pass attempts for a total of 224 yards gained by the air routes. His red-hot second half amounted to 13 completions out of 15 attempts for 155 yards.

His prime targets in the final quarter were ends John McEachern and Clyde Childers.

The fleet Maroon backs gave the Bulldogs a scare in the first half as Furlow, Hill and fullback Mackie Weaver ripped off long gains.

Mississippi State's touchdowns were the first it had scored against an SEC Team in seven conference games.

Bengal Frosh Trip Rebels For 17-13 Win

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Bain Slack got the best of a passing duel with Mississippi's freshman Perry Lee Dunn as Louisiana State freshmen won 17-13 in a fourth quarter rally Saturday before a crowd of about 3,500.

After Derwood Thomas started the scoring in the first period with a 20-yard LSU field goal, Dunn kept the LSU freshmen on their heels.

Slack put LSU ahead with a little more than a minute left by hitting C. J. Gaudin in the end zone from the 20 yard line. Thomas converted.

Tommy Kelly scored an earlier fourth period touchdown from the 5 on a quarterback keep. Thomas converted.

Dunn kept the ball on a fake field goal attempt and threated through from the four for a second quarter touchdown. Frank Kinard converted.

Ole Miss stretched the lead in the third period on Dunn's touchdown pass to Joe Wilkins from the 19.

This was the LSU's frosh second game. They lost their opener to Mississippi State Freshmen, 32-7.

It was Mississippi's freshmen opener.

Pettit Scores 29 Points As Hawks Whip Cincinnati

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Bob Pettit scored 29 points Saturday and led the St. Louis Hawks to a 129-109 National Basketball Association exhibition victory over Cincinnati in a nationally televised game played in the State Fairgrounds Coliseum.

Oscar Robertson, Indianapolis native, had a disappointing return to his hometown. Bothered with a bruised right hip, Big O saw only limited service as he scored 18 points for Cincinnati. Jack Twyman led the Royals with 19.

Soviet Runner Betters Record

MOSCOW (AP)—Peter Bolotnikov, Soviet runner who won the 10,000-meter event in the Rome Olympics, bettered the world record Saturday with a clocking of 28 minutes, 18.8 seconds at Kiev.

The world mark of 28:30.4, set in Moscow by the Russian star Vladimir Kuts, has stood since Sept. 11, 1956. He made his run in warm and windless conditions, and was competing for the Spartaksports Club in the Soviet Union team championships.

DENVER (AP) — Up to this season, shortstop Coot Veal of the Denver Bears — a former Detroit Tigers infielder — had hit just one home run since 1957.

But in June, Veal banged homers in three consecutive games.

Kelso Captures Gold Cup's Loot

By JERRY LISKA

CHICAGO (AP) — Bohemia Stable's Kelso, ridden brilliantly by the veteran Eddie Arcaro, splashed to an easy five-length victory over a muddy track in the $144,150 Gold Cup which closed the Hawthorne fall meeting before 22,090 Saturday.

Scoring his sixth victory of the year, the 3-year-old Kelso took command of the 1¼-mile feature coming out of the final turn and won under wraps over Heroshogala. Third in the nine-horse field was Calumet Farm's On-and-On.

Kelso, who went off a 2-1 favorite, returned $6.40, $4.40 and $3.40. Heroshogala, owned by Mrs. Mary Keim of Evanston, Ill., paid $7 and $4.60. The show price for On-and-On was $4.40.

The heavy going was not at all to the liking of the top-weighted Dotted Swiss, carrying 126 pounds, who finished last. Next to last was the highly regarded T.V. Lark.

Kelso was hauling 117 pounds, including Arcaro, who paced the horse in fine fashion over the long grind. The time was 2:02, considerably behind the track record of 1:59.

As a supplemental entry, Kelso's winner's purse was $88.900 and boosted his career earnings to $226.485 with all but $3,380 earned in 1960.

Fourth was Natego, followed by Santiago, Hymient, Manassa Mauler, T.V. Lark and Dotted Swiss.

Hymient, ridden by John Bev, jumped into the lead at the start and kept splashing at the head of the field for about three-quarters of a mile.

At this point, Kelso began to make his move and with a quarter of a mile to go shot strongly in front. On-and-On, who had been in contention all the way, made a pass at the flying Kelso but then had trouble with the fast closing Heroshogala who took over second a few strides from the finish.

Arcaro said after the race that Kelso "ran like the great horse we think he is and this proves it. He can run on any kind of track. He's just great."

Meetings Set For Managers

A meeting of Northside managers for Little League and Minor League will be held Monday night at the Community Center at 6:30.

Southside Little League, Minor League and Dixie League managers will meet Tuesday night at 6:30 at the Community Center. Managers are urged to be present and bring in their equipment at this time.

Duke Outlasts N.C. State For 17-13 Victory

DURHAM, N.C. (AP)—A nine-yard third quarter touchdown run by stocky halfback Dean Wright gave Duke a 17-13 football victory over North Carolina State Saturday and first place in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

It was the first loss of the season for State, and dropped the Wolfpack from the conference lead.

Quarterback Roman Gabriel of State tried doggedly to retain the lead when he sparked a fourth period march, but it was halted on Duke's 17.

State, trailing 10-0, came back behind Gabriel's passing and the running of halfback Randy Harrell. In the second quarter Gabriel pitched a 35-yard TD strike to halfback Claude Gibson and the Wolfpack pulled ahead 13-10 by driving 58-yards in 10 plays after the second half kickoff. Harrell's 22-yard run featured the drive, climaxed by halfback Al Taylor's two-yard scoring run.

Sophomore halfback Bill Reynolds' field goal from the 1-yard line gave Duke a first period lead. In the second quarter Duke moved 58 yards in 10 plays, fullback Jack Tennell covering the last yard.

Wright's run capped a 51-yard drive which the Blue Devils negotiated in 10 plays.

The victory extended Duke's mastery over State, which hasn't beaten the Blue Devils since 1946.

King's Marshall Leads Way Home In Man O'War

SAN BRUNO, Calif. (AP)—King's Marshall galloped to a three-length victory Saturday in the $16,500 Man O'War Handicap at Tanforan.

The chestnut colt beat out eight other 3-year-olds and went the 1 1-16 mile in 1:42 2-5, just one fifth of a second off the track record.

Salvager finished second, two lengths in front of Gem Town who nosed out the favored Henrijan for third money.

The English-bred winner collected $9.600, bringing his total earnings to $35,119. The horse is now owned by San Francisco amateur golfer Bob Roos Jr.

King's Marshall paid $8, $4.20 and $3.20 while Salvager returned $5 and $3.60 and Gem Town $8.60.

Orioles Sign Little Rock Deal

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Baltimore Orioles Saturday night announced the signing of a working agreement with Little Rock of the Class AA Southern Association.

Little Rock operated last season independent of a major league connection.

The working agreement will be Baltimore's only one with a Class AA team.

FIELD GOAL WINS

Auburn Pulls 9-7 Victory Over Tech

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Senior quarterback Bryant Harvard flipped an eight-yard scoring pass and brokeup a major Georgia Tech threat with an interception Saturday as Auburn downed the Engineers 9-7.

Harvard, sometimes overshadowed by flashy teammate Bobby Hunt, guided the Tigers 67 yards with the opening kickoff, climaxing the march with an eight-yard scoring toss to end Joe Leichtnan. Fullback Ed Dyas' extra point try was blocked but he later added a 37-yard field goal for the winning margin.

Georgia Tech, battling back gamely, thrice battered at the Auburn goal line, finally making good in the last period as quarterback Stan Gann hit halfback Billy Williamson in the open with a 29-yard touchdown pass.

Field goal expert Tommy Wells converted after the Tech score but missed an earlier attempt to set a new collegiate field goal record from 17. It was his first miss in eight tries for a three-pointer this season.

Harvard pulled the Tigers out of a deep hole in the third period by intercepting Gann's pass on his own three and returning it to the Auburn 11. Late in the last period, he hauled in another Gann toss deep in Auburn territory as the Engineers were bidding desperately for another score.

Dyas, in good health after being crippled all season by injuries, also provided some punch to the Tiger attack. He carried six times for 27 yards in the scoring march, bucking for four on ne crucial fourth down play with inches to go.

Dyas was wide on another try for a field goal from 37 yards out in the fourth period.

The Tigers dominated play completely in the first period, reeling off 25 plays to five for Georgia Tech. After their scoring march, they got the ball on their own 35, then marched to the Tech 18 but were set back by a holding penalty. A Harvard to Jimmy Burson pass was good for 11 yards, then Dyas dropped back to boot his field goal.

Late in the first half, Tech's Chick Graning got loose for 48 yards to put the Engineers on the Auburn 13. Gann gained two but then missed two pass attempts and Wells dropped back to try for a record-making field goal. His bid for a 27-yarder was no good.

Georgia Tech's only score came midway in the last period. Starting on his own 44, Gann found end Taz Anderson open for an 11-yard pass, then hit end Gerald Burch for 12 more. After two incomplete tosses, he spotted Williamson behind the Auburn secondary for a 29-yard touchdown play.

Scoring:

Aub—Leichtnam 8 pass from Harvard (kick failed)
Aub—Fg Dyas 37
Tech— Williamson 29 pass from Gann (Wells kick)

Trojans Come From Behind To Trip Bears

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Sophomore fullback Hal Tobin brought Southern California from behind with a 63-yard touchdown run and halfback Lynn Gaskill added a 42-yard gallop to ice it in the second half Saturday as the Trojans defeated scrappy California 27-10.

A crowd of 39,830 saw the teams in their first Big Five Conference clash, and few left Memorial Coliseum until Gaskill, on a pitchout, scooted down the sideline in front of the Trojan bench for his six points.

Southern Cal ended its scoring in the last two minutes when Skip Johnson intercepted a pass and ran untouched 23 yards for a touchdown.

The Golden Bears, who held the Trojans to a 7-7 tie at the half, took a momentary lead early in the third quarter on a 22-yard field goal by Jim Ferguson.

It was short-lived. The 201-pound Tobin broke through the Bear line, shook off Steve Bates, the last man with a chance at him, and rambled on for the most brilliant and longest run of the afternoon.

California fought back and reached the Trojan 16 in the hectic fourth. The Bears were pushed back and Ferguson's try for a field goal from the 28 hit the goal post to the right.

Name Cicotte Minor League Star Of Year

COLUMBUS, Ohio, (AP) — Angular Al Cicotte, 30-year-old pitcher who had a 16-7 record with the Toronto pennant winners in the International League, Saturday was named the minor league player of the year.

The nephew of former Chicago White Sox hurler Ed Cicotte was being sought by at least nine major league clubs as the season ended. He finished with a 1.79 earned run average, best in his circuit, and had an 11-inning no-hit 1-0 victory over Montreal Sept. 3.

Cicotte broke into baseball in 1948 with the Butler of the Mid-Atlantic League. He has been with four major league clubs—the Yankees, Senators, Tigers and Indians.

The right-hander, who stands 6-3, hurled three victories in the International League playoffs, but lost twice to Louisville in the Junior World Series. That did not prevent his selection, however, since the National Association of Baseball Writers had completed voting by that time.

Cicotte finished ahead of outfielder Willie Davis of Spokane in the final voting. Davis, who has moved up to the Los Angeles Dodgers, batted in 75 runs with a .346 average at Spokane.

The Toronto pitcher will receive a cash award and a trophy. They will be presented by International League President Frank Shaughnessy in New York, Oct. 27.

Old War Skule's Ex-Grid Greats Are On Program

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Col. J. Lester White, president of the Cadets of the Ole War Skule, said Saturday the program for the group's Oct. 22 meeting here will be built around four former gridiron greats at Louisiana State University.

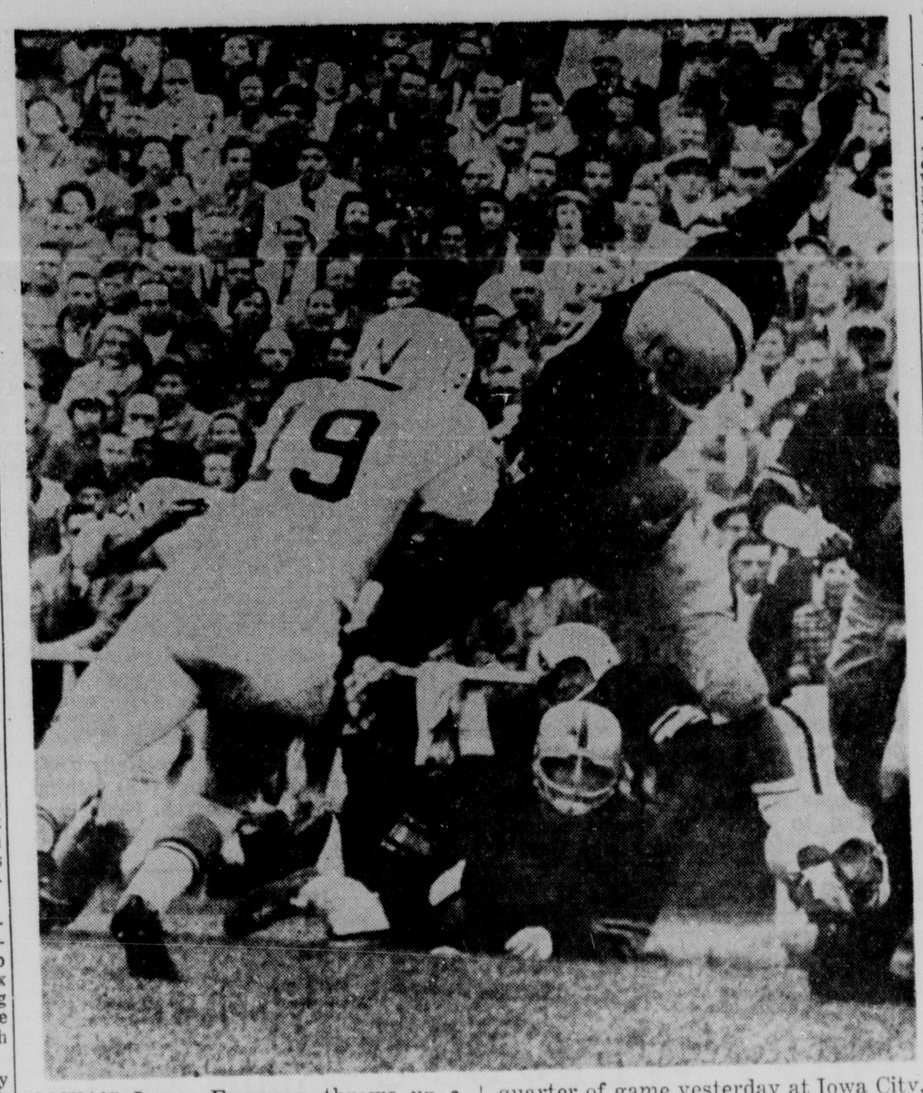
The four are Harry P. Gamble, New Orleans, co-captain of the teams of 1893-95; Edwin F. Gayle, Lake Charles, outstanding player on the same teams; G. E. (Doc) Fenton, Baton Rouge, all-America player on the championship team of 1908; and W. Morton Evans of Baton Rouge, who scored the only touchdown in the game to beat Tulane in 1911.

The cadets make up an informal organization of men who attended classes at LSU or served on the faculty or staff in any capacity before the university was moved to its present campus more than 30 years ago.

Colorado State Drops CC, 21-14

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP)—Colorado State College gave up a first period touchdown to Colorado College but came back in the second half for a 21-15 Rocky Mountain Conference football victory Saturday.

CC's chances faded after halfback Pete Pleasant, who scored the Tigers' opening touchdown, broke his right ankle and left the game in the second period.



IOWA'S Larry Ferguson throws up a hand and carries ball through Wisconsin line opening for five yards in first quarter of game yesterday at Iowa City, Ia. Closing in on him is Wisconsin's Bill Hess (19). (AP Wirephoto)

Pettit Scores 29 Points As Hawks Whip Cincinnati

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Bob Pettit scored 29 points Saturday and led the St. Louis Hawks to a 129-109 National Basketball Association exhibition victory over Cincinnati in a nationally televised game played in the State Fairgrounds Coliseum.

Oscar Robertson, Indianapolis native, had a disappointing return to his hometown. Bothered with a bruised right hip, Big O saw only limited service as he scored 18 points for Cincinnati. Jack Twyman led the Royals with 19.

Soviet Runner Betters Record

MOSCOW (AP)—Peter Bolotnikov, Soviet runner who won the 10,000-meter event in the Rome Olympics, bettered the world record Saturday with a clocking of 28 minutes, 18.8 seconds at Kiev.

The world mark of 28:30.4, set in Moscow by the Russian star Vladimir Kuts, has stood since Sept. 11, 1956. He made his run in warm and windless conditions, and was competing for the Spartaksports Club in the Soviet Union team championships.

COME FROM BEHIND

Georgia Blasts Maroons, 20-17

ATHENS Ga (UPI) — Quarterback Francis Tarkenton moved Georgia into position with his accurate passing and Durwood Pennington kicked a 25-yard field goal with eight seconds left in the game Saturday to give the Bulldogs a come-from-behind 20-17 win over the hustling Mississippi State Marons.

A throng of 36,000 partisan fans cheered wildly as Tarkenton had threaded the needle on five straight passes to move the ball into position for the winning marker. It was the second field goal for Pennington who had booted a 31-yarder earlier in the fourth quarter.

Mississippi State jumped into an early lead with 17 points in the second quarter and led at halftime 17-7.

Mississippi State opened the scoring the second period when Sammy Dantone kicked a 25-yard field goal. On the kickoff, halfback Billy Jackson went 75 yards to the Mississippi State 12. Three plays later Georgia went ahead when Bill Godfrey went over from the two. Pennington's kick was good.

The Maroons came right back and marched down field for a touchdown with quarterback Charlie Furlow passing three yards to end Randy Hutto. And Dantone's try for the extra point failed.

Less than three minutes later tackle Fred Perkins picked off an errant Tarkenton pass on the Georgia 36 and returned it 25 yards. Two plays later quarterback Billy Hill went over from the four. Dantone converted the extra point. With 1:21 left in the first half, Bobby Bethune intercepted a Tarkenton pass on the Maroon two and Mississippi State ran out the clock.

At the start of the second half Georgia took the ball and moved 81 yards on 14 plays, with halfback Fred Brown busting over from the one-yard line. Pennington again booted the extra point, setting the stage for his last period heroics.

Tarkenton hit 19 of 24 pass attempts for a total of 224 yards gained by the air routes. His red-hot second half amounted to 13 completions out of 15 attempts for 155 yards.

His prime targets in the final quarter were ends John McEachern and Clyde Childers.

The fleet Maroon backs gave the Bulldogs a scare in the first half as Furlow, Hill and fullback Mackie Weaver ripped off long gains.

Mississippi State's touchdowns were the first it had scored against an SEC Team in seven conference games.

Score By Peroids

Georgia	0	7	7	6—20
Mississippi State	0	17	0	0—17

Scoring:
M. St-FG Danton 25
Geo-Godfrey 2 run (Pennington kick)

Geo-FG Pennington 25.

Bengal Frosh Trip Rebels For 17-13 Win

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Bain Slack got the best of a passing duel with Mississippi's freshman Perry Lee Dunn as Louisiana State freshmen won 17-13 in a fourth quarter rally Saturday before a crowd of about 3,500.

After Derwood Thomas started the scoring in the first period with a 20-yard LSU field goal, Dunn kept the LSU freshmen on their heels.

Slack put LSU ahead with a little more than a minute left by hitting C. J. Gaudin in the end zone from the 20 yard line. Thomas converted.

Tommy Kelly scored an earlier fourth period touchdown from the 5 on a quarterback keep. Thomas converted.

Dunn kept the ball on a fake field goal attempt and threated through from the four for a second quarter touchdown. Frank Kinard converted.

Ole Miss stretched the lead in the third period on Dunn's touchdown pass to Joe Wilkins from the 19.

This was the LSU's frosh second game. They lost their opener to Mississippi State Freshmen, 32-7.

It was Mississippi's freshmen opener.

Mississippi	0	7	6	0	—13
LSU	3	0	0	14	—17

DENVER (AP) — Up to this season, shortstop Coot Veal of the Denver Bears — a former Detroit Tigers infielder — had hit just one home run since 1957.

But in June, Veal banged homers in three consecutive games.

Duke Outlasts N.C. State For 17-13 Victory

DURHAM, N.C. (AP)—A nine-yard third quarter touchdown run by stocky halfback Dean Wright gave Duke a 17-13 football victory over North Carolina State Saturday and first place in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

It was the first loss of the season for State, and dropped the Wolfpack from the conference lead.

Quarterback Roman Gabriel of State tried doggedly to retain the lead when he sparked a fourth period march, but it was halted on Duke's 17.

State, trailing 10-0, came back behind Gabriel's passing and the running of halfback Randy Harrell. In the second quarter Gabriel pitched a 35-yard TD strike to halfback Claude Gibson and the Wolfpack pulled ahead 13-10 by driving 58-yards in 10 plays after the second half kickoff. Harrell's 22-yard run featured the drive, climaxed by halfback Al Taylor's two-yard scoring run.

Sophomore halfback Bill Reynolds' field goal from the 1 -yard line gave Duke a first period lead. In the second quarter Duke moved 58 yards in 10 plays, fullback Jack Tennell covering the last yard.

Wright's run capped a 51-yard drive which the Blue Devils negotiated in 10 plays.

The victory extended Duke's mastery over State, which hasn't beaten the Blue Devils since 1946.

King's Marshall Leads Way Home In Man O'War

SAN BRUNO, Calif. (AP)—King's Marshall galloped to a three-length victory Saturday in the $16,500 Man O'War Handicap at Tanforan.

The chestnut colt beat out eight other 3-year-olds and went the 1 1-16 mile in 1:42 2-5, just one fifth of a second off the track record.

Salvager finished second, two lengths in front of Gem Town who nosed out the favored Henrijan for third money.

The English-bred winner collected $9,600, bringing his total earnings to $35,119. The horse is now owned by San Francisco amateur golfer Bob Roos Jr.

King's Marshall paid $8, $4.20 and $3.20 while Salvager returned $5 and $3.60 and Gem Town $8.60.

Orioles Sign Little Rock Deal

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Baltimore Orioles Saturday night announced the signing of a working agreement with Little Rock of the Class AA Southern Association.

Little Rock operated last season independent of a major league connection.

The working agreement will be Baltimore's only one with a Class AA team.

TRACK MUDDY

Kelso Captures Gold Cup's Loot

By JERRY LISKA

CHICAGO (AP) — Bohemia Stable's Kelso, ridden brilliantly by the veteran Eddie Arcaro, splashed to an easy five-length victory over a muddy track in the $144,150 Gold Cup which closed the Hawthorne fall meeting before 22,090 Saturday.

Scoring his sixth victory of the year, the 3-year-old Kelso took command of the 1¼-mile feature coming out of the final turn and won under wraps over Heroshogala. Third in the nine-horse field was Calumet Farm's On-and-On.

Kelso, who went off a 2-1 favorite, returned $6.40, $4.40 and $3.40. Heroshogala, owned by Mrs. Mary Keim of Evanston, Ill., paid $7 and $4.60. The show price for On-and-On was $4.40.

The heavy going was not at all to the liking of the top-weighted Dotted Swiss, carrying 126 pounds, who finished last. Next to last was the highly regarded T.V. Lark.

Kelso was hauling 117 pounds, including Arcaro, who paced the horse in fine fashion over the long grind. The time was 2:02, considerably behind the track record of 1:59.

As a supplemental entry, Kelso's winner's purse was $88,900 and boosted his career earnings to $226,485 with all but $3,380 earned in 1960.

Fourth was Natego, followed by Santiago, Hymient, Manassa Mauler, T.V. Lark and Dotted Swiss.

Hymient, ridden by John Bev, jumped into the lead at the start and kept splashing at the head of the field for about three-quarters of a mile.

At this point, Kelso began to make his move and with a quarter of a mile to go shot strongly in front. On-and-On, who had been in contention all the way, made a pass at the flying Kelso but then had trouble with the fast closing Heroshogala who took over second a few strides from the finish.

Arcaro said after the race that Kelso "ran like the great horse we think he is and this proves it. He can run on any kind of track. He's just great."

Meetings Set For Managers

A meeting of Northside managers for Little League and Minor League will be held Monday night at the Community Center at 6:30.

Southside Little League, Minor League and Dixie League managers will meet Tuesday night at 6:30 at the Community Center. Managers are urged to be present and bring in their equipment at this time.

Majors On Verge Of Fued Over Plans For Expansion

By JOE REICHLER

CHICAGO (AP) — The major league expansion program turns from talk to reality Monday when the National League meets to act on the formal application of Houston and New York for the ninth and tenth franchises for 1962.

The American League, balked in its effort to land Houston when the Texas metropolis decided to cast its lot with the older circuit, has scheduled a meeting for a week from Monday, Oct. 24, when it will act upon numerous applications, including those from Fort Worth - Dallas, Minneapolis-St. Paul and Toronto.

American League club owners also will listen to arguments why member cities of the abandoned Continental League should be bypassed for a franchise in Los Angeles, currently the sole property of the National League.

The bitter but up-to-now hidden feeling prevailing between the two majors may flare out into the open as a result.

The picture presently is muddled, but when the final decisions are made, and the two majors become 10-team circuits, the National is likely to include Houston and New York, and the American may have Dallas-Fort Worth and Minneapolis-St. Paul.

Nothing is sure, however. About the only certainty is that Houston will be granted a National League franchise. New York will get one, too, only if the city guarantees completion of a new stadium by 1962 or if the prospective owners of the franchise will agree to lease Yankee Stadium and come to terms with the New York Yankees.

Walter O'Malley, Los Angeles Dodger owner who heads the NL Expansion Committee, indicated his league's thinking when he said last week:

"The Houston people still have some problems to work out, but I am sure they will qualify.

"Now I hope the Continental people in New York will meet with the Yankees' management and discuss the possibility of a National League franchise there. That would complete the expansion program of the National League."

The Houston group is represented by Craig F. Cullinan Jr. and George Kirksey. New York's application was made by Donald Grant, a Wall Street broker in behalf of Mrs. Joan Whitney Payson of New York. These people once headed groups that held franchises in the Continental League, which was absorbed last August by the majors.

The majors said at the time they would expand to ten clubs each by taking over four Continental League cities. Since then, Del Webb, co-owners of the Yankees and head of the AL Expansion Committee, said no such commitment was made by the owners. The agreement, according to Webb, was that the committees would merely recommend the Continental League cities, but the owners had the privilege of accepting or rejecting the recommended cities.

The major problem confronting most applicants is a suitable stadium. Houston plans to build a 15 million dollar stadium which will seat approximately 43,000 with a parking area for 20,000 cars. Actual construction can be started in February 1961, with completion scheduled for March 1, 1962.

The Houston Sports Association, headed by Cullinan, has obtained an option on 270 acres, 5 miles from downtown Houston, on which the stadium will be built. A 20 million dollar revenue bond issue was approved by more than a 3-to-1 margin on July 26, 1958.

New York's board of estimate approved plans more than a year ago for the building of a ten million stadium in Long Island but has made little progress since. The National League has looked upon New York's progress with skepticism and recently, through its president, Warren Giles, warned the city to "lay it on the line if it means business.

"New York is just like any other city without a ballpark," Giles said. "The key that opens the door to a franchise is a stadium."

New York City Mayor Robert Wagner Friday sent telegrams to Commissioner Ford Frick and NL owners asking for prompt action regarding a franchise in order to permit the city to expedite construction of a sports stadium.

"Our stadium is past the drawing board stages in that final plans and specifications will be ready for bidding by Dec. 1, 1960," the telegram read. "Your early indication that a franchise will be granted to New York City would permit us to expedite our construction program so as to insure its completion by 1962 surely and perhaps even for the opening of the 1962 season."

There is every indication that a decision will be forthcoming from Monday's NL meeting. A three-fourths vote is necessary for any structural change.

"We're going to do something definitive," said Giles. "We've delayed long enough; we're not going to drag our feet any longer."

Giles said, in addition to Houston and New York, other cities had applied for membership but declined to identify them.

Webb disclosed that 18 cities had applied for American League membership. Besides Dallas-Fort Worth, Minneapolis-St. Paul, and Toronto, he named Oakland, Seattle, and San Diego. Other applications reportedly have come from Buffalo, Atlanta and Denver.

The AL, it has been learned, was certain it had Houston under its wing and was chagrined that the lucrative territory was promised to the National. Webb admitted his circuit was interested in Houston "to a degree" but added that Dallas-Fort Worth was "more preferable" to the members.

20-7 Score

Vols Oust 'Bama' From Undefeated

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Unbeaten Tennessee quickly converted two first quarter Alabama mistakes into touchdowns Saturday and ousted 'Bama 20-7 from the undefeated ranks.

Alabama halfback Ray Abruzzese fumbled on the first play of the game, and Tennessee linebacker Jim Cartwright recovered on the visitors' 18.

Five plays later tailback Bill Majors passed eight yards to wingback Charles Wyrick for the first of three Tennessee touchdowns, all of which came in a thrill-packed first half. Cotton Letner made good the first of two conversions.

Another Alabama miscue midway the first period gave Tennessee its second touchdown. 'Bama halfback Tommy White, back to kick, fumbled a low pass from center and Vol end Mike Lasorsa grabbed the ball in the air and raced 41 yards for the score.

Early in the second period, Tennessee marched 57 yards for its third touchdown, reserve tailback Glenn Class plunging three yards for the score.

Alabama, which failed to pick up a first down in the opening period, got its wing T offense rolling late in the second and drove 77 yards for its touchdown.

Laurien Stapp, third string quarterback, kept the Vols off balance with deceptive pitchouts and climaxed the drive—longest of the game — with a 13-yard scoring pass to halfback Leon Fuller. Tommy Brooker converted.

The victory gave Tennessee a 3-0-1 record, the only blight being a scoreless tie with Mississippi State. Alabama, which was ranked 16th in the nation, is now 2-1-1.

Alabama was handicapped by the loss of No. 1 quarterback Pat Trammell, who suffered a knee injury in Alabama's 21-0 victory over Vanderbilt two weeks ago and hasn't recovered.

In the final analysis, it was Tennessee's alertness which produced the Vol victory. Tennessee had 14 points on the scoreboard after eight minutes, 35 seconds of play; and this was too much for Alabama to overcome.

Tennessee spent much of the last half fighting off Alabama thrusts, the deepest of which penetrated to the Vol 15 where quarterback Bobby Skelton's passes were knocked down and Tennessee took over.

The Vols made only five first downs — all in the first half — as a scrappy Alabama line, led by guard Billy Neighbors and tackle Jack Rutledge, turned back all Tennessee thrusts in the last two periods.

Alabama picked up 11 first downs and netted 185 yards rushing to Tennessee's 130.

The prettiest play of the game was a 52-yard sprint by 'Bame halfback Billy Piper, sophomore from Poplar Bluff, Mo., in the Tide's long scoring drive. Piper burst through a hole in the middle and was overtaken from behind by Lasorsa on Tennessee's 27 to prevent a touchdown.

Gators Gain 12-0 Victory Over Vandy

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Florida's offense burst into flame in the second half Saturday on the hard running of sophomore halfback Bob Hoover and the trickery of 138-pound sophomore quarterback Larry Libertore for a 12-0 victory over winless Vanderbilt.

It was Florida's second Southeastern Conference victory without defeat and the fourth win in five starts for the predominately sophomore team.

Hoover smashed 15 yards for the first touchdown midway through the third quarter. Libertore set up the second touchdown with a 5-yard run early in the fourth quarter and then threw a 6-yard scoring pass to Don Deal.

It was Vandy's fourth straight conference loss and the third straight week the Commodores failed to score.

After a scoreless first half that was a battle of blunders eight-point favorite Florida came back with the kind of fire it showed in upsetting Georgia Tech two weeks ago and dominated play the rest of the way.

A mixup in signals in the Vandy backfield led to Florida's first touchdown. Vandy recovered its fumble at its 4. Then Hank Lesesne was rushed on his punt from behind the goal and a low kick was fielded by Florida's Lindy Infante at the Vandy 39. He ran it to the 24, and after two plays, Hoover cut over left guard and went all the way.

Florida's second touchdown drive went 8 yards after a 64-yard quick kick by Vandy's Russ Morris.

Bucs Announce Player Changes

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates Saturday announced a series of inter-organizational player changes involving farm clubs.

Pitchers Diomedes Olivo, Paul Giel and Ron Blackburn and infielder Harry Bright were traded to Columbus, Ohio, in exchange for catcher Elmo Plaskett and pitchers Al Jackson, Curt Raydon and Tom Sisk.

Infielder Dick Barone was sent to Salt Lake City for pitcher Tom Parsons.

The Pirates also made these purchases: Shortstop Jose Martinez from Dubuque, Iowa; first baseman Robert Hausley from Kingsport, Tenn.; and outfielder Donn Clendenon from Savannah, Ga.

Virginia Tech Defense Downs William & Mary

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP)—Virginia Tech's Gobblers broke William and Mary's back with two big defensive gestures Saturday and then pounded the tiring Indians into submission for an easy 27-0 Southern Conference football victory.

Down 7-0 in the second quarter as a result of a 73-yard grind-it-out drive by Tech, the Indians had moved to the Tech 24 and were making threatening motions when Gobbler halfback Johnny Watkins intercepted an Indian pass on the 1 and raced all the way to William and Mary's 11.

Watkins' 88-yard scamper set up an 11-yard scoring run by halfback Bob Craztree and gave the Gobblers a 14-0 halftime lead.

But the Indians stormed back with the second half kickoff and moved 61 yards to the Tech 6 with fullback H. C. Thaxton picking up 43 yards in just four carries.

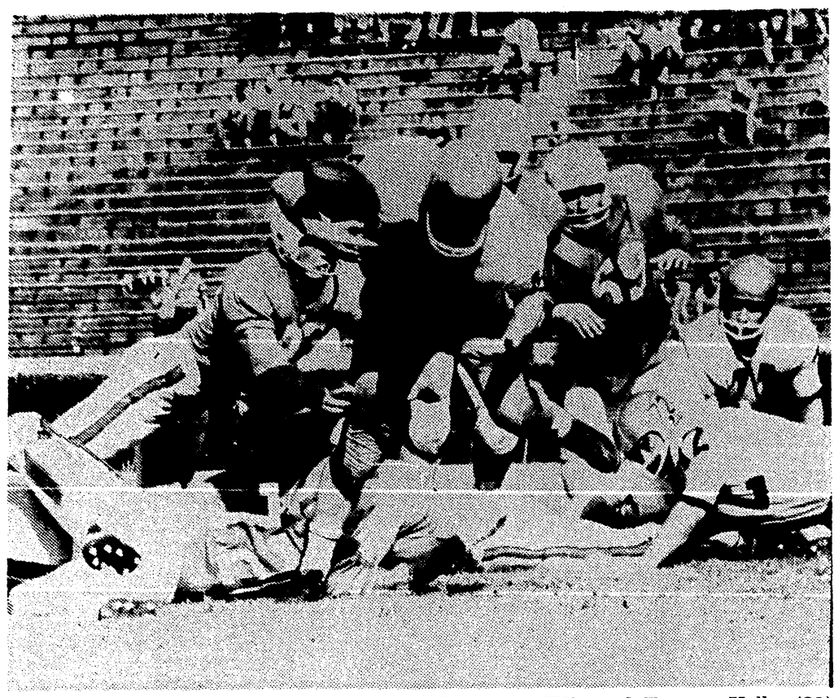
Flur plays later, however, Tech took over on the 5.

Hal Smith Seeks Acting Career

DETROIT (AP) — Guitar-playing Hal Smith, a World Series hero, is thinking about trying for the big time on the stage, too.

Smith, who socked a three-run homer for the Pittsburgh Pirates in the eighth inning of the game against the New York Yankees, returned to his suburban Livonia home Friday night thinking of a possible new career.

But he's careful not to dream too much. He and Roy Face, the latter a Western-style singer, team up for fun and profit. Next week they have a booking in Pittsburgh. An agent will be hearing them — "but it might be only a short career," says Smith.



JUGGLING for a two-yard gain. Bobby Nay (44), Vanderbilt halfback, momentarily loses control of the football but managed to make two yards around right end before Florida tackle Gerald Stephens (72), end Tommy Kelly (83) and centers Bob Welking (58) behind Nay, brought him to earth. Game was played at Gainesville, Fla., yesterday. (AP Wirephoto)

OVER AIR FORCE

Bellino Rolls As Navy Wins, 35-3

BALTIMORE (AP) — Navy's Joe Bellino whirled to three first half touchdowns while quarterback Hal Spooner completely stole the passing thunder of the Air Force for a 35-3 Navy football victory Saturday.

Bellino, matching the three touchdowns he scored against Army last year, broke the undefeated Middies' first game with the Air Force wide open before the intermission.

The stumpy senior from Winchester, Mass., plunged for a touchdown after Air Force drew first blood on a 32-yard field goal by Mike Rawlins.

Bellino then faked, pivoted and bulled his way 15 yards over the goal and two minutes later caught a 25-yard pass from Spooner to nail Navy's fifth straight victory.

Spooner, a senior from Williamsport, Pa., had a tremendous passing day completing 15 out of 21 for 178 yards.

On the other hand, the Air Force's noted thrower, Rich Mayo, was given a miserable time by the Middies. Bellino intercepted once to squelch a second-quarter threat, and Navy end Frank Dattilo intercepted another and ran 80 yards for Navy's last touchdown in the final quarter.

Fullback Joe Matalavage plunged for Navy's fourth touchdown in the third quarter.

Mayo completed 10 of his 25 passes for 141 yards as the Air Force went down for its second straight defeat to even its record for the season.

Air Force started out by stopping the fifth-ranked Navy team before a crowd of 50,000 by throwing Bellino twice for a loss of seven yards and then storming back to the Navy goal.

A 36-yard run by Mike Quinlan moved the Falcons to the Navy 15. They pushed to the 6, but were set back 15 yards for holding and had to settle for Rawlin's field goal.

Two lucky breaks on kicks enabled Navy to come from behind. A Navy field goal attempt by Greg Mather hit inside the 2 and bounced back dead on the Air Force 4.

The Falcons couldn't get out of the hole and Mayo went back to punt. It was blocked by tackle Ron Erchul. The ball shot across the field and out of bounds at the flag. Inches the other way, it would have been only a Navy safety.

Instead, Bellino rammed over for six points and Spooner passed to Datillo for two points more.

Spooner, who was hampered in Navy's first four victories by a leg injury and returned just Saturday to the starting lineup, completed five passes—four to halfback John Prichard—for 41 yards in Navy's march to another touchdown 3½ minutes before the half ended.

In two minutes Navy was over the goal again. Prichard intercepted a pass by Mayo and returned 17 yards to the Air Force 27. Two plays later Spooner lofted the ball into the end zone to Bellino.

Spartans Hand Irish Third Straight Loss

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Senior quarterback Tom Wilson passed for two touchdowns and Ike Grimsley, who calls defensive signals, scored on a 35-yard runback of an interception as Michigan State Saturday handed Notre Dame its third straight football defeat, 21-0.

The victory, before a sellout crowd of 59,133, was the fifth in a row over the Irish by the Duffy Daugherty-coached Spartans. It marked the first time in 72 years of Notre Dame football that the same coach defeated the Irish five successive times.

MSU scored twice in the second quarter for a 14-0 halftime lead and added another touchdown midway in the fourth. The Irish, who have a 1-3 season mark, never moved closer than 28 yards to the MSU goal, twice getting that far.

But Notre Dame, a 13-point underdog, was fired for an upset. Tempers exploded in the last five seconds as Oscar Hahn, 210-pound senior Michigan State guard, and Bob Koreck, 210-pound senior Irish tackle, let fists fly at each other.

Coaches and players broke it up. Just as the game ended, both teams were at each others throats in a wild melee in the middle of the field. Several police with billy clubs went to the rescue, but the scrap broke up without their help and the players finally left for the showers.

Grimsley, a senior and an outside linebacker, scored the first touchdown of his career by stealing sophomore Norb Rascher's pass in the second period. Art Brandstatter place-kicked the first of his three extra points.

Minutes later Wilson hit junior halfback Don Stewart on a screen pass that was good for a 52-yard touchdown. In the fourth quarter, Wilson passed 23 yards to Herb Adderley for another.

Indiana Dumps Marquette, 34-8 With Big Attack

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP)—Indiana's victory-starved Hoosiers battered Marquette 34-8 Saturday behind the relentless running of 160-pound tailback Joe Maroon and a surprise passing attack engineered by Willie Hunter.

Maroon sidestepped Marquette's defenders all afternoon for 139 yards in 15 tries, two touchdowns, and a rushing average of 9.3 yards per carry, but it was Hunter who provided the initial impetus for the Hoosiers.

The Memphis, Tenn., junior, cast in an unexpected starting role, lobbed a 35-yard touchdown pass to end Earl Faison the first time Indiana handled the ball.

Minutes later Hunter tossed 28 yards to Nate Ramsey and then Faison leaped between two defenders to haul down another 40-yard aerial.

Harvard Wins

NEW YORK (AP) — A touchdown and a daring two-point conversion plunge by halfback Jim Nelson gave Harvard an 8-7 comeback victory over Columbia in their Ivy League game Saturday. A pass interception halted a Columbia drive in the fading minutes.

VMI Staggers Virginia For 30-16 Victory

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) —Howard Dyer, only two days out of a hospital bed, offset Virginia's best running attack of the season Saturday that sent unbeaten VMI racing past the much-abused Cavaliers, 30-16.

It was the 22nd consecutive defeat for Virginia in major college football's longest losing streak, and the 12th straight victory for the Southern Conference champion keydets.

Dyer, piling up 216 yards all by himself—205 of them passing—scored two touchdowns, passed for another and set up VMI's fourth touchdown with his tremendous passing, often under dire difficulties. Virginia's line rushed him mercilessly, but nonetheless he got away 22 tosses and completed 11. Three of the passes went for two-point conversions.

The yardage haul gave Dyer, total offense leader in the nation, 938 yards in five games, all of which VMI has won with relative ease.

Boilermakers Upset Ohio State, 24-21

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP)—Purdue's productive Bernie Allen kicked a 32-yard field goal and three extra points, passed brilliantly and ran the clutch yardage Saturday in a 24-21 upset of previously unbeaten Ohio State, the nation's No. 3 ranking team.

Willie Jones, senior Purdue fullback, scored two touchdowns on short plunges, then got the third quarter clincher on a 26-yard sprint. He had never before made a collegiate touchdown. Ohio State had given up only one touchdown altogether in three previous games, but was smacked with two Purdue TD's before it could score.

The Buckeyes caught up 14-14 in the second quarter on a five-yard plunge by Bob Ferguson and Tom Matte's 31-yard pass to Tom Perdue. Matte also set up the first one with a toss to Charles Bryant for 47 yards.

Allen's field goal, five minutes deep in the third quarter, was more than balanced by Ferguson's second touchdown plunge, set up by Roger Detrick's 43-yard run.

Willie Jones' clincher touchdown came in a 32-yard drive that included a 23-yard pass from Allen to sophomore Dave Miller. Miller fumbled after the catch, but officials ruled the ball dead.

Ben Jones kicked Ohio State's extra points.

Both teams played magnificent defensive ball in the scoreless final period. Purdue drove to the Ohio State 15 but was thrown back by two penalties and the stout Buck defense. Ohio State took over on the 15 and was held for downs on its 31.

Panthers Pop West Virginia By 42-0 Score

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pitt crushed winless West Virginia 42-0 Saturday with the biggest offensive splurge in six years under Coach Johnny Michelosen.

A homecoming crowd of 31,313 at Pitt Stadium watched the Panthers turn the game into a rout with 28 points in the first half and run up the highest point total since the 34-0 shellacking of Nebraska in 1957.

The beating was the worst administered by Pitt against West Virginia since a 54-0 bombing in 1904.

The loss was West Virginia's fourth in five games. They tied Richmond 6-6 last Saturday. Pitt's chart now is 2-2-1.

Pitt crashed through on two West Virginia errors — a fumble and a poor punt—for two quick touchdowns in the first period and built up a 28-0 lead by halftime.

Six players figured in Pitt's scoring offensive. Bob Clemens scored twice and Mike Ditka, Ray Tarasi, Jim Traficant and Mike Frasca once each.

Fred Cox, the nation's third leading punter, kicked all six conversions. He missed a field goal from West Virginia's 32 in the third quarter, but was wide to the right.

Traficant, sophomore quarterback from Youngstown, Ohio, pitched 12 yards to Clemens in the first period and hit Ditka with a 34-yard touchdown toss in the third. He also scored on a one-yard plunge in the first period.

Clemens raced 16 yards in the second quarter, Tarasi picked off a lateral and scooted 26 yards in the second and fullback Frasca scored the last touchdown on a 40-yard scamper in the final period.

Penn Triumphs

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Senior end Jon Greenawalt caught two touchdown passes Saturday as Penn swept to its first Ivy League football victory of the season, 36-7, over winless Brown before 10,875. Brown's touchdown was its first score of the season.

AFL Turnstiles Sing Heady Tune

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two games involving natural rivals—Dallas vs. Houston and New York vs. Buffalo—are expected Sunday to bolster the steady rise in attendance for the new American Football League..

The AFL announced Saturday that the 18 games of the new circuit had drawn 357,535 fans—an average of 19,863 a game—and popularity was increasing every week.

Games at Buffalo, N.Y., and Houston this weekend may produce the first sellouts of the campaign.

Houston, leader of the Eastern Division with a 3-1 record, is host at Jeppesen Stadium to the Dallas Texans, who bumped the Oilers twice in pre-season skirmishing.

Dallas, with a 2-3 mark, is second to Denver in the Western Division race. Jeppesen Stadium at Houston seats 35,000.

The War Memorial Stadium at Buffalo, seating 36,000, may be crammed also for the game between the New York Giants and the Buffalo Bills.

The Titans, bidding the Eastern Division lead with three victories and two defeats, hold one victory over the Bills but they also whipped the Buffalo team in a pre-season game. The Bills trial the Eastern Division race with 1-3.

The other two games Sunday are Western affairs. Boston (2-2) journeys plays Oakland (2-3) at San Francisco and Los Angeles (2-3) plays Denver (3-1) at Denver. Denver is seeking to defend its No. 1 position in the Western race.

Dallas is the attendance pacesetter in the new circuit, having drawn 100,500 for three games.

The season's high-42,000-saw the Texans' opener against Los Angeles.

While the Texans are away in the AFL, their National League rivals, the Dallas Cowboys, are at home against the Cleveland Browns in one of the lopsided games of the older circuit.

The Cowboys haven't won a game and they play a strong Cleveland club which is 2-0. In other NFL games, the Baltimore Colts are 14-point favorites over the Los Angeles Rams at Baltimore and the New York Giants are 13 over the Washington Redskins in New York.

Also, Detroit plays at Philadelphia, St. Louis at Pittsburgh and San Francisco at Chicago.

Syracuse Tips Penn State By 21-15 Margin

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP)—Hobble-kneed Mark Weber, relegated to a defensive role because of injuries, intercepted a desperate Penn State pass in the third quarter Saturday and raced 60 yards for a touchdown that led fourth-ranked Syracuse to a 21-15 victory.

Weber, a senior halfback from Solon, Ohio, missed two games this season because of the knee troubles that kept him out of action most of last year. He was used only on defense Saturday to reduce the risk of more injuries.

His one big defensive play was the payoff in an exciting game of mingled long-gaining plays and tough defense.

It was the fourth straight victory for Syracuse, the national champion last year, and the 15th straight in the longest current major college winning streak.

Each team scored one more touchdown, but it was Weber's run that broke open the game. Penn State's Galen Hall, harrased by end Fred Mautino on his pass attempt, dodged three tacklers before he let fly his abortive pass. It didn't come near a Penn State receiver. Weber grabbed it on the Syracuse 40, got an important block from Norm Lemieux and was home free for the score.

It was the second such blooper by a Penn State passer. Earlier Don Jonas, State's top runner, had thrown one while he was falling and a Syracuse player intercepted. But that time officials ruled Jonas had been downed before he threw.

Jonas dashed 45 yards for Penn State's first touchdown, and Dick Pae made the second in the dying minutes on a pass from Hall.

For Syracuse, Ernie Davis scored first on an 18-yard run and Don King smashed over for the third tally.

Snead Passes Wake Forest Past Tar Heels

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP)—Quarterback Norman Snead, whose passes had been off target all afternoon, hit halfback Donnie Frederick with a 15-yard touchdown heave late in the fourth quarter Saturday to give Wake Forest a 13-12 win over bitter Atlantic Coast Conference rival North Carolina.

Snead's game winning strike, which came with only 2:21 left on the block, gave him a new conference record for touchdown passes — a career total of 20. Snead completed only three of 13 passes during the game.

The scoring pass pulled the game out of the fire for the Deacons, after North Carolina—which had trailed since late in the first quarter—had taken a 12-7 lead only minutes before.

A crowd of 36,000 saw the Deacons rack up their first triumph of the season after three losses. The setback gave the Tar Heels a 1-3 record.

Early in the fourth quarter, North Carolina started on its 42 after a punt exchange and scored in 12 plays. A 10-yard pass from quarterback Ray Farris to halfback Gib Carson and a 15-yard penalty on the Deacons helped in the drive, which ended with halfback Lenny Beck scampering over from the 5.

Colorado Rips Through Iowa State, 21-6

AMES, Iowa (AP) — Colorado's overpowering ground attack rolled back Iowa State 21-6 Saturday and kept the Buffaloes undefeated in the Big Eight Conference.

So overwhelming was Colorado's rushing that it didn't matter that its passing was ineffectual.

Colorado scored the first two times it got the ball, marching 56 and 68 yards using only 11 plays for each scoring trip.

Tom Watkins brought the only thrill to a record Iowa State homecoming crowd of 20,000 by rushing 62 yards to score with Frank Fink's fumble in the fourth quarter.

Until then, the Cyclones' deepest penetration was to the Colorado 11 in the third period. But the Buffalo line threw the Cyclones back 22 yards in three plays and quieted the threat.

Claude Crabb scored from four yards out in the first quarter, and Chuck Weiss plunged the last yard in the next period to send Colorado to a 14-0 halftime lead.

The Cyclones' Watkins presented Colorado with its third scoring opportunity at the outset of the third quarter. He fumbled on his own 18 on the first play after the kickoff and Mel Semenko recovered. Frank Montera got the touchdown on a 1-foot plunge and Jerry Hillebrand kicked his third successive extra point.

Majors On Verge Of Fued Over Plans For Expansion

By JOE REICHLER

CHICAGO (AP) — The major league expansion program turns from talk to reality Monday when the National League meets to act on the formal application of Houston and New York for the ninth and tenth franchises for 1962.

The American League, balked in its effort to land Houston when the Texas metropolis decided to cast its lot with the older circuit, has scheduled a meeting for a week from Monday, Oct. 24, when it will act upon numerous applications, including those from Fort Worth - Dallas, Minneapolis-St. Paul and Toronto.

American League club owners also will listen to arguments why member cities of the abandoned Continental League should be bypassed for a franchise in Los Angeles, currently the sole property of the National League.

The bitter but up-to-now hidden feeling prevailing between the two majors may flare out into the open as a result.

The picture presently is muddled, but when the final decisions are made, and the two majors become 10-team circuits, the National is likely to include Houston and New York, and the American may have Dallas-Fort Worth and Minneapolis-St. Paul.

Nothing is sure, however. About the only certainty is that Houston will be granted a National League franchise. New York will get one, too, only if the city guarantees completion of a new stadium by 1962 or if the prospective owners of the franchise will agree to lease Yankee Stadium and come to terms with the New York Yankees.

Walter O'Malley, Los Angeles Dodger owner who heads the NL Expansion Committee, indicated his league's thinking when he said last week:

"The Houston people still have some problems to work out, but I am sure they will qualify.

"Now I hope the Continental people in New York will meet with the Yankees' management and discuss the possibility of a National League franchise there. That would complete the expansion program of the National League."

The Houston group is represented by Craig F. Cullinan Jr. and George Kirksey. New York's application was made by Donald Grant, a Wall Street broker in behalf of Mrs. Joan Whitney Payson of New York. These people once headed groups that held franchises in the Continental League, which was absorbed last August by the majors.

The majors said at the time they would expand to ten clubs each by taking over four Continental League cities. Since then, Del Webb, co-owners of the Yankees and head of the AL Expansion Committee, said no such commitment was made by the owners. The agreement, according to Webb, was that the committees would merely recommend the Continental League cities, but the owners had the privilege of accepting or rejecting the recommended cities.

The major problem confronting most applicants is a suitable stadium. Houston plans to build a 15 million dollar stadium which will seat approximately 43,000 with a parking area for 20,000 cars. Actual construction can be started in February 1961, with completion scheduled for March 1, 1962.

The Houston Sports Association, headed by Cullinan, has obtained an option on 270 acres, 5 miles from downtown Houston, on which the stadium will be built. A 20 million dollar revenue bond issue was approved by more than a 3-to-1 margin on July 26, 1958.

New York's board of estimate approved plans more than a year ago for the building of a ten million stadium in Long Island but has made little progress since. The National League has looked upon New York's progress with skepticism and recently, through its president, Warren Giles, warned the city to "lay it on the line if it means business.

"New York is just like any other city without a ballpark," Giles said. "The key that opens the door to a franchise is a stadium."

New York City Mayor Robert Wagner Friday sent telegrams to Commissioner Ford Frick and NL owners asking for prompt action regarding a franchise in order to permit the city to expedite construction of a sports stadium.

"Our stadium is past the drawing board stages in that final plans and specifications will be ready for bidding by Dec. 1, 1960," the telegram read. "Your early indication that a franchise will be granted to New York City would permit us to expedite our construction program so as to insure its completion by 1962 surely and perhaps even for the opening of the 1962 season."

There is every indication that a decision will be forthcoming from Monday's NL meeting. A three-fourths vote is necessary for any structural change.

"We're going to do something definitive," said Giles. "We've delayed long enough; we're not going to drag our feet any longer."

Giles said, in addition to Houston and New York, other cities had applied for membership but declined to identify them.

Webb disclosed that 18 cities had applied for American League membership. Besides Dallas-Fort Worth, Minneapolis-St. Paul, and Toronto, he named Oakland, Seattle, and San Diego. Other applications reportedly have come from Buffalo, Atlanta and Denver.

The AL, it has been learned, was certain it had Houston under its wing and was chagrined that the lucrative territory was promised to the National. Webb admitted his circuit was interested in Houston "to a degree" but added that Dallas-Fort Worth was "more preferable" to the members.

20-7 Score

Vols Oust 'Bama' From Undefeated

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Unbeaten Tennessee quickly converted two first quarter Alabama mistakes into touchdowns Saturday and ousted 'Bama 20-7 from the undefeated ranks.

Alabama halfback Ray Abruzzese fumbled on the first play of the game, and Tennessee linebacker Jim Cartwright recovered on the visitors' 18.

Five plays later tailback Bill Majors passed eight yards to wingback Charles Wyrick for the first of three Tennessee touchdowns, all of which came in a thrill-packed first half. Cotton Letner made good the first of two conversions.

Another Alabama miscue midway the first period gave Tennessee its second touchdown. 'Bama halfback Tommy White, back to kick, fumbled a low pass from center and Vol end Mike Lasorsa grabbed the ball in the air and raced 41 yards for the score.

Early in the second period, Tennessee marched 57 yards for its third touchdown, reserve tailback Glenn Class plunging three yards for the score.

Alabama, which failed to pick up a first down in the opening period, got its wing T offense rolling late in the second and drove 77 yards for its touchdown.

Laurien Stapp, third string quarterback, kept the Vols off balance with deceptive pitchouts and climaxed the drive—longest of the game — with a 13-yard scoring pass to halfback Leon Fuller. Tommy Brooker converted.

The victory gave Tennessee a 3-0-1 record, the only blight being a scoreless tie with Mississippi State. Alabama, which was ranked 16th in the nation, is now 2-1-1.

Alabama was handicapped by the loss of No. 1 quarterback Pat Trammell, who suffered a knee injury in Alabama's 21-0 victory over Vanderbilt two weeks ago and hasn't recovered.

In the final analysis, it was Tennessee's alertness which produced the Vol victory. Tennessee had 14 points on the scoreboard after eight minutes, 35 seconds of play; and this was too much for Alabama to overcome.

Tennessee spent much of the last half fighting off Alabama thrusts, the deepest of which penetrated to the Vol 15 where quarterback Bobby Skelton's passes were knocked down and Tennessee took over.

The Vols made only five first downs — all in the first half — as a scrappy Alabama line, led by guard Billy Neighbors and tackle Jack Rutledge, turned back all Tennessee thrusts in the last two periods.

Alabama picked up 11 first downs and netted 185 yards rushing to Tennessee's 130.

The prettiest play of the game was a 52-yard sprint by 'Bame halfback Billy Piper, sophomore from Poplar Bluff, Mo., in the Tide's long scoring drive. Piper burst through a hole in the middle and was overtaken from behind by Lasorsa on Tennessee's 27 to prevent a touchdown.

Gators Gain 12-0 Victory Over Vandy

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Florida's offense burst into flame in the second half Saturday on the hard running of sophomore halfback Bob Hoover and the trickery of 138-pound sophomore quarterback Larry Libertore for a 12-0 victory over winless Vanderbilt.

It was Florida's second Southeastern Conference victory without defeat and the fourth win in five starts for the predominately sophomore team.

Hoover smashed 15 yards for the first touchdown midway through the third quarter. Libertore set up the second touchdown with a 5-yard run early in the fourth quarter and then threw a 6-yard scoring pass to Don Deal.

It was Vandy's fourth straight conference loss and the third straight week the Commodores failed to score.

After a scoreless first half that was a battle of blunders eight-point favorite Florida came back with the kind of fire it showed in upsetting Georgia Tech two weeks ago and dominated play the rest of the way.

A mixup in signals in the Vandy backfield led to Florida's first touchdown. Vandy recovered its fumble at its 4. Then Hank Lesesne was rushed on his punt from behind the goal and a low kick was fielded by Florida's Lindy Infante at the Vandy 39. He ran it to the 24, and after two plays, Hoover cut over left guard and went all the way.

Florida's second touchdown drive went 8 yards after a 64-yard quick kick by Vandy's Russ Morris.

Bucs Announce Player Changes

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates Saturday announced a series of inter-organizational player changes involving farm clubs.

Pitchers Diomedes Olivo, Paul Giel and Ron Blackburn and infielder Harry Bright were traded to Columbus, Ohio, in exchange for catcher Elmo Plaskett and pitchers Al Jackson, Curt Raydon and Tom Sisk.

Infielder Dick Barone was sent to Salt Lake City for pitcher Tom Parsons.

The Pirates also made these purchases: Shortstop Jose Martinez from Dubuque, Iowa; first baseman Robert Hausley from Kingsport, Tenn.; and outfielder Donn Clendenon from Savannah, Ga.

Virginia Tech Defense Downs William & Mary

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP)—Virginia Tech's Gobblers broke William and Mary's back with two big defensive gestures Saturday and then pounded the tiring Indians into submission for an easy 27-0 Southern Conference football victory.

Down 7-0 in the second quarter as a result of a 73-yard grind-it-out drive by Tech, the Indians had moved to the Tech 24 and were making threatening motions when Gobbler halfback Johnny Watkins intercepted an Indian pass on the 1 and raced all the way to William and Mary's 11.

Watkins' 88-yard scamper set up an 11-yard scoring run by halfback Bob Craztree and gave the Gobblers a 14-0 halftime lead.

But the Indians stormed back with the second half kickoff and moved 61 yards to the Tech 6 with fullback H. C. Thaxton picking up 43 yards in just four carries.

Flur plays later, however, Tech took over on the 5.

Hal Smith Seeks Acting Career

DETROIT (AP) — Guitar-playing Hal Smith, a World Series hero, is thinking about trying for the big time on the stage, too.

Smith, who socked a three-run homer for the Pittsburgh Pirates in the eighth inning of the game against the New York Yankees, returned to his suburban Livonia home Friday night thinking of a possible new career.

But he's careful not to dream too much. He and Roy Face, the latter a Western-style singer, team up for fun and profit. Next week they have a booking in Pittsburgh. An agent will be hearing them — "but it might be only a short career," says Smith.

JUGGLING for a two-yard gain. Bobby Nay (44), Vanderbilt halfback, momentarily loses control of the football but managed to make two yards around right end before Florida tackle Gerald Stephens (72), end Tommy Kelly (83) and centers Bob Welking (58) behind Nay, brought him to earth. Game was played at Gainesville, Fla., yesterday. (AP Wirephoto)

OVER AIR FORCE

Bellino Rolls As Navy Wins, 35-3

BALTIMORE (AP) — Navy's Joe Bellino whirled to three first half touchdowns while quarterback Hal Spooner completely stole the passing thunder of the Air Force for a 35-3 Navy football victory Saturday.

Bellino, matching the three touchdowns he scored against Army last year, broke the undefeated Middies' first game with the Air Force wide open before the intermission.

The stumpy senior from Winchester, Mass., plunged for a touchdown after Air Force drew first blood on a 32-yard field goal by Mike Rawlins.

Bellino then faked, pivoted and bulled his way 15 yards over the goal and two minutes later caught a 25-yard pass from Spooner to nail Navy's fifth straight victory.

Spooner, a senior from Williamsport, Pa., had a tremendous passing day completing 15 out of 21 for 178 yards.

On the other hand, the Air Force's noted thrower, Rich Mayo, was given a miserable time by the Middies. Bellino intercepted once to squelch a second-quarter threat, and Navy end Frank Dattilo intercepted another and ran 80 yards for Navy's last touchdown in the final quarter.

Fullback Joe Matalavage plunged for Navy's fourth touchdown in the third quarter.

Mayo completed 10 of his 25 passes for 141 yards as the Air Force went down for its second straight defeat to even its record for the season.

Air Force started out by stopping the fifth-ranked Navy team before a crowd of 50,000 by throwing Bellino twice for a loss of seven yards and then storming back to the Navy goal.

A 36-yard run by Mike Quinlan moved the Falcons to the Navy 15. They pushed to the 6, but were set back 15 yards for holding and had to settle for Rawlin's field goal.

Two lucky breaks on kicks enabled Navy to come from behind. A Navy field goal attempt by Greg Mather hit inside the 2 and bounced back dead on the Air Force 4.

The Falcons couldn't get out of the hole and Mayo went back to punt. It was blocked by tackle Ron Erchul. The ball shot across the field and out of bounds at the flag. Inches the other way, it would have been only a Navy safety.

Instead, Bellino rammed over for six points and Spooner passed to Datillo for two points more.

Spooner, who was hampered in Navy's first four victories by a leg injury and returned just Saturday to the starting lineup, completed five passes—four to halfback John Prichard—for 41 yards in Navy's march to another touchdown 3½ minutes before the half ended.

In two minutes Navy was over the goal again. Prichard intercepted a pass by Mayo and returned 17 yards to the Air Force 27. Two plays later Spooner lofted the ball into the end zone to Bellino.

Spartans Hand Irish Third Straight Loss

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Senior quarterback Tom Wilson passed for two touchdowns and Ike Grimsley, who calls defensive signals, scored on a 35-yard runback of an interception as Michigan State Saturday handed Notre Dame its third straight football defeat, 21-0.

The victory, before a sellout crowd of 59,133, was the fifth in a row over the Irish by the Duffy Daugherty-coached Spartans. It marked the first time in 72 years of Notre Dame football that the same coach defeated the Irish five successive times.

MSU scored twice in the second quarter for a 14-0 halftime lead and added another touchdown midway in the fourth. The Irish, who have a 1-3 season mark, never moved closer than 28 yards to the MSU goal, twice getting that far.

But Notre Dame, a 13-point underdog, was fired for an upset. Tempers exploded in the last five seconds as Oscar Hahn, 210-pound senior Michigan State guard, and Bob Koreck, 210-pound senior Irish tackle, let fists fly at each other.

Coaches and players broke it up. Just as the game ended, both teams were at each others throats in a wild melee in the middle of the field. Several police with billy clubs went to the rescue, but the scrap broke up without their help and the players finally left for the showers.

Grimsley, a senior and an outside linebacker, scored the first touchdown of his career by stealing sophomore Norb Rascher's pass in the second period. Art Brandstatter place-kicked the first of his three extra points.

Minutes later Wilson hit junior halfback Don Stewart on a screen pass that was good for a 52-yard touchdown. In the fourth quarter, Wilson passed 23 yards to Herb Adderley for another.

Indiana Dumps Marquette, 34-8 With Big Attack

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP)—Indiana's victory-starved Hoosiers battered Marquette 34-8 Saturday behind the relentless running of 160-pound tailback Joe Maroon and a surprise passing attack engineered by Willie Hunter.

Maroon sidestepped Marquette's defenders all afternoon for 139 yards in 15 tries, two touchdowns, and a rushing average of 9.3 yards per carry, but it was Hunter who provided the initial impetus for the Hoosiers.

The Memphis, Tenn., junior, cast in an unexpected starting role, lobbed a 35-yard touchdown pass to end Earl Faison the first time Indiana handled the ball.

Minutes later Hunter tossed 28 yards to Nate Ramsey and then Faison leaped between two defenders to haul down another 40-yard aerial.

Harvard Wins

NEW YORK (AP) — A touchdown and a daring two-point conversion plunge by halfback Jim Nelson gave Harvard an 8-7 comeback victory over Columbia in their Ivy League game Saturday. A pass interception halted a Columbia drive in the fading minutes.

Boilermakers Upset Ohio State, 24-21

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP)—Purdue's productive Bernie Allen kicked a 32-yard field goal and three extra points, passed brilliantly and ran the clutch yardage Saturday in a 24-21 upset of previously unbeaten Ohio State, the nation's No. 3 ranking team.

Willie Jones, senior Purdue fullback, scored two touchdowns on short plunges, then got the third quarter clincher on a 26-yard sprint. He had never before made a collegiate touchdown. Ohio State had given up only one touchdown altogether in three previous games, but was smacked with two Purdue TD's before it could score.

The Buckeyes caught up 14-14 in the second quarter on a five-yard plunge by Bob Ferguson and Tom Matte's 31-yard pass to Tom Perdue. Matte also set up the first one with a toss to Charles Bryant for 47 yards.

Allen's field goal, five minutes deep in the third quarter, was more than balanced by Ferguson's second touchdown plunge, set up by Roger Detrick's 43-yard run.

Willie Jones' clincher touchdown came in a 32-yard drive that included a 23-yard pass from Allen to sophomore Dave Miller. Miller fumbled after the catch, but officials ruled the ball dead.

Ben Jones kicked Ohio State's extra points.

Both teams played magnificent defensive ball in the scoreless final period. Purdue drove to the Ohio State 15 but was thrown back by two penalties and the stout Buck defense. Ohio State took over on the 15 and was held for downs on its 31.

Panthers Pop West Virginia By 42-0 Score

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pitt crushed winless West Virginia 42-0 Saturday with the biggest offensive splurge in six years under Coach Johnny Michelosen.

A homecoming crowd of 31,813 at Pitt Stadium watched the Panthers turn the game into a rout with 28 points in the first half and run up the highest point total since the 34-0 shellacking of Nebraska in 1957.

The beating was the worst administered by Pitt against West Virginia since a 54-0 bombing in 1904.

The loss was West Virginia's fourth in five games. They tied Richmond 6-6 last Saturday. Pitt's chart now is 2-2-1.

Pitt crashed through on two West Virginia errors — a fumble and a poor punt—for two quick touchdowns in the first period and built up a 28-0 lead by halftime.

Six players figured in Pitt's scoring offensive. Bob Clemens scored twice and Mike Ditka, Ray Tarasi, Jim Traficant and Mike Frasca once each.

Fred Cox, the nation's third leading punter, kicked all six conversions. He missed a field goal from West Virginia's 32 in the third quarter, but was wide to the right.

Traficant, sophomore quarterback from Youngstown, Ohio, pitched 12 yards to Clemens in the first period and hit Ditka with a 34-yard touchdown toss in the third. He also scored on a one-yard plunge in the first period.

Clemens raced 16 yards in the second quarter, Tarasi picked off a lateral and scooted 26 yards in the second and fullback Frasca scored the last touchdown on a 40-yard scamper in the final period.

Penn Triumphs

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Senior end Jon Greenawalt caught two touchdown passes Saturday as Penn swept to its first Ivy League football victory of the season, 36-7, over winless Brown before 10,875. Brown's touchdown was its first score of the season.

VMI Staggers Virginia For 30-16 Victory

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP)—Howard Dyer, only two days out of a hospital bed, offset Virginia's best running attack of the season Saturday that sent unbeaten VMI racing past the much-abused Cavaliers, 30-16.

It was the 22nd consecutive defeat for Virginia in major college football's longest losing streak, and the 12th straight victory for the Southern Conference champion keydets.

Dyer, piling up 216 yards all by himself—205 of them passing—scored two touchdowns, passed for another and set up VMI's fourth touchdown with his tremendous passing, often under dire difficulties. Virginia's line rushed him mercilessly, but nonetheless he got away 22 tosses and completed 11. Three of the passes went for two-point conversions.

The yardage haul gave Dyer, total offense leader in the nation, 938 yards in five games, all of which VMI has won with relative ease.

LEAGUE SECCEEDING

AFL Turnstiles Sing Heady Tune

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two games involving natural rivals—Dallas vs. Houston and New York vs. Buffalo—are expected Sunday to bolster the steady rise in attendance for the new American Football League..

The AFL announced Saturday that the 18 games of the new circuit had drawn 357,535 fans—an average of 19,863 a game—and popularity was increasing every week.

Games at Buffalo, N.Y., and Houston this weekend may produce the first sellouts of the campaign.

Houston, leader of the Eastern Division with a 3-1 record, is host at Jeppesen Stadium to the Dallas Texans, who bumped the Oilers twice in pre-season skirmishing.

Dallas, with a 2-3 mark, is second to Denver in the Western Division race. Jeppesen Stadium at Houston seats 35,000.

The War Memorial Stadium at Buffalo, seating 36,000, may be crammed also for the game between the New York Giants and the Buffalo Bills.

The Titans, bidding the Eastern Division lead with three victories and two defeats, hold one victory over the Bills but they also whipped the Buffalo team in a pre-season game. The Bills trial the Eastern Division race with 1-3.

The other two games Sunday are Western affairs. Boston (2-2) journeys plays Oakland (2-3) at San Francisco and Los Angeles (2-3) plays Denver (3-1) at Denver. Denver is seeking to defend its No. 1 position in the Western race.

Dallas is the attendance pacesetter in the new circuit, having drawn 100,500 for three games.

The senson's high-42,000-saw the Texans' opener against Los Angeles.

While the Texans are away in the AFL, their National League rivals, the Dallas Cowboys, are at home against the Cleveland Browns in one of the lopsided games of the older circuit.

The Cowboys haven't won a game and they play a strong Cleveland club which is 2-0. In other NFL games, the Baltimore Colts are 14-point favorites over the Los Angeles Rams at Baltimore and the New York Giants are 13 over the Washington Redskins in New York.

Also, Detroit plays at Philadelphia, St. Louis at Pittsburgh and San Francisco at Chicago.

Syracuse Tips Penn State By 21-15 Margin

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP)—Hobble-kneed Mark Weber, relegated to a defensive role because of injuries, intercepted a desperate Penn State pass in the third quarter Saturday and raced 60 yards for a touchdown that led fourth-ranked Syracuse to a 21-15 victory.

Weber, a senior halfback from Solon, Ohio, missed two games this season because of the knee troubles that kept him out of action most of last year. He was used only on defense Saturday to reduce the risk of more injuries.

His one big defensive play was the payoff in an exciting game of mingled long-gaining plays and tough defense.

It was the fourth straight victory for Syracuse, the national champion last year, and the 15th straight in the longest current major college winning streak.

Each team scored one more touchdown, but it was Weber's run that broke open the game. Penn State's Galen Hall, harrased by end Fred Mautino on his pass attempt, dodged three tacklers before he let fly his abortive pass. It didn't come near a Penn State receiver. Weber grabbed it on the Syracuse 40, got an important block from Norm Lemieux and was home free for the score.

It was the second such blooper by a Penn State passer. Earlier Don Jonas, State's top runner, had thrown one while he was falling and a Syracuse player intercepted. But that time officials ruled Jonas had been downed before he threw.

Jonas dashed 45 yards for Penn State's first touchdown, and Dick Pae made the second in the dying minutes on a pass from Hall.

For Syracuse, Ernie Davis scored first on an 18-yard run and Don King smashed over for the third tally.

Snead Passes Wake Forest Past Tar Heels

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP)—Quarterback Norman Snead, whose passes had been off target all afternoon, hit halfback Donnie Frederick with a 15-yard touchdown heave late in the fourth quarter Saturday to give Wake Forest a 13-12 win over bitter Atlantic Coast Conference rival North Carolina.

Snead's game winning strike, which came with only 2:21 left on the block, gave him a new conference record for touchdown passes — a career total of 20. Snead completed only three of 13 passes during the game.

The scoring pass pulled the game out of the fire for the Deacons, after North Carolina—which had trailed since late in the first quarter—had taken a 12-7 lead only minutes before.

A crowd of 36,000 saw the Deacons rack up their first triumph of the season after three losses. The setback gave the Tar Heels a 1-3 record.

Early in the fourth quarter, North Carolina started on its 42 after a punt exchange and scored in 12 plays. A 10-yard pass from quarterback Ray Farris to halfback Gib Carson and a 15-yard penalty on the Deacons helped in the drive, which ended with halfback Lenny Beck scampering over from the 5.

Colorado Rips Through Iowa State, 21-6

AMES, Iowa (AP) — Colorado's overpowering ground attack rolled back Iowa State 21-6 Saturday and kept the Buffaloes undefeated in the Big Eight Conference.

So overwhelming was Colorado's rushing that it didn't matter that its passing was ineffectual.

Colorado scored the first two times it got the ball, marching 56 and 68 yards using only 11 plays for each scoring trip.

Tom Watkins brought the only thrill to a record Iowa State homecoming crowd of 20,000 by rushing 62 yards to score with Frank Fink's fumble in the fourth quarter.

Until then, the Cyclones' deepest penetration was to the Colorado 11 in the third period. But the Buffalo line threw the Cyclones back 22 yards in three plays and quieted the threat.

Claude Crabb scored from four yards out in the first quarter, and Chuck Weiss plunged the last yard in the next period to send Colorado to a 14-0 halftime lead.

The Cyclones' Watkins presented Colorado with its third scoring opportunity at the outset of the third quarter. He fumbled on his own 18 on the first play after the kickoff and Mel Semenko recovered. Frank Montera got the touchdown on a 1-foot plunge and Jerry Hillebrand kicked his third successive extra point.

SOME SECOND GUESSING

Pirates Like Will 'O Wisp Outboxing Slugger Yanks

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP) — "It was like Willie Pep knocking out Rocky Marciano."

That was how one observer summed up the 1960 World Series in which the wil 'o the wisp boxer scraped himself off the floor after three nine-count knockdowns and flattened the slugger with a lead pipe.

Pittsburgh, of course, was the boxer type—the club that slashed to right field, choked off New York rallies with tumbling catches and then waved for little ElRoy Face when danger threatened.

Three times the combination of Bill Virdon's acrobatic fielding and the pitching trio of Vern Law, Harvey Haddix and Face did the job. In the last game, when Law and Face couldn't do it, the "Beat 'em Bucs" stole the Yanks' home run weapon and beat them at their own game with clouts by Rocky Nelson, Hal Smith and Bill Mazeroski.

The Yankees were the knockout punchers with their 16-3, 10-0 and 12-0 victories, their .338 club batting average and more runs (55) and hits (91) than any other team in Series history. They hit 10 homers to four by the Pirates, but, when the big money was on the line, it was the Pirates who got the most.

Nobody had a second guess on Danny Murtaugh, the stocky Pirate manager, unless he wondered why Rocky Nelson hadn't seen more action than Dick Stuart at first? Danny led with his big pitcher, Law and got three starts out of him. He followed up twice with Bob Friend, who simply didn't have it but deserved the slot after winning 18 in the pennant race.

Perhaps it would have been better if Murtaugh had started Harvey Haddix instead of Vinegar Bend Mizell in the third game, but it really didn't matter because the Pirates won two out of three in the Yankees' home park. Perhaps he came in with Face a little too early in the final, but who wouldn't go to his bullpen ace when a 4-1 lead was melting away in the sixth ining of the last chance game?

Casey Stengel, who is expected to announce his retirement as Yankee manager, within a few days, was open for the second guess because he made many bold moves. Some worked. Some didn't. In the end, his relief pitchers—Jim Coates and Ralph Terry—let him down but it took a bad hop single on a double play ball that sent Tony Kubek to the hospital to open the door for the Bucs to go all the way.

Whitey Ford, winner of two shutouts, might possibly have been started three times if Casey had opened with him instead of Art Ditmar. The Series, with two open dates, stretched over nine days. A Wednesday - Sunday-Thursday schedule would have given Ford three days rest each time.

Stengel's decision to go with Ditmar a second time in the fifth game, instead of giving rookie Bill Stafford the chance, was criticized, too. Stafford came up with five shutout innings when he finally got in that game after Ditmar was knocked out for the second time.

In the finale, Stengel withheld an announcement on the final game pitcher until shortly before game time. Once again he passed over Stafford and settled on Bob Turley. Turley gave up two runs, but Stafford also was nicked for two in relief.

There were those who wondered where Ryne Duren was in the last game. The relief star of 1958 had not been close to that form during the regular season, but Duren never threw a ball in the bullpen Thursday. Casey's next pitcher, if he ever reached him, was to have been Luis Arroyo. And why Coates, a right-hander, in relief of Bobby Shantz with two left-handed batters next? Coates got the lefties but not the righties.

Whether Stengel is back or not (and there are many who say Ralph Houk, the first base coach, will be the 1961 Yankee manager) the Yanks must have more pitching. Off his showing in late season, Stafford appears to have the makings of a real comer who could be the big man of the staff. Bill Ehort, a disappointment this year after glowing advance notices, may be ready to move up from Richmond and stay next year. It is the same story with Johnny James for relief work. The club undoubtedly will make a deal for a pitcher.

Of the new Yankees who were with the club in the final weeks, Deron Johnson may be ready to stay. A third baseman-outfielder, Johnson was used at third last season at Richmond. If he makes it, the new infield alignment may find Johnson on third and Clete Boyer at short with Tony Kubek moving to left field. Don Lock, a long ball hitter who was with Binghamton, N. Y., of the Eastern League is another outfielder of the future.

Johnny Blanchard came to the front as a catcher during the Series after Elston Howard was hurt. Jesse Gonder, a left-handed hitter with power, also will get a good look.

Pittsburgh, too, will be on the prowl for pitching. The deal that bolstered the staff with the addition of Mizell from St. Louis was the saver. The performance of Fred Green and Clem Labine in the Series emphasized the gap between Face and the rest of the bullpen. The Bucs expect great things of Joe Gibbon and Tom Cheney for the future.

The Pirates appear set in most of the regular positions but need bench strength and some long ball wallop.

NFL ROUNDUP

Browns Promise Cowboys Trouble

By JIM KENSIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

The old Dallas Texans of the National Football League had one thing going for them in their gosh-awful 1-11 and only season of 1952. They didn't have to play the Cleveland Browns.

Not so the Dallas Cowboys of 1960, the NFL's newest team who must make the full swing of both conferences as the 13th club in a league based on home-and-home conference rivalry.

The Cowboys (0-3) are home on the range Sunday, but it is the Browns, 2-0 and rested after a weekend off, who are expected to do the firing on a Sunday schedule as lopsided as you'll find in the NFL.

The Cowboys, the Washington Redskins (1-1) and the Los Angeles Rams (0-3) have won one game among them, and that because Washington beat Dallas. So what happens — the weak ones are matched against the Browns, the Eastern Conference champion Giants (3-0) and the feared league champs, the Baltimore Colts (2-1).

It's no wonder the Browns are 13-point favorites at Dallas, the Giants the same at home over the Skins, and the Colts 14 over the Rams at Baltimore.

The four-way tie for first in the west—involving the Colts, Green Bay Packers, Chicago Bears and San Francisco 49ers—is certain to loosen up with the 49ers at the Bears.

Chicago is a touchdown favorite, the same margin granted the Eagles (2-1) over the Detroit Lions (0-2) at Philadelphia and the Pittsburgh Steelers (1-2) over the Cardinals (1-2) at St. Louis.

The Packers, who stunned the Colts 35-21 last week, are idle.

In the American League, Dallas is at Houston, Boston at Oakland, New York at Buffalo and Los Angeles at Denver.

The Browns and Giants have dominated their conference since Cleveland came into the league in 1950. Cleveland has seven titles in that span. Twice there have been playoffs. The Giants have won their three titles during the past four seasons. Both teams would like nothing better to come up to their first 1960 meeting on Nov. 6 with 5-0 records.

Cleveland has run out of steam the past two seasons while the Giants came on with strong finishes. In '58, the Browns got away to a big lead. Last season they started slow, then picked up during the middle of the season, then lost three straight, including a 48-7 beating by the Giants, and a chance at a title shot.

Each time the Browns have slipped when their great ground gainer Jimmy Brown has been slowed, apparently as much by overwork as by opposing linemen. But this year, Brown has been complemented more than ever by speedy Bobby Mitchell and a passing attack that has provided Milt Plum with the improved receivers.

The most the Cowboys have to offer is quarterback Eddie LeBaron, who never was enough to beat the Browns when he was with the Redskins.

And without LeBaron, the Redskins are weaker than last year when the Giants first romped 45-14 and then breezed to a 24-10 victory. While the Skins must go with Ralph Guglielmi, who has yet to win recognition as a solid NFL signal-caller, the Giants are loaded with George Shaw, who threw for five TDs in the Giant's first two victories, then another last week against the Steelers before veteran Charley Conerly came off the bench to pass for the deciding TD in a 19-17 victory.

The Colts meet a Ram team that has lost 11 straight regular season games. Against Johnny Unitas, the unquestioned master of the quarterbacks, a tough defensive line and the game's best defensive secondary, the Rams shape up woefully weak. Passer Billy Wade is eighth in the league and they don't have a ball carrier or pass receiver in the top ten.

The Bears, beaten 42-7 by the Colts two weeks ago, boast a victory over the Packers plus a top runner in Rick Casares. The 49ers' victories have been over the Lions and Rams, the west's weak sisters. The 49ers' running attack that made the club a title threat in '59 has yet to appear.

The Lions have yet to score through the air and the Eagles, with Chuck Weber topping the pass interceptors with four, figure to possibly keep it that way. The Eagles' Norm Van Brocklin has thrown for 6 TDs.

Medics Back, New Girls At Local Arena

Ray Andrews and Jim LaRock try their luck against those hooded bone-benders, the Masked Medics, Monday night at B&B Arena with new determination and a new referee.

District athletic commissioner Dave Silverstein informed promoter R. L. Fox last week he wasn't pleased with the work of referee Frank Romano last Monday and will appoint a different official for this week's card.

The Medics whipped the Andrews-LaRock duo handily last week, breaking a few rules and trying to break a few bones.

This tag team event will have an hour time limit with two falls to win.

Girls will again appear on the card with Cathy Starr and Jessica Rogers clashing in the semi-final. Both ladies are excellent wrestlers and colorful performers.

Andrews will meet one of the Medics in a 15-minute, one fall opener.

LaRock, who has been offering $500 to anybody who could stay 15 minutes in the ring with him, has another challenger. Bill Barney, former Louisiana state champion, is willing to meet the former Olympic wrestler but Jim says Barney, since he is a professional, will have to put up $500 also.

Promoter Fox said negotiations on the match are still going on.

Michigan Wins By 14-7 Over Northwestern

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Fumble-stricken Michigan defeated Northwestern Saturday 14-7 helped by a desperation pass took a crazy bounce off the arms off two defenders into the hands of end Bob Johnson.

That fourth quarter play gained 48 yards for the Wolverines and gave them a first down at Northwestern's 1-foot line. Two plays later, fullback Bill Tunnicliff barreled into the end zone for the touchdown that kept Michigan's fant Big Ten title hopes glimmering.

Michigan, although it outplayed the underdog Wildcats most of the way, frittered away one opportunity after another with fumbles and interceptions. Michigan trailed 7-6 before Tunnicliff's winning touchdown.

Quarterback Dave Glinka was on the throwing end of the wild completion. Johnson was surrounded by three Northwestern defenders at the 16-yard line. The ball took a high bounce off the arms of Larry Wood and Larry Benz, and Johnson plucked it out of the air and was tripped up just short of the goal.

There were 9½ minutes to play and Northwestern had another opportunity for a tie or possible victory. The Wildcats recovered a Michigan fumble at the Wolverine 31, but Dick Thornton's desperation passing game was thwarted by onrushing Michigan linemen.

A Glinka-to-Johnson pass produced Michigan's other score. It was a fourth down pass in the second period and covered 35 yards. Johnson slipped behind halfback Ray Purdin and caught the ball at Northwestern's 3.

It was Glinka's first completed pass after eight attempts.

Northwestern seized the lead early in the fourth period after recovering a Michigan fumble at the Wolverine 27. Al Kimbrough scored on a 19-yard run, and Mike Stock's perfect placement looked like the margin of victory until the frantic completion that led to Michigan's winning score.

Northwestern	0	0	0	7	—7
Michigan	0	6	0	8	—14

Mich—Johnson 35 pass from Glinka (kick failed)
Nwn—A. Kimbrough 19 run (Stock kick)
Mich—Tunnicliff 1 run (McRae pass from Glinka)

Terps Upset Clemson For 19-17 Victory

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Quarterback Dale Betty ignited a second half rally by Maryland and passed the underdog Terps to a stunning 19-17 upset over eight-ranked Clemson Saturday.

The senior from Butler, Pa., connected on eight consecutive passes in the final two periods as the Terps upended the defending Atlantic Coast Conference champions for the second straight year. He threw two touchdown passes and set up the other score with another aerial.

Clemson winner of ACC titles in three of the last four years, had run up a six-game winning streak since losing to Maryland last year 28-25.

Maryland, which had lost three straight since winning the 1960 opener, was held to 27 yards gained in the first half—all in the air—as Clemson throttled its multiple offense.

But with his father among the 30 giving vocal and moral support behind the Maryland bench on "Dad's Day," Betty took charge early in the third period after fullback Rex Collins recovered a Clemson fumble on the Tigers' 36.

Betty tossed a 3-yard pass to end Gary Collins to put the ball on the Clemson 1, from where Collins powered in to cut Clemson's early lead to 10-6.

Boston Terriers Battle Colonials To Scoreless Tie

BOSTON (AP)—Boston University and George Washington fought to a scoreless tie Saturday as a two-yard line stand by the Colonials blunted the Terriers' best drive.

BU's Dick Desmarais took a pass from Paul Squarcia with seconds left and raced to the George Washington 14 for a 65-yard play. But two penalties set the Terriers back, and a field goal attempt by Dave Viti on the last play of the game fell far short.

A George Washington fumble set up BU's drive to the two-yard line late in the third period. John Caracciolo took a punt by Tom Daubney on the Colonials' 30, but fumbled it on the 43 and Pajl Johnson picked it up for the Terriers.

Carroll Traps Washington For Sixth Triumph

The Carroll High Bulldogs picked up steam in their bid for state championship honors by rolling over Washington High of Shreveport, 42-12, Friday night.

Right end Julian Gray and fullback Anderson Cheffin led the Bulldog scoring parade with two touchdowns apiece.

Other Carroll TD's were added by right end L. Lloyd and left half Minister Williams.

This was Carroll's fifth win of the season.

Holy Cross Wins

HANOVER, N.H. AP) — Bill Joern kicked a 30-yard field goal with 20 seconds left Saturday to provide Holy Cross with its first victory of the season, a 9-8 triumph over previously unbeaten Dartmouth.

NEED A LANDIS

Soccer In Shade Of Fix Scandals

LONDON (AP) — Soccer in Britain now finds itself in much the same shady position as did baseball in the United States 40 years ago.

Like the Black Sox scandal of 1920, which threatened to kill baseball when it was revealed some players on the Chicago White Sox were reached by gamblers to rig the 1919 World Series against Cincinnati, reports of corruption, bribery and blackmail now threaten Britain's national sport.

Baseball survived, thanks to Federal Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis and a youngster named Babe Ruth. Landis took over as commissioner and cleaned up the sport with an iron hand. The Babe re-won the fans with a golden bat.

Can soccer find such saviours?

Players, some identified, some not, have confessed to accepting bribes to fix matches in the English Soccer League.

One star, Roy Paul, admitted throwing two matches, one for a $1,400 bribe. The former Manchester City captain and Welsh ace made his confession in a newspaper article.

Reports of two other bribe offers, by gambling rings anxious to bring off a betting coup, followed.

Betting — a legal venture — on British soccer matches adds up to 196 million dollars a year. And the type of matches most vulnerable to a fix are those on which bookies offer odds on single or double results. Such odds are set before the matches.

The breakthrough of bribery, however, does not affect the more widely popular weekly soccer pool, in which a 2-cent bet can return as much as $840,000. In the pool, a bettor must correctly pick eight tie matches.

That makes a fix out of the question. Too many people would have to be in on it to rig eight draws.

Rigged matches under any conditions were something out of the question until Paul's confession. Now soccer fans, and their number runs into the millions, are wondering.

The sport that has become a national tradition, now is in danger of losing support and even giving way to a purely amateur game—rugby union.

All over Britain there are reports of schools switching from soccer to rugby, a game which most closely parallels American football, as the sport for the country's youngsters.

In an attempt to offset the threat, top legislators of British soccer have called an urgent conference "to decide what action is to be taken."

Public opinion is for a quick and complete purge, naming and punishing those guilty of offering and accepting bribes.

Three top team managers—Stan Cullis of the Wolverhampton Wanderers, Matt Busby of Manchester United, and Bill Nicholson of Tottenham Hotspur—believe the answer lies in "more pay for the players who bring the money into the game."

While the Hotspurs, for instance, have counted $224,000 in gate receipts for a dozen games this season, no player on the club that leads Division 1 receives more than $67.20 a week in salary.

League rules set the maximum weekly pay at $56. A player can collect an $11.20 bonus in each game for being on the winning team.

Some fans and officials argue it isn't surprising, then, that some players accept bribes.

All agree that something has to be done about the threat, and quickly.

Iowa In Last Minute Win Over Badgers

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP)—Sophomore halfback Sammie Harris made a diving catch in the end zone of Wilburn Hollis' 39-yard pass with 52 seconds left and gave Iowa a 28-21 Big Ten football victory over Wisconsin Saturday.

The spectacular finish dulled a Wisconsin comeback in which the Badgers had scored two fourth quarter touchdowns to tie the favored Hawkeyes 21-21.

Hollis' pass was tipped by Wisconsin defender Billy Hess but Harris lunged for the deflected ball and tucked it in for the victory.

The loss was the first for Wisconsin this season. By winning, Iota, ranked second in The Associated Press football poll, reigns with Minnesota as the only unbeaten Big Ten teams.

Hollis was the standout, scoring two second half touchdowns on flashy runs as the rugged Wisconsin line stopped Iowa's speedy halfbacks, although left half Larry Ferguson sprinted 18 yards in the second period for Iowa's first touchdown.

Hollis, a junior quarterback, shot the Hawks into a 14-7 lead in the third period by crashing over Wisconsin defenders on a 31-yard touchdown run, and seemingly put Iowa out of reach with a nine-yard scoring sprint early in the fourth period.

But the Badgers drove 75 yards to narrow the game to 21-13. Then Gene Mosley fumbled the following kickoff on the Hawks' 19, and Wisconsin's Tom Wiesner recovered.

It took the Badgers only six plays to score with Merritt Norvell diving over from the 2. Ron Miller pitched a strike to end Pat Richter in the end zone after the touchdown for two extra points which tied it 21-21 with five minutes left and set up the thrilling finish.

Baker Ramrods Oregon State's Rule Of Idaho

MOSCOW, Idaho (AP)—Led by do-everything sophomore Terry Baker, who passed and ran for 284 yards, Oregon State sped by Idaho 28-8 Saturday to ruin a football homecoming for the Vandals.

Baker, a 6-foot-3 tailback, passed for one touchdown ran for another and added four extra points on a run and pass.

Statistics gave Baker 171 yards passing and 113 rushing, for a single game total offense record for Oregon State.

Idaho registered only in the third quarter on a 62-yard drive with Mike Sheeran doing most of the ball carring. He plunged the final three yards.

Citadel Crushes Homecoming For Richmond, 24-12

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Halfback John Clancy shattered Richmond's homecoming hopes with a 66-yard touchdown run Saturday after teammate Bill Gilgo sealed a 24-12 victory for The Citadel with a 32-yard field goal.

Both contributions to the Citadel cause came early in the fourth quarter after Richmond had cut into the Bulldogs' 14-0 halftime lead with a third-quarter, 60-yard touchdown drive in its only serious offensive surge of the afternoon.

For its 14-0 halftime lead, The Citadel called on quarterback Jerry Nettles and speedy halfbacks Tommy Edwards and Early Eastburn to take advantage of a run of Spider mistakes.

Cornhuskers Upset Cadets In 14-9 Duel

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—Nebraska's Pat Fischer turned the tide with a 57-yard pass to Bennie Dillard for a third quarter touchdown that gave Nebraska a 14-9 football victory over favored Army Saturday.

It had been an up-hill battle for Nebraska against the aerial-minded Cadets until the dramatic turning point engineered by Fischer.

Army grabbed a 3-0 lead in the first quarter on Tom Blanda's 27-yard field goal, and led 9-7 going into the third period.

Receiving the ball on its own 32 Nebraska advanced to the 43. Then Fischer, senior quarterback, got off the long toss. It fell squarely into Dillard's arms and the speedy scatback crossed the goal line standing up.

It was Nebraska's third win in the five starts, Army's second loss against three wins. In the two past games between the two teams, Nebraska had been the loser, 13-3 and 42-0.

Army monopolized play in the first half, running 47 plays to Nebraska's 15, but it took a Nebraska fumble to keep the Cadets ahead.

Tumbler Notches First Win Under Ferrari Banner

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—Little Tumbler, making her first start for new owner Bruno Ferrari, led all the way Saturday and won the $34,150 Alcibiades Stakes at Keeneland.

The Royal Note-Fairy Dancer filly, a prohibitive betting favorite with the 12,877 fans, was never threatened and finished two lengths in front of Times Two.

Fourth Estate Stables' Times Two and C. V. Whitney's Bright Silver engaged in the most exciting duel of the race. Times Two thrust ahead in the final strides to take second in a photo.

Ridden by Ray Broussard, Little Tumbler ran the 7 furlongs and 184 feet in 1:26 3-5.

The winner paid $2.60 and $2.20 and Times Two returned $3.20 with show betting barred.

Aggies Battle Horned Frogs To 14-14 Tie

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP)—Texas A&M's valiant Cadets blunted a Texas Christian passing attack and halted the Frogs on the ground, then fought from behind for a 14-14 tie Saturday over the Southwest Conference defending co-champions.

The Aggies, overwhelming underdogs, outgained TCU consistently on the ground, intercepted key passes and controlled the ball more often while matching the Frogs point for point on the scoreboard.

The tie left A&M unbeaten in conference play even though the Aggies haven't won a game. Their only other title try, against Texas Tech, also wound up 14-14. TCU has lost one conference game.

TCU scored all its points in the first half, tallying on a nine-yard smash by third-string fullback R. E. Dodson and a one-yard dive by second string quarterback Sonny Gibbs.

A&M, which held a brief lead after sophomore fullback Sam Byer rolled over a stack of goal-blocking linemen in the first period, knotted it in the third when junior fullback Babe Craig dove inside right end from the 3.

SOME SECOND GUESSING

Pirates Like Will 'O Wisp Outboxing Slugger Yanks

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP) — "It was like Willie Pep knocking out Rocky Marciano."

That was how one observer summed up the 1960 World Series in which the wil 'o the wisp boxer scraped himself off the floor after three nine-count knockdowns and flattened the slugger with a lead pipe.

Pittsburgh, of course, was the boxer type—the club that slashed to right field, choked off New York rallies with tumbling catches and then waved for little ElRoy Face when danger threatened.

Three times the combination of Bill Virdon's acrobatic fielding and the pitching trio of Vern Law, Harvey Haddix and Face did the job. In the last game, when Law and Face couldn't do it, the "Beat 'em Bucs" stole the Yanks' home run weapon and beat them at their own game with clouts by Rocky Nelson, Hal Smith and Bill Mazeroski.

The Yankees were the knockout punchers with their 16-3, 10-0 and 12-0 victories, their .338 club batting average and more runs (55) and hits (91) than any other team in Series history. They hit 10 homers to four by the Pirates, but, when the big money was on the line, it was the Pirates who got the most.

Nobody had a second guess on Danny Murtaugh, the stocky Pirate manager, unless he wondered why Rocky Nelson hadn't seen more action than Dick Stuart at first? Danny led with his big pitcher, Law and got three starts out of him. He followed up twice with Bob Friend, who simply didn't have it but deserved the slot after winning 18 in the pennant race.

Perhaps it would have been better if Murtaugh had started Harvey Haddix instead of Vinegar Bend Mizell in the third game, but it really didn't matter because the Pirates won two out of three in the Yankees' home park. Perhaps he came in with Face a little too early in the final, but who wouldn't go to his bullpen ace when a 4-1 lead was melting away in the sixth ining of the last chance game?

Casey Stengel, who is expected to announce his retirement as Yankee manager, within a few days, was open for the second guess because he made many bold moves. Some worked. Some didn't. In the end, his relief pitchers—Jim Coates and Ralph Terry—let him down but it took a bad hop single on a double play ball that sent Tony Kubek to the hospital to open the door for the Bucs to go all the way.

Whitey Ford, winner of two shutouts, might possibly have been started three times if Casey had opened with him instead of Art Ditmar. The Series, with two open dates, stretched over nine days. A Wednesday - Sunday-Thursday schedule would have given Ford three days rest each time.

Stengel's decision to go with Ditmar a second time in the fifth game, instead of giving rookie Bill Stafford the chance, was criticized, too. Stafford came up with five shutout innings when he finally got in that game after Ditmar was knocked out for the second time.

In the finale, Stengel withheld an announcement on the final game pitcher until shortly before game time. Once again he passed over Stafford and settled on Bob Turley. Turley gave up two runs, but Stafford also was nicked for two in relief.

There were those who wondered where Ryne Duren was in the last game. The relief star of 1958 had not been close to that form during the regular season, but Duren never threw a ball in the bullpen Thursday. Casey's next pitcher, if he ever reached him, was to have been Luis Arroyo. And why Coates, a right-hander, in relief of Bobby Shantz with two left-handed batters next? Coates got the lefties but not the righties.

Whether Stengel is back or not (and there are many who say Ralph Houk, the first base coach, will be the 1961 Yankee manager) the Yanks must have more pitching. Off his showing in late season, Stafford appears to have the makings of a real comer who could be the big man of the staff. Bill Ehort, a disappointment this year after glowing advance notices, may be ready to move up from Richmond and stay next year. It is the same story with Johnny James for relief work. The club undoubtedly will make a deal for a pitcher.

Of the new Yankees who were with the club in the final weeks, Deron Johnson may be ready to stay. A third baseman-outfielder, Johnson was used at third last season at Richmond. If he makes it, the new infield alignment may find Johnson on third and Clete Boyer at short with Tony Kubek moving to left field. Don Lock, a long ball hitter who was with Binghamton, N. Y., of the Eastern League is another outfielder of the future.

Johnny Blanchard came to the front as a catcher during the Series after Elston Howard was hurt. Jesse Gonder, a left-handed hitter with power, also will get a good look.

Pittsburgh, too, will be on the prowl for pitching. The deal that bolstered the staff with the addition of Mizell from St. Louis was the saver. The performance of Fred Green and Clem Labine in the Series emphasized the gap between Face and the rest of the bullpen. The Bucs expect great things of Joe Gibbon and Tom Cheney for the future.

The Pirates appear set in most of the regular positions but need bench strength and some long ball wallop.

NFL ROUNDUP

Browns Promise Cowboys Trouble

By JIM KENSIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

The old Dallas Texans of the National Football League had one thing going for them in their gosh-awful 1-11 and only season of 1952. They didn't have to play the Cleveland Browns.

Not so the Dallas Cowboys of 1960, the NFL's newest team who must make the full swing of both conferences as the 13th club in a league based on home-and-home conference rivalry.

The Cowboys (0-3) are home on the range Sunday, but it is the Browns, 2-0 and rested after a weekend off, who are expected to do the firing on a Sunday schedule as lopsided as you'll find in the NFL.

The Cowboys, the Washington Redskins (1-1) and the Los Angeles Rams (0-3) have won one game among them, and that because Washington beat Dallas. So what happens — the weak ones are matched against the Browns, the Eastern Conference champion Giants (3-0) and the feared league champs, the Baltimore Colts (2-1).

It's no wonder the Browns are 13-point favorites at Dallas, the Giants the same at home over the Skins, and the Colts 14 over the Rams at Baltimore.

The four-way tie for first in the west—involving the Colts, Green Bay Packers, Chicago Bears and San Francisco 49ers—is certain to loosen up with the 49ers at the Bears.

Chicago is a touchdown favorite, the same margin granted the Eagles (2-1) over the Detroit Lions (0-2) at Philadelphia and the Pittsburgh Steelers (1-2) over the Cardinals (1-2) at St. Louis.

The Packers, who stunned the Colts 35-21 last week, are idle.

In the American League, Dallas is at Houston, Boston at Oakland, New York at Buffalo and Los Angeles at Denver.

The Browns and Giants have dominated their conference since Cleveland came into the league in 1950. Cleveland has seven titles in that span. Twice there have been playoffs. The Giants have won their three titles during the past four seasons. Both teams would like nothing better to come up to their first 1960 meeting on Nov. 6 with 5-0 records.

Cleveland has run out of steam the past two seasons while the Giants came on with strong finishes. In '58, the Browns got away to a big lead. Last season they started slow, then picked up during the middle of the season, then lost three straight, including a 48-7 beating by the Giants, and a chance at a title shot.

Each time the Browns have slipped when their great ground gainer Jimmy Brown has been slowed, apparently as much by overwork as by opposing linemen. But this year, Brown has been complemented more than ever by speedy Bobby Mitchell and a passing attack that has provided Milt Plum with the improved receivers.

The most the Cowboys have to offer is quarterback Eddie LeBaron, who never was enough to beat the Browns when he was with the Redskins.

And without LeBaron, the Redskins are weaker than last year when the Giants first romped 45-14 and then breezed to a 24-10 victory. While the Skins must go with Ralph Gugliemi, who has yet to win recognition as a solid NFL signal-caller, the Giants are loaded with George Shaw, who threw for five TDs in the Giant's first two victories, then another last week against the Steelers before veteran Charley Conerly came off the bench to pass for the deciding TD in a 19-17 victory.

The Colts meet a Ram team that has lost 11 straight regular season games. Against Johnny Unitas, the unquestioned master of the quarterbacks, a tough defensive line and the game's best defensive secondary, the Rams shape up woefully weak. Passer Billy Wade is eighth in the league and they don't have a ball carrier or pass receiver in the top ten.

The Bears, beaten 42-7 by the Colts two weeks ago, boast a victory over the Packers plus a top runner in Rick Casares. The 49ers' victories have been over the Lions and Rams, the west's weak sisters. The 49ers' running attack that made the club a title threat in '59 has yet to appear.

The Lions have yet to score through the air and the Eagles, with Chuck Weber topping the pass interceptors with four, figure to possibly keep it that way. The Eagles' Norm Van Brocklin has thrown for 6 TDs.

Medics Back, New Girls At Local Arena

Ray Andrews and Jim LaRock try their luck against those hooded bone-benders, the Masked Medics, Monday night at B&B Arena with new determination and a new referee.

District athletic commissioner Dave Silverstein informed promoter R. L. Fox last week he wasn't pleased with the work of referee Frank Romano last Monday and will appoint a different official for this week's card.

The Medics whipped the Andrews-LaRock duo handily last week, breaking a few rules and trying to break a few bones.

This tag team event will have an hour time limit with two falls to win.

Girls will again appear on the card with Cathy Starr and Jessica Rogers clashing in the semi-final. Both ladies are excellent wrestlers and colorful performers.

Andrews will meet one of the Medics in a 15-minute, one fall opener.

LaRock, who has been offering $500 to anybody who could stay 15 minutes in the ring with him, has another challenger. Bill Barney, former Louisiana state champion, is willing to meet the former Olympic wrestler but Jim says Barney, since he is a professional, will have to put up $500 also.

Promoter Fox said negotiations on the match are still going on.

Michigan Wins By 14-7 Over Northwestern

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Fumble-stricken Michigan defeated Northwestern Saturday 14-7 helped by a desperation pass took a crazy bounce off the arms off two defenders into the hands of end Bob Johnson.

That fourth quarter play gained 48 yards for the Wolverines and gave them a first down at Northwestern's 1-foot line. Two plays later, fullback Bill Tunnicliff barreled into the end zone for the touchdown that kept Michigan's fant Big Ten title hopes glimmering.

Michigan, although it outplayed the underdog Wildcats most of the way, frittered away one opportunity after another with fumbles and interceptions. Michigan trailed 7-6 before Tunnicliff's winning touchdown.

Quarterback Dave Glinka was on the throwing end of the wild completion. Johnson was surrounded by three Northwestern defenders at the 16-yard line. The ball took a high bounce off the arms of Larry Wood and Larry Benz, and Johnson plucked it out of the air and was tripped up just short of the goal.

There were 9½ minutes to play and Northwestern had another opportunity for a tie or possible victory. The Wildcats recovered a Michigan fumble at the Wolverine 31, but Dick Thornton's desperation passing game was thwarted by onrushing Michigan linemen.

A Glinka-to-Johnson pass produced Michigan's other score. It was a fourth down pass in the second period and covered 35 yards. Johnson slipped behind halfback Ray Purdin and caught the ball at Northwestern's 3.

It was Glinka's first completed pass after eight attempts.

Northwestern seized the lead early in the fourth period after recovering a Michigan fumble at the Wolverine 27. Al Kimbrough scored on a 19-yard run, and Mike Stock's perfect placement looked like the margin of victory until the frantic completion that led to Michigan's winning score.

Northwestern	0	0	0	7	7
Michigan	0	6	0	8	14

Mich—Johnson 35 pass from Glinka (kick failed)
Nwn—A. Kimbrough 19 run (Stock kick)
Mich—Tunnicliff 1 run (McRae pass from Glinka)

Terps Upset Clemson For 19-17 Victory

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Quarterback Dale Betty ignited a second half rally by Maryland and passed the underdog Terps to a stunning 19-17 upset over eight-ranked Clemson Saturday.

The senior from Butler, Pa., connected on eight consecutive passes in the final two periods as the Terps upended the defending Atlantic Coast Conference champions for the second straight year. He threw two touchdown passes and set up the other score with another aerial.

Clemson winner of ACC titles in three of the last four years, had run up a six-game winning streak since losing to Maryland last year 28-25.

Maryland, which had lost three straight since winning the 1960 opener, was held to 27 yards gained in the first half—all in the air—as Clemson throttled its multiple offense.

But with his father among the 30 giving vocal and moral support behind the Maryland bench on "Dad's Day," Betty took charge early in the third period after fullback Rex Collins recovered a Clemson fumble on the Tigers' 38.

Betty tossed a 3-yard pass to end Gary Collins to put the ball on the Clemson 1, from where Collins powered in to cut Clemson's early lead to 10-6.

Boston Terriers Battle Colonials To Scoreless Tie

BOSTON (AP)—Boston University and George Washington fought to a scoreless tie Saturday as a two-yard line stand by the Colonials blunted the Terriers' best drive.

BU's Dick Desmarais took a pass from Paul Squarcia with seconds left and raced to the George Washington 14 for a 65-yard play. But two penalties set the Terriers back, and a field goal attempt by Dave Viti on the last play of the game fell far short.

A George Washington fumble set up BU's drive to the two-yard line late in the third period. John Caracciolo took a punt by Tom Daubney on the Colonials' 30, but fumbled it on the 43 and Pajl Johnson picked it up for the Terriers.

Carroll Traps Washington For Sixth Triumph

The Carroll High Bulldogs picked up steam in their bid for state championship honors by rolling over Washington High of Shreveport, 42-12, Friday night.

Right end Julian Gray and fullback Anderson Cheffin led the Bulldog scoring parade with two touchdowns apiece.

Other Carroll TD's were added by right end L. Lloyd and left half Minister Williams.

This was Carroll's fifth win of the season.

Holy Cross Wins

HANOVER, N.H. AP) — Bill Joern kicked a 30-yard field goal with 20 seconds left Saturday to provide Holy Cross with its first victory of the season, a 9-8 triumph over previously unbeaten Dartmouth.

NEED A LANDIS

Soccer In Shade Of Fix Scandals

LONDON (AP) — Soccer in Britain now finds itself in much the same shady position as did baseball in the United States 40 years ago.

Like the Black Sox scandal of 1920, which threatened to kill baseball when it was revealed some players on the Chicago White Sox were reached by gamblers to rig the 1919 World Series against Cincinnati, reports of corruption, bribery and blackmail now threaten Britain's national sport.

Baseball survived, thanks to Federal Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis and a youngster named Babe Ruth. Landis took over as commissioner and cleaned up the sport with an iron hand. The Babe re-won the fans with a golden bat.

Can soccer find such saviours?

Players, some identified, some not, have confessed to accepting bribes to fix matches in the English Soccer League.

One star, Roy Paul, admitted throwing two matches, one for a $1,400 bribe. The former Manchester City captain and Welsh ace made his confession in a newspaper article.

Reports of two other bribe offers, by gambling rings anxious to bring off a betting coup, followed.

Betting — a legal venture — on British soccer matches adds up to 196 million dollars a year. And the type of matches most vulnerable to a fix are those on which bookies offer odds on single or double results. Such odds are set before the matches.

The breakthrough of bribery, however, does not affect the more widely popular weekly soccer pool, in which a 2-cent bet can return as much as $840,000. In the pool, a bettor must correctly pick eight tie matches.

That makes a fix out of the question. Too many people would have to be in on it to rig eight draws.

Rigged matches under any conditions were something out of the question until Paul's confession. Now soccer fans, and their number runs into the millions, are wondering.

The sport that has become a national tradition, now is in danger of losing support and even giving way to a purely amateur game—rugby union.

All over Britain there are reports of schools switching from soccer to rugby, a game which most closely parallels American football, as the sport for the country's youngsters.

In an attempt to offset the threat, top legislators of British soccer have called an urgent conference "to decide what action is to be taken."

Public opinion is for a quick and complete purge, naming and punishing those guilty of offering and accepting bribes.

Three top team managers—Stan Cullis of the Wolverhampton Wanderers, Matt Busby of Manchester United, and Bill Nicholson of Tottenham Hotspur—believe the answer lies in "more pay for the players who bring the money into the game."

While the Hotspurs, for instance, have counted $224,000 in gate receipts for a dozen games this season, no player on the club that leads Division 1 receives more than $67.20 a week in salary.

League rules set the maximum weekly pay at $56. A player can collect an $11.20 bonus in each game for being on the winning team.

Some fans and officials argue it isn't surprising, then, that some players accept bribes.

All agree that something has to be done about the threat, and quickly.

Iowa In Last Minute Win Over Badgers

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP)—Sophomore halfback Sammie Harris made a diving catch in the end zone of Wilburn Hollis' 39-yard pass with 52 seconds left and gave Iowa a 28-21 Big Ten football victory over Wisconsin Saturday.

The spectacular finish dulled a Wisconsin comeback in which the Badgers had scored two fourth quarter touchdowns to tie the favored Hawkeyes 21-21.

Hollis' pass was tipped by Wisconsin defender Billy Hess but Harris lunged for the deflected ball and tucked it in for the victory.

The loss was the first for Wisconsin this season. By winning, Iota, ranked second in The Associated Press football poll, reigns with Minnesota as the only unbeaten Big Ten teams.

Hollis was the standout, scoring two second half touchdowns on flashy runs as the rugged Wisconsin line stopped Iowa's speedy halfbacks, although left half Larry Ferguson sprinted 18 yards in the second period for Iowa's first touchdown.

Hollis, a junior quarterback, shot the Hawks into a 14-7 lead in the third period by crashing over Wisconsin defenders on a 31-yard touchdown run, and seemingly put Iowa out of reach with a nine-yard scoring sprint early in the fourth period.

But the Badgers drove 75 yards to narrow the game to 21-13. Then Gene Mosley fumbled the following kickoff on the Hawks' 19, and Wisconsin's Tom Wiesner recovered.

It took the Badgers only six plays to score with Merritt Norvell diving over from the 2. Ron Miller pitched a strike to end Pat Richter in the end zone after the touchdown for two extra points which tied it 21-21 with five minutes left and set up the thrilling finish.

Baker Ramrods Oregon State's Rule Of Idaho

MOSCOW, Idaho (AP)—Led by do-everything sophomore Terry Baker, who passed and ran for 234 yards, Oregon State sped by Idaho 28-8 Saturday to ruin a football homecoming for the Vandals.

Baker, a 6-foot-3 tailback, passed for one touchdown ran for another and added four extra points on a run and pass.

Statistics gave Baker 171 yards passing and 113 rushing, for a single game total offense record for Oregon State.

Idaho registered only in the third quarter on a 62-yard drive with Mike Sheeran doing most of the ball carring. He plunged the final three yards.

Citadel Crushes Homecoming For Richmond, 24-12

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Halfback John Clancy shattered Richmond's homecoming hopes with a 66-yard touchdown run Saturday after teammate Bill Gilgo sealed a 24-12 victory for The Citadel with a 32-yard field goal.

Both contributions to the Citadel cause came early in the fourth quarter after Richmond had cut into the Bulldogs' 14-0 halftime lead with a third-quarter, 60-yard touchdown drive in its only serious offensive surge of the afternoon.

For its 14-0 halftime lead, The Citadel called on quarterback Jerry Nettles and speedy halfbacks Tommy Edwards and Early Eastburn to take advantage of a run of Spider mistakes.

Cornhuskers Upset Cadets In 14-9 Duel

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—Nebraska's Pat Fischer turned the tide with a 57-yard pass to Bennie Dillard for a third quarter touchdown that gave Nebraska a 14-9 football victory over favored Army Saturday.

It had been an up-hill battle for Nebraska against the aerial-minded Cadets until the dramatic turning point engineered by Fischer.

Army grabbed a 3-0 lead in the first quarter on Tom Blanda's 27-yard field goal, and led 9-7 going into the third period.

Receiving the ball on its own 32 Nebraska advanced to the 43. Then Fischer, senior quarterback, got off the long toss. It fell squarely into Dillard's arms and the speedy scatback crossed the goal line standing up.

It was Nebraska's third win in the five starts, Army's second loss against three wins. In the two past games between the two teams, Nebraska had been the loser, 13-3 and 42-0.

Army monopolized play in the first half, running 47 plays to Nebraska's 15, but it took a Nebraska fumble to keep the Cadets ahead.

Tumbler Notches First Win Under Ferrari Banner

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—Little Tumbler, making her first start for new owner Bruno Ferrari, led all the way Saturday and won the $34,150 Alcibiades Stakes at Keeneland.

The Royal Note-Fairy Dancer filly, a prohibitive betting favorite with the 12,877 fans, was never threatened and finished two lengths in front of Times Two.

Fourth Estate Stables' Times Two and C. V. Whitney's Bright Silver engaged in the most exciting duel of the race. Times Two thrust ahead in the final strides to take second in a photo.

Ridden by Ray Broussard, Little Tumbler ran the 7 furlongs and 184 feet in 1:26 3-5.

The winner paid $2.60 and $2.20 and Times Two returned $3.20 with show betting barred.

Aggies Battle Horned Frogs To 14-14 Tie

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP)—Texas A&M's valiant Cadets blunted a Texas Christian passing attack and halted the Frogs on the ground, then fought from behind for a 14-14 tie Saturday over the Southwest Conference defending co-champions.

The Aggies, overwhelming underdogs, outgained TCU consistently on the ground, intercepted key passes and controlled the ball more often while matching the Frogs point for point on the scoreboard.

The tie left A&M unbeaten in conference play even though the Aggies haven't won a game. Their only other title try, against Texas Tech, also wound up 14-14. TCU has lost one conference game.

TCU scored all its points in the first half, tallying on a nine-yard smash by third-string fullback R. E. Dodson and a one-yard dive by second string quarterback Sonny Gibbs.

A&M, which held a brief lead after sophomore fullback Sam Byer rolled over a stack of goal-blocking linemen in the first period, knotted it in the third when junior fullback Babe Craig dove inside right end from the 3.

Above: Engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Mary Sterling Rolfe to Lt. Kelly Mayo Harp of Bastrop, is announced today by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gilman Rolfe, Oak Ridge, parents of the bride-elect. The prospective bridegroom, stationed with the Air Force in Honolulu, Hawaii, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Edward Harp of Bastrop. The wedding is planned for November 25.

Top right: November 22 is the date scheduled for the wedding of Miss Betsy Ann Bayles to Donny Ray Nolan. Parents of the betrothed couple are Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Bayles and Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Nolan, Sr., all of West Monroe.

Center: Prior to her marriage Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock in Parkview Baptist Church, Mrs. Brodie Jack Whipple was Miss Dorothy Raye Garrett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Ray Garrett of this city. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Elsworth of Mer Rouge.

Brides, brides-to-be and new residents provide the inspiration for numerous parties as does the opening of a new season by the Little Theater of Monroe. A gala social season is promised as local residents plan entertainment for these and other occasions.

At left: Actors in rehearsal are these three members of the Monroe Little Theater, shown in a scene from their first production of the season, "Seven Year Itch." They are left to right, Bob Jackson, Jorge Mack and Sandy Johnson, engaged in rehearsal prior to the opening of the play on Thursday, October 20.

At right: New residents of the city are Mrs. Jack B. Files and children, left to right, Johnny, 5; Karol, 7 and Lisa, 11 months, who with Mr. Files have established a home at 1833 Wellerman Road. The Files family moved here from Reno, Nevada, where Mr. Files was with the Air Force stationed at Stead Air Force base. He is a former resident of Oak Ridge.

Parties this week honored newcomers, visitors, birthday celebrants, brides-elect and new homes. Affairs for brides are usually not in our department, but we couldn't resist telling you about one given Wednesday night for BETTY HEMPHILL and DAVID COMEGYS by the ED HAYWARDS.

Last summer Annilies brought back a BOWLE from Germany, a beautiful large blue-embossed pottery tureen-type bowl with matching cups. The bowle was theme and focal point of Wednesday's party. Fifteen guests gathered around the table, covered with a green cloth and centered with red roses and white candles. Annilies served a traditional German fruit punch, peaches marinated in brandy, with champagne added at the last. With this, no sweets, of course, but corned beef sandwiches and cheeses. An unusual and delightful party.

Guests of the NAT GASTONS last weekend were DR. and MRS. WILLIAM WEICHSELBAUM of Savannah, Georgia, who were here from Friday until Monday. Adrienne entertained at luncheon honoring the visitor Saturday at Bayou DeSiard country club. Ten ladies were seated at the table centered with white carnations.

The JOE MICKEYS were hosts Saturday night at an open house honoring their houseguests, DR. and MRS. ED LONG of New Orleans. Fall flowers were used to advantage throughout the Mickey's lovely home. In the hall was a tall arrangement of white chrysanthemums, while sprays of floribunda roses decorated the living room. Bronze mums were placed in the study. A large white Wassail bowl held yellow zinnias and variegated euonymus on the sideboard in the den.

Dainty goodies offered for nibbling included tiny hot meat balls in a chafing dish, shrimp sandwiches and assorted dips, "prairie fire" and cheeses. A vertical arrangement of purple dahlias centered the table in the formal dining room, while in the family room were yellow daisies and Spider mums.

Reserved seat tickets for the JUNIOR CHARITY LEAGUE FOLLIES will be on sale Wednesday and Thursday of this week. League members will be in the Louis Locke room of the Ouachita Parish Public library between the hours of nine and four. Patrons who have already mailed in their checks as well as any others who desire seats in this section are invited to come by and select their location. For the first time, two performances are scheduled. Wednesday and Thursday nights, November 16 and 17.

Visitors here this weekend are BETTY and JACK CAPLIS of Magenta plantation, near Shreveport, and their children, MARY LENORE, MARK, CHRIS, and BETTY JANE. They are visiting Betty's mother, LENORA KELLER, and brother and family, the PAUL KELLERS, JR.

A green and gold theme was carried out in the decorations for ALLYNE PETTY's luncheon honoring newcomer BETTY MABRAY on Thursday. The table on the porch at Bayou DeSiard country club was covered with a green cloth and centered with Talisman roses in a green crystal container. Tiny gold cards decorated with Autumn flowers marked places for ten guests.

First opening night of the current season is set for Thursday night at the Little Theatre at Selman field. The gay comedy, "Seven Year Itch" will be presented at 8:15 p.m.

Arriving tomorrow for a week's visit is MRS. JOHN OVERTON BANKS of Beaumont, Texas, former Monroyan. She will be the guest of her daughter and family, the BRISCOE TROUSDALES, JR.

A picture-show party honored CHARLES WESTROM on his seventh birthday Saturday. A group of twenty-two little boys went to see "Huckleberry Finn", and thence to the Westrom residence for ice cream and cake.

MICHAEL LARY celebrated his seventh birthday with a skating party Sunday afternoon. Stop the Music winners were RICKY CLAY and JOHN BERNHARDT. Doughnuts and soft drinks were served to about forty children who attended.

A real surprise was the housewarming given last weekend for the DICK TOUCHSTONES. Fifteen couples, including Georgie's sister and brother-in-law, BILLIE and HARRY BARTON of Baton Rouge, planned and gave the party Friday night. . . .The house thus warmed is built on three levels, making good use of an interesting site on Bayou Lane. The lot slopes in a crescent to the water's edge, with an inlet designed for docking boats at one side.

As one faces the house, lowest level is to the right, where the drive curves into the garage and bad-weather-playroom. Also on this floor are the utility and service area, and Dick's study and gun closet.

Main entrance is on the second level, through the porch with its white columns and boards and batten walls. Other construction is of antique brick, with hand-hewn cypress shakes used for the third story. . . .Brick flooring is used in the entrance hall, with its brown "calico print" wallpaper, and continues through the living room, dining room, and terrace beyond. Open weave linen draperies hung on brass rods cover glass windows overlooking terrace and waterfront. A wall of shelves separate living and dining rooms. Backs of the open shelves are papered with a tiny print which is repeated in the dining room wainscoting.

The living-kitchen is papered in a print in shades of brown, green, and blue, used with birch cabinets and a tessaro floor. A round wicker glass-topped table with matching stools, a sofa, a built-in desk which also houses the sewing machine, are some of the features of the family area. Shutters at the windows control light for TV viewing.

A half-flight of stairs leads from the entrance hall to the bedroom wing, above the garage and utility area. Daughter NANCY's room (with a full-length mirror, delight of a three-year-old female child) is white, with white curtains and spread edged in a blue and lavender print of forget me nots and larkspur. BILL and DICKIE have scruboff walls, maple furniture, and curtains printed with early American commercial signs. . . . A provincial print in greens and blues is used in valances and dust ruffles in the master bedroom, and to paper the dressing room-bath. Curtains and bedroom walls are beige, with pine furniture.

Today's poem, entitled "Legacy", is by Maude Parker:

This is my legacy—
Not property real and tangible
Nor stocks and bonds which could be sold—
But these few words, garnered from years
Numbering half a hundred.
I do hereby bequeath, give, pass title unto
This extract of experience
To my beloved daughters,
Share and share alike:
Nothing that lives, stands still.
Grow it must, or shrink;
There is no alternative.
Only inanimate things are static, fixed.
So stretch your mind.
Give it a daily task beyond its present strength:
And store it each day with treasure:
Poetry to say under your breath,
Knowledge newly acquired.
Judge yourself more strictly
Than you judge your neighbors,
Yet weigh no human on a scales
Designed for saints;
Be almost as forgiving to yourself
As you would be to strangers:
It were arrogance to ask perfection
Uniquely from yourself.
Give without stint—
I need not tell you this—
But to each yourself also to accept
What others give. Not heedlessly,
Nor with false pride.
Rather, in recognition
Of another's overflowing heart.
And stretch your soul
Beyond the confines of forgiveness, understanding.
Know this: Inscribe it as a truth:
The irreparable loss is to the betrayer,
Never to the betrayed:
The one who deals the mortal blow
Receives the mortal wound.

Autumn Dresses Present Smart Array Of Off-Beat Colors, Graceful Lines

No matter what your wardrobe plans may be for fall — whether you can afford one dress or a dozen — there are many wonderfully wearable dress styles from which to choose.

Interest most often is focused on the bodice area, where a slow curve of fit and definition through the torso area and bodice lengthens gracefully to one

Bloused effects, string or ribbon - belted ties, sleeves ending just above or just below the elbow, more sleeveless styles, and gently - widened sleeves in funnel shapes are the highlights of detail you'll be seeing on new dresses.

The slightly lowered waistline is often sashed or girdled, and belts are being worn again, but now sit gently and lower on the hipbone level.

Although more and more full skirted daytime dresses are making their reappearance for all, the slim and narrow, shaped at the hem skirt is the favored one.

Crisp pleats, box, knife, side and cluster types, define fall's new full skirts. Circular cuts and bias shapes also delineate the softer fullness of skirts.

Skirt lengths stay slightly below the knee, but early indications seem to point up a slightly lowered hemline before the season is over.

Wools in jersey, chiffon-weight tweeds, sheer mohair, flannel and broadcloths are the fibers shaping most daytime fashions.

Patterned wools in dramatic color combos, both printed and woven are important in this season's opulent mood. Plaids and blocks, checks and tone - on - tone prints are news makers for autumn activities.

Necklines invite gypsy scarves, cowl drapes, fur trims and jewelry accents for dramatic emphasis to the dresses' understated look.

Fresh colors are definitely showing up in split personalities - as in coats, suits and other apparel, there's bright bold color on one side - blended, somewhat "moody" colors on the other.

Deep bright or shock bright colors begin with the many variations of lavenders and purples that range from grape tones to deep "eggplant."

Blacks and browns are everywhere, especially the sooty browns that are particularly chic with black accessories, braid, jet bead or passementerie trims.

Lighter browns are in the spice families and many have greened-brass tinges. Burnishing gives a new look to cognac, topaz and deep true golds.

Real - red themes raspberry, strawberry and ruby shades. And, brilliant shock shades of blue are borrowed from Oriental themes.

Bold pastels that normally herald the arrival of spring, now sound a brilliant fan-fare for fall and after, with robin-egg blue, Paris pink, jonquil yellows, glowing oranges, peridot greens and similar high shades to brighten the autumn scene.

And, the newest neutrals for fall are smart winter whites.

Chapter V, PEO Hears Report On Trip To Seminar

Chapter V of P.E.O. Sisterhood met Monday night, October 10 in the home of Mrs. Frank Eason.

Mrs. Barney Pate, president, conducted the meeting during which the main topic for discussion was the forthcoming state convention to be held in Alexandria next April. Chapter V will be one of the convention hostesses.

Autumn Dresses Present Smart Array Of Off-Beat Colors, Graceful Lines

No matter what your wardrobe plans may be for fall — whether you can afford one dress or a dozen — there are many wonderfully wearable dress styles from which to choose.

Interest most often is focused on the bodice area, where a slow curve of fit and definition through the torso area and bodice lengthens gracefully to one

Bloused effects, string or ribbon - belted ties, sleeves ending just above or just below the elbow, more sleeveless styles, and gently - widened sleeves in funnel shapes are the highlights of detail you'll be seeing on new dresses.

The slightly lowered waistline is often sashed or girdled, and belts are being worn again, but now sit gently and lower on the hipbone level.

Although more and more full skirted daytime dresses are making their reappearance for all, the slim and narrow, shaped at the hem skirt is the favored one.

Crisp pleats, box, knife, side and cluster types, define fall's new full skirts. Circular cuts and bias shapes also delineate the softer fullness of skirts.

Skirt lengths stay slightly below the knee, but early indications seem to point up a slightly lowered hemline before the season is over.

Wools in jersey, chiffon-weight tweeds, sheer mohair, flannel and broadcloths are the fibers shaping most daytime fashions.

Patterned wools in dramatic color combos, both printed and woven are important in this season's opulent mood. Plaids and blocks, checks and tone - on - tone prints are news makers for autumn activities.

Necklines invite gypsy scarves, cowl drapes, fur trims and jewelry accents for dramatic emphasis to the dresses' understated look.

Fresh colors are definitely showing up in split personalities - as in coats, suits and other apparel, there's bright bold color on one side - blended, somewhat "moody" colors on the other.

Deep bright or shock bright colors begin with the many variations of lavenders and purples that range from grape tones to deep "eggplant."

Blacks and browns are everywhere, especially the sooty browns that are particularly chic with black accessories, braid, jet bead or passementerie trims.

Lighter browns are in the spice families and many have greened-brass tinges. Burnishing gives a new look to cognac, topaz and deep true golds.

Real - red themes raspberry, strawberry and ruby shades. And, brilliant shock shades of blue are borrowed from Oriental themes.

Bold pastels that normally herald the arrival of spring, now sound a brilliant fan-fare for fall and after, with robin-egg blue, Paris pink, jonquil yellows, glowing oranges, peridot greens and similar high shades to brighten the autumn scene.

And, the newest neutrals for fall are smart winter whites.

Fabrics Make Fine Showing In Fall Styles

Fabrics have aristocratic ideas for fall. Woolens, silks, the man-made wonder fibers and cottons excell in quality, presenting a distinctive, distinguished appearance.

Elegant woolens impress the eye with dimensional textures and airy weaves, often enriched by mohair loops or slubs. Last season's success with worsted ottoman stimulates the liking for ribbed and corded weaves, with many herringbones and twills added. Rich - looking gabardines make a strong showing especially in smartly tailored dresses.

Knits are everywhere, and in every texture — brushed, homespun, lacy, smooth and languid. Others reflect the look of fall's handsome rustic tweeds.

Dressy woolens include pebbly crepes and sheer, eye - catching textures. Wool prints gain new importance in dresses for the festive hours.

An aura of luxury emanates from fur blends, lustrous velours, wool chinchillas, camels and cashmere. Gleaming silks for all hours and brocades and metallics for evening continue in the luxurious vein.

Man-made fibers, cottons and blends achieve new elegance. The wonder fibers, for example, realistically copy the look of silk and cotton and blends are styled like fine quality wools.

Taking note of the fact that there's a lot of warm weather in the fall, fashion presents many more cottons. Comfort is furthered by the prevalence of wash and wear qualities — achieved with or without synthetics blended in.

Plans Unveiled For Gala Fall Flower Show In City

"Harvest of Colorful Interiors" will be the theme for a two-day fall flower show, sponsored by the Welcome Garden Club of Monroe and West Monroe.

The event, to be staged Friday and Saturday, October 21 and 22, at Hemenway Furniture Co., Inc., 132 North Second, will be open to the public.

Show hours will be from 1 p.m. until 5:30 p.m. on the opening day and from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Saturday.

Mrs. M. W. Montgomery is flower show chairman and other members of the flower show committee are Mrs. Ruby Pettit, president; Dr. Katherine Foster, schedule; Mrs. K. R. Young, staging; Mrs. Luther Branch, awards and clerks; Mrs. J. W. Golson, judges; Mrs. W. T. Simpson and Mrs. A. R. Bates, entries and classification, horticulture; Mrs. H. W. Montgomery and Mrs. D. F. Dennis, entries and classification, arrangements and Mrs. V. S. Garnett, educational.

Entries in the two divisions, artistic arrangements and horticulture will be received from 8 to 10 a.m. October 21 and must be made by reservation. All entries in horticulture must be grown by exhibitor. Plant material used in design division need not be grown by exhibitor.

Blue, red and yellow ribbons will be awarded for first, second and third place respectively. Tri-color award will be given in each division and an award of merit will be made for the outstanding cut specimen in the horticulture division and the outstanding pot plant.

Arrangements suggestive of the season are among the artistic division titles, including "Autumn Palette," "Rhythm in Color," "Mass Color of Yesteryear," "Color Magic," "Migrating Birds," "Harvest Tips the Scales," "Bless This House," "Christmas Is Coming," "Frosty Morning," and "Fall Is Fun."

Corsages are appropriately entitled "Football Frolic," and "Christmas Cheer," with the junior division entitled "The Sugarplum Tree," and "Cinderella's Dream."

The horticulture division will include classes for chrysanthemums, roses, camellias, shrubs, pot plants and miscellaneous flowers.

Medical Group Elects Officers At Dinner Meet

Members of the Ouachita Parish Association of Medical Assistants held their monthly dinner meeting Monday night, October 10 in the Riviera Room of the Penn Hotel. Mrs. W. F. Latham, president, had charge.

The Halloween motif was carried out in table decorations, with orange pyracantha berries in a black iron container providing the center arrangement of the speaker's table. Miniature Halloween hats were used as place cards.

A business session followed dinner, during which time officers for 1960-61 were elected and plans discussed for a Christmas party. New officers will be installed at the November meeting.

Members present were Mrs. J. H. Baker, Mrs. Adron Eady, Miss Marie Coghlan, Miss Jo Ann Keech, Mrs. Beverly Kimball, Miss Neiwyn Nolan, Mrs. A. R. Scarpulla, Mrs. Betty Shaddix, Mrs. James Simrall, Mrs. E. L. St. John, Mrs. James R. Williams, Mrs. Claudia Pittman, Mrs. Louis Pringle, Mrs. L. A. Roark, Mrs. Mary Louise Williams, Mrs. W. H. Grimsley, Mrs. Joe L. Brown and Mrs. Latham.

Spark Appetites With Tasty Dish

Nothing dull about a menu like this: corned beef hash bedeviled with seasonings and decorated with poached eggs, cucumber pickles, sliced tomatoes, fresh apple sauce and hot gingerbread.

For the hash, preheat oven to 400 degrees. Blend a can of corned beef hash with 1 can chili, 1 cup cubed American cheese, ½ cup chopped scallions and ½ cup catsup. Spread into a well greased skillet and bake in a hot oven for 30 minutes. Turn the crusty side up and perch the poached eggs on top.

Culottes Are Among New Fall Themes

Every season, sportswear becomes more diverse, and occupies a more and more important place in the feminine wardrobe. This fall is no exception.

Established favorites-separates, blouses, sweaters, skirts, car coats, pants, knits-cover the whole range of fashion in style and colors. New entrants appear- culottes and knickers, for example.

The long-line overblouse makes its influence felt. There are a variety of lengths and the waist-length tunic gains prominence. Supple is the rule with tie belts for many models.

The overblouses top skirts that show more ease and fullness. Pleats, gathers, bias cuts create a pretty feminine effect.

Impact of the overblouse is seen in knitted dresses. There are many two - piece knits which make effective use of the long overblouse or tunic.

Sweaters, too, reflect the overblouse influence with long lines and tie belts. However, the sweater story doesn't stop there. Longer sweaters are news - and so are shorter, cropped sweaters. Bulky, shaggy sweaters; smoothly knitted sweaters with dressmaker details; sweaters with jacquard paisley; plaid and other patterns; almost - classic sweaters and evening - elegent sweaters share the limelight.

Car coats and jackets take part in the fashion fervor for fun, with trims, linings, hoods of fur or fur-look pile fabrics. Furry pile composes many short coats and jackets.

Among the sportsy coverings that are fun as well as fashion to wear are cape jackets and ponchos, in warm fabrics to slip over the head.

While many separates still match or coordinate their colors, trims and prints, more attention is going to separates that employ contrasting colors and fabrics.

In the midst of the movement to more fluidity in styling, pants, stay slim. Their chief competition this fall comes from culottes - divided skirts that combine the ease of pants with skirt look.

Baking A Cake?

When you turn a cake out on a wire rack, use another rack to turn it right side up.

High, Wide, Handsome Describes Fall Millinery

High and wide hats handsomely complement the easy lines of fall fashions. Cloche shapes stress height, while touques and pillboxes put the accent on width.

All are designed to fit the head at about ear level, leaving plenty of hair - do protecting space between head and hat lines.

Cloche hats come in a diversity of styles, from simple bubble and stovepipe shapes to squared, tiered and side - draped models. Some have softly manipulated crowns. Toques are rounded, on some cases curving into a dome shape.

Brims, narrow to wider, curve upward to reveal and flatter the face. Though cloches may be worn slightly toward the back of the head, the lift of the brims gives a show of forward movement. The brimless toques and pillboxes are designed in most cases for a level on the head pose.

Clear, well defined outlines lead, rivaled by tiers, swirls and pleats to develop a draped effect. Width and height themes continue in such hat shapes as the basket, bonnet and coolie. In the casual hat category, mannishly tailored styles make an impression. Soft, cloches have a place here, as do Tyrolean hats with indented crowns, brims turned up in back.

Bulky look for fall hats is acheived without a heavy - on - the - head feeling. Lightness results from the use of napped materials. Felts imitate an all-feather look. Long - haired beavers soleils and velours are in evidence, with a new interest in mohair.

Suede- finished fur felts, clipped beavers, soleils and some velours show a sleek, rather than plushy surface.

Fashion - wide interest in fur reflected in numerous fur and fake - fur hats. Here, long haired furs such as fox further the bulky look. Man - made copies continue to do a better and better job of looking like real fur.

On the festive side, dressier hats are created of such materials as satin, veiling and velvet sparked by brocade. Feathers trim or completely compose hats for afternoon and evening.

Little hats come into their own for evening, although even little hats are bigger this season. Beret and pixie shapes, and ribbon and veiling combinations are seen among gala hats.

In accordance with general fall fashion trends hat colors cover the rainbow. Here as everywhere, tones of purple are special news, from pale lilacs to deeper shades. Fall foliage hues - green, gold, red - are in evidence, and blue tones play a part.

Basic shades include always popular black, a variety of browns, beiges, whites and off whites and graphite grays.

Prepare Ahead

You can prepare a graham cracker crust ahead, cover it tightly and refrigerate it. Then when you are ready to use it, you can bake the crust and add the filling.

Try It!

Nice with roast pork: applesauce to which plumped raisins are added.

Follies Plans Underway By Junior Charity League

Plans for the annual Junior Charity League Follies, an outstanding event in Monroe, were discussed by League members at a luncheon meeting held Friday, October 7 at the Paragon Club.

Dates for this year's Follies have been set November 16 and 17.

Members of the luncheon committee in charge of arangements were Mrs. Branton Kellogg, Mrs. L. M. Ballard, Mrs. Richard Kellogg, Mrs. Milton Brewer, Mrs. Ryan Sartor, and Mrs. Edward Seymour Jr.

Pyramid arrangements of pyracantha berries and grapes in Grecian urns formed the central decorations for the tables, carrying out an autumn theme.

Following luncheon John Kelso Jr. spoke to the group on the upcoming bond election for youth recreation centers in Monroe. Remainder of the meeting was spent in a discussion of the Follies.

Those attending were Mrs. Kent Anderson, Mrs. Stan Bagwell, Mrs. L. M. Ballard, Mrs. Harry Bell, Mrs. D. C. Bernhardt, Mrs. John Cale, Mrs. H. W. Chapman, Mrs. Brooks Dawkins, Mrs. Lee Edwards, Mrs. J. A. Faucett, Mrs. Don Griffen, Mrs. David Garrett, Mrs. Jerry Gregg, Mrs. Edward Hayward, Mrs. Thomas Henry, Mrs. George Hibbard, Mrs. Boling Jones.

Mrs. Branton Kellogg, Mrs. John Kelso, Mrs. Jesse McDonald, Mrs. Jack Madden, Mrs. Edward Miller, Mrs. Almer Montgomery Jr., Mrs. George Mouk, Mrs. William Parker, Mrs. Milton Pickett, Mrs. A. H. Pipes, Mrs. Morris Phillips, Mrs. Phillip Rosamond, Mrs. John Salisbury, Mrs. Stewart Scott, Mrs. Jack Smith, Mrs. C. A. Ulrich, Mrs. William Brown, Mrs. Charles Brown, Mrs. Coy Casey, Mrs. John Clay, Mrs. Robert Clay.

Mrs. Sol Courtman, Mrs. Ronald Davis Jr., Mrs. William Dent, Mrs. Richard Dickenhorst, Mrs. O. A. Easterling Jr., Mrs. Haynes Harkey, Mrs. R. G. Hart Jr., Mrs. Thomas Hyland, Mrs. Roy Ledbetter, Mrs. Thad Ryan, Mrs. Amos Smelser, Mrs. John Stoddard, Mrs. Kirt Touchstone, Mrs. Lee Vanderpool, Mrs. Frances Whittelsey, Mrs. James Williams, Mrs. Harold Woods Jr., Mrs. Edgar Chapman, Mrs. Robert Dougherty, Mrs. John Ensminger, Mrs. Jack Fluke, Mrs. Tom Boyd Grayson, Mrs. Richard Kellogg, Mrs. T. W. Meriwether, Mrs. C. A. Petrus, Mrs. Marvin Ramsey, Mrs. Ryan Sartor, Mrs. Edward Seymour Jr., Mrs. Jack Tarver, Mrs. Herbert Wilson and two guests, Mrs. John Savage, inactive member and Mrs. William Watson of St. Joseph, La.

Fabrics Make Fine Showing In Fall Styles

Fabrics have aristocratic ideas for fall. Woolens, silks, the man-made wonder fibers and cottons excell in quality, presenting a distinctive, distinguished appearance.

Elegant woolens impress the eye with dimensional textures and airy weaves, often enriched by mohair loops or slubs. Last season's success with worsted ottoman stimulates the liking for ribbed and corded weaves, with many herringbones and twills added. Rich - looking gabardines make a strong showing especially in smartly tailored dresses.

Knits are everywhere, and in every texture — brushed, homespun, lacy, smooth and languid. Others reflect the look of fall's handsome rustic tweeds.

Dressy woolens include pebbly crepes and sheer, eye - catching textures. Wool prints gain new importance in dresses for the festive hours.

An aura of luxury emanates from fur blends, lustrous velours, wool chinchillas, camels and cashmere. Gleaming silks for all hours and brocades and metallics for evening continue in the luxurious vein.

Man-made fibers, cottons and blends achieve new elegance. The wonder fibers, for example, realistically copy the look of silk and cotton and blends are styled like fine quality wools.

Taking note of the fact that there's a lot of warm weather in the fall, fashion presents many more cottons. Comfort is furthered by the prevalence of wash and wear qualities — achieved with or without synthetics blended in.

BETROTHED—Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Zeagler of Grayson, announced this weekend the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Martha Jean, above, to Jimmy Earl Eldridge, son of Mrs. Beatrice Eldridge and the late Marvin Eldridge of Crowville. Date of the nuptials will be announced.

Parkview Baptist Church Scene Of Vows Uniting Miss Garrett, Mr. Whipple

Miss Dorothy Ray Garrett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Ray Garrett, Monroe, became the bride of Brodie Jack Whipple, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Elsworth Whipple, Mer Rouge, at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon, October 15 in the sanctuary of Parkview Baptist Church.

The Rev. H. L. Sampson officiated at the double ring ceremony in the presence of relatives and close friends.

The bride is the granddaughter of Mrs. James Byron Roper of Lufkin, Tex., and the late Mr. Roper; Mrs. James David Cross of Vidalia and the late Robert Garrett of Colfax. Mr. Whipple is the grandson of Mrs. David A. Risinger of Mer Rouge and the late Mr. and Mrs. Asa C. Whipple, Mer Rouge.

A sunburst arrangement of white gladioli and stock decorated the altar which was banked with woodwardia fern and lighted by tapers in seven - branched candelabra. Arrangements of the white flowers in white urns stood on Grecian column stands at each side of the altar.

Traditional wedding marches were played by the organist, Mrs. William W. Wilkerson, who also accompanied Mrs. James A. Pharis Jr. as she sang "Because" and "O Perfect Love."

The bride wore a gown of Chantilly lace and tulle over candlelight satin, fashioned with a basque bodice, accented by a tulle yoke and tiny collar of lace embroidered in seed pearls and iridescent sequins. The long tapered sleeves came to lily points over her hands and the voluminous waltz length skirt was made of alternating panels of lace and nylon over satin. Her veil of sheer Italian illusion fell to fingertip length from a coronet of seed pearls and satin leaves and her only jewelry was an antique cameo, a gift from the mother of the bridegroom. She carried a bouquet of white orchids and stephanotis, showered with satin streamers.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Jerry Bradford Henderson of Bastrop and bridesmaids were Miss JoAnn Roper of Shreveport and Miss Patricia Ann Green of Bastrop.

The attendants were dressed identically in street - length frocks of Peau DeFran sky blue satin. The dresses were designed with decollete necklines, brief sleeves, fitted bodices and full skirts. They also wore matching veil whimseys and satin shoes and carried crescent shaped bouquets of yellow gladioli florets. Candlelighters were Miss Elizabeth Rains and Miss Kay Risinger of Mer Rouge, who wore matching dresses and slippers with headbands of yellow florets.

Charles David Whipple served his brother as best man and ushers were John Byron Garrett, brother of the bride, and Dennis Akers of Mer Rouge.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Garrett chose a dress of Peau DeFran como blue satin, designed with a pleated cummerbund with which she wore matching accessories. Mrs. Whipple, mother of the bridegroom, wore a teal blue crepe dress with matching accessories. Both wore corsages of white carnations.

The bride's parents were hosts at a reception in the church immediately following the ceremony. Baskets of white gladioli and stock decorated the reception hall. Mrs. Jim Wallace received at the door.

The matron of honor's bouquet was placed at the base of a memory candle on the table with the bride's book, where Mrs. Charles Hall presided. The bride's table was covered with white net over taffeta, garlanded with sprays of English ivy, and centered with the tiered wedding cake which was served by Mrs. Charles D. Whipple. Miss Gwendolyn Reynolds served punch from another table covered with white tulle and lace over taffeta. The silver punch bowl at one end of the table was encircled with lilies of the valley. The bride's bouquet was placed opposite, beneath a silver candelabra holding white tapers.

Assisting in the courtesies were Miss Virginia Reynolds, Mrs. John Stroud, Mrs. C. H. Bivens and Miss Joyce Frazier.

When the couple left on a wedding trip the bride was wearing a two piece costume of green and brown plaid with brown accessories and the orchid from her bouquet. Upon their return the couple will be at home at 1112 North Second.

Mrs. Whipple graduated from Neville high school and attended Northeast Louisiana State College. The bridegroom is a graduate of Mer Rouge high school and also attended Northeast Louisiana State College.

Out-of-town guests for the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Braddock, Mr. and Mrs. William Roper, Miss JoAnn Roper of Shreveport; Mr. and Mrs. Hebert Roper and Mrs. J. B. Roper of Lufkin, Texas; Miss Kay Kelly of Pineville; Mrs. Garrett Slomoskey, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Green, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. McDonald, Kenneth Slomosky, Jim Green, Miss Susan Jordan, Mr. and Mrs. Warner Holland, Jerry Henderson, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bass, and Mrs. Joseph Jordan, all of Bastrop.

Mrs. Earl Bass, Fairbanks, Mrs. D. A. Risinger, Miss Clara Risinger, Miss Wedra Risinger, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Rains, William Rains, Mrs. B. L. Risinger, Mrs. Mae Eubank, all of Mer Rouge; Miss Mickey Feazette, Bastrop; Mrs. Billy Day, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Shaw, Miss Debbie Shaw, and Mrs. J. P. Shaw, of Oak Ridge.

Storage Space Can Be Gained With Foresight

The difference between a neat and messy bedroom is often dependent on the amount of shelf and drawer space.

The best way to cut down on problems is to bear this in mind when selecting a bedroom suite. New bedroom collections include dressers in three different sizes, highboys, chest-on-chests and accessory chests.

Inspect every piece for adequate space and convenience before making a choice and you'll have a neat bedroom.

Shoji screens, imported from Japan, make exotic looking room dividers and carry out the new Oriental influence.

The newest wall shelves eliminate exposed supports and brackets for a decorator look.

Glaze Them

Some cooks like to use a mixture of milk and sugar as a glaze for yeast rolls.

New Styles Meet Mood Of Subteen

A subteen's moods are many and fall fashion caters to all. For her more casual moods is a look that might be called "dramatically relaxed," highlighted by long and shaggy sweaters, black knits and the duffel coat.

On the other side are styles that aid her in her wish for a more dressed-up, adult air.

The fashion sophistication liked by the growing up girl is provided by the new long-torso look. Tunics grow in prestige on dresses, coats, suits and sportswear. Blouses and sweaters come in tunic lengths, sashed at the waist.

A leading silhouette is the unpressed pleated full skirt with jacket. Important, too, for subteeners are eased slim skirts, now appearing with tucked waists and flared and pleated styles. Pleats are many: accordion, tunnel, box, unpressed.

Plaids, pile and prints of all sorts seem headed for a busy season. The plaids - many in brighter hues and prints, with special favor for the old-fashioned look, show up everywhere.

Fur-look piles compose coats, line them and trim them. And the fun fashions in pile and shaggy textured fabrics are plentiful, including pants, jackets, vests.

For subteens who practically live in separates, fall's lot of versatile tops and bottoms includes the long shaggy sweater over tapered pants, blouson tops, easy-to-wash little suits, culottes and jumpers.

Casual coats trend to the three-quarter length with the duffel coat in the lead.

Nutritionist Speaks At City PTA Council

Miss Marlene Bond, regional nutritionist of the Louisiana State Board of Health, was guest speaker at the Monroe City Council of the Parent - Teacher Association on Ocotober 6.

Mrs. J. W. Schonlou presided over the meeting held in the Louis Locke Room of the Ouachita Parish library with delegates and principals from Georgia Tucker, Lida Benton, Lexington, Plum Street and Sherrouse Elementary schools in attendance.

Miss Bond spoke to the group on "Feeding of the School Child, It's Problems and Rewards." Methods of promoting child cooperation were discussed including food survey, home and school, child's own survey record, lunch room promotion, screening program, field trips, science projects for classroom observation in good and bad nutrition.

Plans were announced to present results of the Code of Behavior, sponsored by the Council, now underway at the Lee Junior high school, at a meeting of the Plum Street P-TA with the youth panel early in the year. Plans are under direction of Mrs. Fred G. Beckett, council activity chairman.

Miss Eloise Cann, third vice-president of Louisiana P-TA who recently returned from Chicago, Ill., where she attended a safety meeting of the National P-TA, related the raising of the required age of the licensed driver worthy of state legislation. Reports were given by the magazine and membership chairmen from all represented schools.

Mrs. Craig C. Cambpell, program chairman of the council, announced that representatives of proposed Recreation Centers in Monroe will be guests at the November 2 meeting in the Louis Locke Room of the Library.

Spanish Air Noted In Trim

Most of the daytime dresses for Fall '60 seem to have a Spanish air about them, stressed particularly by the use of braids, tassels, passamenterie and satin pipings.

Satin bands shape midriffs, outline bodices and pipe collarless necklines. Knit trimmings appear at necklines, accent waistlines and spark dress bodices.

Fur collars and cuffs are dramatic touches to the sveltest of daytime dresses. Large novelty buttons in trios, particularly, are often used for trims on starkly simple dresses.

Although the look of the season's trimmings are elegant, their use is simple and most restrained.

BETROTHED—Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Zeagler of Grayson, announced this weekend the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Martha Jean, above, to Jimmy Earl Eldridge, son of Mrs. Beatrice Eldridge and the late Marvin Eldridge of Crowville. Date of the nuptials will be announced.

Parkview Baptist Church Scene Of Vows Uniting Miss Garrett, Mr. Whipple

Miss Dorothy Ray Garrett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Ray Garrett, Monroe, became the bride of Brodie Jack Whipple, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Elsworth Whipple, Mer Rouge, at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon, October 15 in the sanctuary of Parkview Baptist Church.

The Rev. H. L. Sampson officiated at the double ring ceremony in the presence of relatives and close friends.

The bride is the granddaughter of Mrs. James Byron Roper of Lufkin, Tex., and the late Mr. Roper; Mrs. James David Cross of Vidalia and the late Robert Garrett of Colfax. Mr. Whipple is the grandson of Mrs. David A. Risinger of Mer Rouge and the late Mr. and Mrs. Asa C. Whipple, Mer Rouge.

A sunburst arrangement of white gladioli and stock decorated the altar which was banked with woodwardia fern and lighted by tapers in seven - branched candelabra. Arrangements of the white flowers in white urns stood on Grecian column stands at each side of the altar.

Traditional wedding marches were played by the organist, Mrs. William W. Wilkerson, who also accompanied Mrs. James A. Pharis Jr. as she sang "Because" and "O Perfect Love."

The bride wore a gown of Chantilly lace and tulle over candlelight satin, fashioned with a basque bodice, accented by a tulle yoke and tiny collar of lace embroidered in seed pearls and iridescent sequins. The long tapered sleeves came to lily points over her hands and the voluminous waltz length skirt was made of alternating panels of lace and nylon over satin. Her veil of sheer Italian illusion fell to fingertip length from a coronet of seed pearls and satin leaves and her only jewelry was an antique cameo, a gift from the mother of the bridegroom. She carried a bouquet of white orchids and stephanotis, showered with satin streamers.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Jerry Bradford Henderson of Bastrop and bridesmaids were Miss JoAnn Roper of Shreveport and Miss Patricia Ann Green of Bastrop.

The attendants were dressed identically in street - length frocks of Peau DeFran sky blue satin. The dresses were designed with decollete necklines, brief sleeves, fitted bodices and full skirts. They also wore matching veil whimseys and satin shoes and carried crescent shaped bouquets of yellow gladioli florets. Candlelighters were Miss Elizabeth Rains and Miss Kay Risinger of Mer Rouge, who wore matching dresses and slippers with headbands of yellow florets.

Charles David Whipple served his brother as best man and ushers were John Byron Garrett, brother of the bride, and Dennis Akers of Mer Rouge.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Garrett chose a dress of Peau DeFran como blue satin, designed with a pleated cummerbund with which she wore matching accessories. Mrs. Whipple, mother of the bridegroom, wore a teal blue crepe dress with matching accessories. Both wore corsages of white carnations.

The bride's parents were hosts at a reception in the church immediately following the ceremony. Baskets of white gladioli and stock decorated the reception hall. Mrs. Jim Wallace received at the door.

The matron of honor's bouquet was placed at the base of a memory candle on the table with the bride's book, where Mrs. Charles Hall presided. The bride's table was covered with white net over taffeta, garlanded with sprays of English ivy, and centered with the tiered wedding cake which was served by Mrs. Charles D. Whipple. Miss Gwendolyn Reynolds served punch from another table covered with white tulle and lace over taffeta. The silver punch bowl at one end of the table was encircled with lilies of the valley. The bride's bouquet was placed opposite, beneath a silver candelabra holding white tapers.

Assisting in the courtesies were Miss Virginia Reynolds, Mrs. John Stroud, Mrs. C. H. Bivens and Miss Joyce Frazier.

When the couple left on a wedding trip the bride was wearing a two piece costume of green and brown plaid with brown accessories and the orchid from her bouquet. Upon their return the couple will be at home at 1112 North Second.

Mrs. Whipple graduated from Neville high school and attended Northeast Louisiana State College. The bridegroom is a graduate of Mer Rouge high school and also attended Northeast Louisiana State College.

Out-of-town guests for the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Braddock, Mr. and Mrs. William Roper, Miss JoAnn Roper of Shreveport; Mr. and Mrs. Hebert Roper and Mrs. J. B. Roper of Lufkin, Texas; Miss Kay Kelly of Pineville; Mrs. Garrett Slomoskey, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Green, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. McDonald, Kenneth Slomosky, Jim Green, Miss Susan Jordan, Mr. and Mrs. Warner Holland, Jerry Henderson, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bass, and Mrs. Joseph Jordan, all of Bastrop.

Mrs. Earl Bass, Fairbanks, Mrs. D. A. Risinger, Miss Clara Risinger, Miss Wedra Risinger, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Rains, William Rains, Mrs. B. L. Risinger, Mrs. Mae Eubank, all of Mer Rouge; Miss Mickey Feazette, Bastrop; Mrs. Billy Day, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Shaw, Miss Debbie Shaw, and Mrs. J. P. Shaw, of Oak Ridge.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED—Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Jones of Bastrop, announced this weekend the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Linda, above, to Walter Homer Burgess, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Burgess of Mer Rouge. The wedding is planned for November 19 at 2 p.m. in the home of the bride's parents.

Engagement Of Miss Rolfe To Lt. Harp Is Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gilman Rolfe of Oak Ridge announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Mary Sterling Rolfe to Lt. Kelly Mayo Harp, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Edward Harp of Bastrop.

The wedding will be solemnized November 25 at 7 p.m. in the Oak Ridge Methodist church. Rev. Jack H. Midyett, pastor of the First Methodist church in Bossier City, will perform the ceremony.

Miss Rolfe has selected as maid of honor Miss Kay Conger of Oak Ridge. Bridesmaids will be Mrs. Jim Westbrook, Baton Rouge; Mrs. Charles Herbert Wilder, Alexandria; Miss Beverly Schwarner, Baton Rouge; Miss Dee Stahl, New York, N. Y., and Miss Virginia Sue Shepard of Oak Ridge.

Serving the bridegroom as best man will be Don L. McGuire of Bastrop. Groomsmen and ushers will include Elred Harp, Napoleonville; Bill Harp, New York, N.Y., Buddy Oliver, Tommie Rolfe and Ray Norris, all of Bastrop; Charley Hamaker, Monroe and Roy Windsor, Mer Rouge.

A graduate of Oak Ridge high school, the bride - elect received her B.S. degree from Louisiana State University this year. At L. S. U. she was a member of Pi Beta Phi sorority, Mu Sigma Rho honorary scholastic fraternity and Kappa Delta Pi honorary education organization and served as president of Lambda Intersorority.

A first lieutenant in the U. S. Air Force, stationed at Hickham Field, Honolulu, Hawaii, the prospective bridegroom is a graduate of the United States Military Academy, West Point, N. Y. Graduating with honors he was 60th in the class of 540 students.

The couple will reside in Honolulu following their marriage.

WMU Speakers

Quarterly meeting of the night circles of the Women's Missionary Union will be held at Calvary Baptist church, Thursday, October 20. Speakers will be Miss Suthel Walker and Miss Kathryn DeLaun from the Goodwill Center at Shreveport. All circle members are urged to attend and visitors are invited.

New Styles Meet Mood Of Subteen

A subteen's moods are many and fall fashion caters to all. For her more casual moods is a look that might be called "dramatically relaxed," highlighted by long and shaggy sweaters, black knits and the duffel coat.

On the other side are styles that aid her in her wish for a more dressed-up, adult air.

The fashion sophistication liked by the growing up girl is provided by the new long-torso look. Tunics grow in prestige on dresses, coats, suits and sportswear. Blouses and sweaters come in tunic lengths, sashed at the waist.

A leading silhouette is the unpressed pleated full skirt with jacket. Important, too, for subteeners are eased slim skirts, now appearing with tucked waists and flared and pleated styles. Pleats are many: accordion, tunnel, box, unpressed.

Plaids, pile and prints of all sorts seem headed for a busy season. The plaids - many in brighter hues and prints, with special favor for the old-fashioned look, show up everywhere.

Fur-look piles compose coats, line them and trim them. And the fun fashions in pile and shaggy textured fabrics are plentiful, including pants, jackets, vests.

For subteens who practically live in separates, fall's lot of versatile tops and bottoms includes the long shaggy sweater over tapered pants, blouson tops, easy-to-wash little suits, culottes and jumpers.

Casual coats trend to the three-quarter length with the duffel coat in the lead.

Nutritionist Speaks At City PTA Council

Miss Marlene Bond, regional nutritionist of the Louisiana State Board of Health, was guest speaker at the Monroe City Council of the Parent - Teacher Association on Ocotober 6.

Mrs. J. W. Schonlou presided over the meeting held in the Louis Locke Room of the Ouachita Parish library with delegates and principals from Georgia Tucker, Lida Benton, Lexington, Plum Street and Sherrouse Elementary schools in attendance.

Miss Bond spoke to the group on "Feeding of the School Child, It's Problems and Rewards." Methods of promoting child cooperation were discussed including food survey, home and school, child's own survey record, lunch room promotion, screening program, field trips, science projects for classroom observation in good and bad nutrition.

Plans were announced to present results of the Code of Behavior, sponsored by the Council, now underway at the Lee Junior high school, at a meeting of the Plum Street P-TA with the youth panel early in the year. Plans are under direction of Mrs. Fred G. Beckett, council activity chairman.

Miss Eloise Cann, third vice-president of Louisiana P-TA who recently returned from Chicago, Ill., where she attended a safety meeting of the National P-TA, related the raising of the required age of the licensed driver worthy of state legislation. Reports were given by the magazine and membership chairmen from all represented schools.

Mrs. Craig C. Cambpell, program chairman of the council, announced that representatives of proposed Recreation Centers in Monroe will be guests at the November 2 meeting in the Louis Locke Room of the Library.

Spanish Air Noted In Trim

Most of the daytime dresses for Fall '60 seem to have a Spanish air about them, stressed particularly by the use of braids, tassels, passamenterie and satin pipings.

Satin bands shape midriffs, outline bodices and pipe collarless necklines. Knit trimmings appear at necklines, accent waistlines and spark dress bodices.

Fur collars and cuffs are dramatic touches to the sveltest of daytime dresses. Large novelty buttons in trios, particularly, are often used for trims on starkly simple dresses.

Althought the look of the season's trimmings are elegant, their use is simple and most restrained.

Shoes Taper, Giving Toes Needle Point

Sharply pointed shoes taper to a pencil - slim toe in this fall's newest styles. The whittled look in footwear carries through in dressy, casual and day wear.

Pumps, spectators, flats, casuals and even moccasin type leisure wear show sharply pointed toes.

There are varying interpretations of the pointed toe, ranging from the "single" needle - moderately tapered- to the high - fashion quadruple needle or "missile toe," that measures a bare quarter of an inch at the toe tip.

Suede, brushed leather, lustered, smooth and grained leather shoes are molded to modified or acute "missile toes" to go into orbit around the world of fashion.

While the "outer space" of the new shoes is held to a fine line, new scientific tanning methods result in ultra - flexible leather that enables shoes to make their fashion point without sacrificing foot comfort.

Many new pumps feature cut-out and cut - out effects achieved through complementary color underlays. Contrasting textures make news in casual shoes with special detailing on vamps and shanks.

Many styles have draped, pleated and perforated fronts to accent the narrow toe silhouette.

Both texture and color interest are evident. Luster leather is seen in mauves, purples and magentas for evening wear. Evening pumps in soft crushed leather finishes appear in antiqued gold and bronze to accent elegant dresses for special occasions. Brown is in a leading color position in daytime pumps, casual moccasins and walking shoes.

Very high heels write a new fashion note in pencil - slim beauties that rise to three and half inches - a half inch higher than the popular "spike" dress heel. Both casual and suit shoes stand on mid - heels of stacked leather.

Demonstration On Quick Meals Given For Club

Mrs. J. E. Rutledge, food preparation leader for the Woodlawn Home Demonstration Club, presented the program for the monthly meeting of the club held in her home Friday, October 7. Mrs. G. E. Rutledge was co-hostess.

Mrs. Rutledge demonstrated "Meals Made Quick and Easy," by preparing a meat and vegetable casserole and fruit dessert which she baked and served during the meeting.

Mrs. Courtney Caples, home management leader, and Mrs. Harvey Larche, health and safety leader, gave timely suggestions.

During the business session conducted by Mrs. Truman Wright a nominating committee was appointed. The committee is composed of Mrs. John Bush, Mrs. J. E. Murphy and Mrs. Wright.

Refreshments were served to Mrs. Caples, Mrs. Larche, Mrs. Wright, Mrs. Bush, Mrs. Murphy, Mrs. E. O. Smith, Mrs. Fred Lovelady, Mrs. Harvie Eady, Mrs. Doyle Raborn, Mrs. Ruby Morehead, Mrs. Wallace Snowden, Mrs. H. M. Pants In Family Worn By Both Mom And Pop

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—There's no argument about who wears the pants in the family these days. The answer is — both Pop and Mom.

Never have there been so many trouser fashions for the women.

"And never have women looked so mannish," sighed Eleanora Garnett, the Italian couturier. "Regrettable," added the Russian born designer whose customers include Mrs. Nelson A. Rockefeller, Clare Boothe Luce, Esther Williams, Rise Stevens, and a host of other famous and socially prominent women.

"Look what Paris did this season," she continued, in an interview. "Hair is a woman's most beautiful feature. . so Paris chopped it off. The designers then covered what was left with heavy cloches coming all the way to the eyebrows. They shadowed the eyes into black blobs in the face. They did a lot of those unfitted, long jackets which are so mannish. . .and then skirts to show the knees, the ugliest part of the anatomy.

THE 'SCARECORW LOOK'

"I call what they created the 'scarecrow look'."

"I'm not talking about those divided skirts Norell made. . . he's an excellent designer and they look good on women. But there just seems to be a mannish look to almost everything. And if it doesn't fit, that seems to be the style," she continued. "Norell" is Norman Norell, considered tops in the American fashion field.

Eleanora Garnett speaks from 35 years in fashion. She was born in Estonia of aristocratic parentage, and could if she wished bill herself as the Countess Eleanora Sthal Holstein von - Lilienthal. The family fled to Shanghai just before the Russian revolution in 1917.

WORKED IN DRESS SHOP

She went to work as a teenager, for an American woman who owned a fashionable dress shop in the Chinese city.

"My first job was picking up pins after the fitters," she laughed. But she learned the dress business, and eventually went to Paris to work as a mannequin for designers Molyneux, Vionnet, and Lanvin.

Two years in Paris, and she got homesick. She returned to Shanghai where she met "the man who is now my wonderful husband." She is the wife of Luciano Riggio, president of the American Insurance Co. in Italy.

Today, the couple lives in Rome where the designer's factory and design studio are located. She brings her collections to New York each spring and fall for showings, but all designs sold through her permanent New York salon (a six-story building she owns in mid - Manhattan) are made in Italy.

TOO EXPENSIVE

"It is too expensive to make my kind of elegant clothes in New York," she explained. "I'd have to get $3,000 for a $1,000 gown."

The designer is a handsome blue-eyed blonde who wears her long hair in a coronet braid. Her hobbies are the piano and gardening—"gardening helps you get ideas for color combinations and new fabric textures," she said.

Miss Garnett expressed regret that men dominat the fashion design world today, especially in Paris. "Oh, they have daring, and a lot of ideas," she said, "but what can a man know about how clothes feel on a woman?

"He doesn't wear a corset."

Club Speaker

Mrs. Thomas Jett, fifth district president of Louisiana Federation of Women's clubs, was guest speaker at the monthly meeting of the Baskin's Women's Study club Thursday, October 6. Topic of her address was "Women's Role in Politics."

Leather Easily Integrated In Any Room Decor

New leather - covered chairs, couches and headboards run the gamut from severely tailored modern furniture to tufted, draped and quilted traditional styles.

High key colors in literally hundreds of shades permit a single leather piece to be integrated within a room decor, or provide a choice of pieces with which to furnish a complete room.

Modern tanning processes have perfected the practicality of leather furniture, by assuring resistance to fading, cracking and soiling. Top grain leather furniture can be cleaned with a damp, soapy cloth.

Tours, Films Planned By Garden Club

Mrs. Robert S. Smith was hostess for the October meeting of La Petite Maison Garden Club when she entertained Friday morning at Highland Park Country Club. Mrs. V. O. Smith was co-hostess.

During the business session presided over by Mrs. A. H. Jelk reports from various committees on tours and films for the club were given.

Mrs. John Lewis had charge of the program which featured a discussion on the care of pot plants and fruit and vegetable arrangements for Thanksgiving.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses to Mrs. Herbert Breard Jr., Mrs. Reneau Breard Jr., Mrs. Coy Casey, Mrs. Sylvester Breard, Mrs. Curtis Cook, Mrs. Beatle Eason, Mrs. Robert Easterling, Mrs. Doyle Hamilton, Mrs. Lester High, Mrs. Ed Heard, Mrs. A. H. Jelks, Mrs. Bill McCain, Mrs. Jack Murphy, Mrs. Louis Ray, Mrs. Samuel Savaso, Mrs. Amos Smelser, Mrs. John Stoddard, Mrs. Malcolm Smith and Mrs. John Lewis.

A matching high crown hat of fake fur will accompany its wearer on many occasions.

Girl Scout News

Girls of Troop 32 are working on a timely service, which they recommend to other troops in different neighborhoods. They are making door - knob hangers urging citizens to vote and plan to distribute them in their own immediate neighborhoods. As their first badge work of the year they have chosen "My Government" the Community Life Field. Very appropriate, not only to the times, but to Scouts and all of us at all times. Mrs. J. E. Wood is leader of this troop of seventh - grade girls.

Troop 33 prides itself on being prompt with registration, a custom we commend highly. They've completed four years of Scouting and now begin their fifth. Leaders are Mrs. C. E. Vaughan, Jr. and Mrs. J. R. Hood. Serving on the troop committee is Mrs. W. C. Choitz. Girls in this active troop are: Susan Allen, Pamela Clay, Paula Choitz, Martha Easley, Maureen Halpin, Janet Hood. Theresa Langley, Carol Madden, Linda Montrozas, Barbara Smith, Carol Ullman, Kitty Vaughan.

Transferring from Shreveport into Troop 33 is Kathy Rambin.

Troop camping is high on the list of what Girl Scouts like to do best. We are sure that Troop 46 will vote that way after their overnight at Pine Wood, their very first, since they flew up from Brownie Scouting only last spring. Troop leaders, Mrs. C. W. Cain, Mrs. Herbert Mayo, Mrs. Paul Banks, in planning with the girls, kept plans simple, so that everything could be fun, even kapers, and working by patrols.

All 20 girls in the troop shared in the fun, as follows: Lynn Banks, Candy Cain, Jan Claridge, Margaret Denoux, Linda Dixon, Linda Greene, True Guerriero, Emma Humble, Evaline Jones, Mary Kokinos, Linda Law, Nancy Leigh, Betty Jean Lovelady, Suzanne Mayo, Diana Mickel, Ashley Pickett, Linda Stewart, Susan Willey, Niki Williams, Zell Williams. Members of the troop are making a fine showing in their new green uniforms and red ties.

About 30 registrations had been received for the arts workshop Thursday and Friday. Planners and instructors for the two days were Mrs. Charles Overton, training Chairman, Mrs. A. B. Gregory, Jr., Mrs. N. L. Huckabee, Mrs. George Herrell, Mrs. Walter Bell, Mrs. F. M. Waren. The long hall at the office was devoted to display space with examples of origami (Japanese paper folding) weaving, papier mache', simple sewing projects, kitchen cupboard mosaics, weaving, collage, paper cutting. The display is colorful and intended to help leaders find ideas for good craft work. The display will be left up for about two weeks. Anyone interested is invited to drop by to see it.

Training days this week are Wednesday and Friday for new leaders, Wednesday being set aside for simple out of door skills. Wednesday is College Neighborhood meeting, at 1:15, Memorial Methodist Church. Fall playday at Pine Wood is Saturday, October 29.

Kiroli School PTA Carnival Set October 27

W. W. Ward, superintendent of Ouachita Parish schools, was guest speaker for the Kiroli School P-TA when it met last Thursday.

Mr. Ward discussed school curriculum and outlined the major and and minor subjects taught in each grade, which includes nine in the first grade to 12 in the fifth grade. Mr. Ward pointed out that West Monroe high school has one of the best curriculums in the United States with 10 required courses, 123 units offered and 80 different subjects taught.

Miss Margaret Whitman, school librarian, gave the devotional based on the book "Heaven in My Hand."

The membership chairman, Mrs. J. D. Milam, announced the present membership totaled 413 compared to 168 last year. Mrs. John Richey, magazine chairman, reported 58 subscriptions to the P-TA magazine had been sold.

Plans were announced for the annual school carnival to be held Thursday, October 27 with Mrs. D. A. Shell, chairman. Mrs. Shell named committees for the various events and reported a Tom Thumb wedding will highlight the program.

Mrs. W. E. Beard, president, urged all parents, and delegates to attend the next meeting of Ouachita Parish P-TA council meeting at Kiroli School. Room count was won by Mrs. Sybil Calhoun's second grade.

Dried Floral Arrangements Shown By Club

Dried arrangements created by members of the Sprig and Twig Garden club of Monroe, were analyzed and displayed at a meeting of the club Tuesday, October 4, in the home of Mrs. Vernon Whitlock.

Arrangements were analyzed by Mrs. R. F. Wilson. Miss Ginger Wyatt created a mass arrangement using a variety of dried foliage with cattails and bronze colored straw flowers, in a black rectangular container.

Mrs. B. L. Talton's arrangement with driftwood featured yellow and bronze straw flowers combined with dock and wheat in a crescent design. Mrs. Joe Adams used dock, golden magnolia leaves and wood roses in a mass arrangement placed on a circular piece of wood.

The door prize of artificial fruit was won by Mrs. Adams and at the conclusion of the afternoon refreshments were served by the hostess to Mrs. Adams, Mrs. W. M. Rasberry, Mrs. Talton, Mrs. Wilson, Miss Wyatt and Mrs. Neil Butler.

Questions And Answers Guide For Homemakers

By BETTY PEPIS

Q. — Please give me wall color suggestions for my living room. This room is 18x11 with wall-to-wall carpet in beige. Draperies are a modern print of beige, dark brown and turquoise. Sofa is toast and one chair is turquoise. The other chair is tangerine, and furniture is mahogany.

A. — A medium tone would seem the best bet here. It will provide a soft background for deep wood tones and upholstery will blend well with it. You might use the beige of your carpet in a slightly deeper shade, turquoise, or, to introduce another color, a medium green or rusty gold. If you choose either of the last two colors, you might purchase a few accessories, sofa pillows, perhaps, or some ashtrays which will repeat wall color and help unify the room.

Q. — I would like to buy some new living room furniture. I need a sectional sofa, chair and end tables. I have a beige leather chair which I will keep. Three walls are burnt adobe brown and the fourth is natural grasscloth. Carpet is beige and draperies are dark blue.

A. — Building a scheme around blues and the natural brown tones you have would be a good idea. Get the sofa in a toast shade to blend with the painted walls, club chair in royal blue. Your end tables might be a dark wood, perhaps mahogany. Accessories should repeat the royal blue with a few touches of pale blue, turquoise or even pale yellow green. White for ashtrays, a box or some small accent will intensify the scheme.

Q. — Two walls in my kitchen have light wood cabinets, white wall tile and rose beige counter tops. I would like to put in new floor tile and paint other walls. Please suggest color for this.

A. — With so much white and light color you can use a rather deep shade for the floor without darkening your kitchen. Marbelized or patterned tile in deep terra cotta would blend well with counter tops and be a practical floor color. Other suggestions would be turquoise, gold or beige. The walls could be painted a pale shade of the floor color.

Q. — My daughter's bedroom is painted a light lavender shade. She has a white iron bed with bedspread and dust ruffle of white and lavender flowered fabric. Unpainted furniture was finished in natural shade. There are three windows and draperies are necessary for privacy. Would you suggest lined draw draperies? What color would you suggest for an alternate coverlet? Pink doesn't seem to work with the lavender shade here. Would you suggest refinishing furniture in a dark fruitwood shade?

A. — Lined draperies would be the perfect solution. These might match walls, be a deeper purple or be white. Try yellow, sharp green and white for the new coverlet! These colors have a natural affinity for purple, yet look new and different with it. The furniture need not be refinished but would look well in fruitwood.

Lakeshore PTA Sets Carnival For October 28

Lakeshore PTA executive board completed plans Tuesday evening for the annual carnival at the Lakeshore elementary school Friday, October 28.

Dr. Fred J. Vogel, president, conducted the meeting during which projects were discussed and accepted by the group for the evening's entertainment.

The event will include rides, hot - dog stand, chicken spaghetti supper, a pot plant and balloon sale, sno - cones, dart game, hamburger booth, wheel of fortune, popcorn and candy apple booth, guessing game, cake walk and an old fashioned country store.

Highlight of the evening will be a womanless wedding, directed by Mrs. Marvin Smith. A parade is also planned preceding the event and supper will be served prior to kickoff of the Ouachita - West Monroe football game.

Dr. Vogel, Tommy Mulhearn and Jack Trichel are co - sponsors for the carnival.

Lakeshore Club Welcomes Five New Members

Five new members were welcomed into the Lakeshore Garden club when it met October 6 in the home of Mrs. Billy B. Seale on Lakeshore Drive, with Mrs. Claude Price, co-hostess.

New members are Mrs. R. E. Young, Mrs. Irene Smith, Mrs. Lewis Young, Mrs. Pearle Beasley, and Mrs. Clyde Granberry. Guests at the meeting were Mrs. L. G. McCain and Mrs. Rex Chrietburg.

Program for the afternoon was presented by Mrs. Gladys Kulcke, who gave a talk and demonstration on "Preparing Material for Dried Arrangements."

Refreshments were served at the close of the afternoon. Others present were Mrs. John Craft, Mrs. C. S. Lawrence, Mrs. Chester Gill, Mrs. H. B. McDowell, Mrs. Tracy Higdon, Mrs. Billy Gates, Mrs. Nan Watson, Mrs. Dee Evans, Mrs. J. H. Alford, Mrs. J. B. Evans Sr., Mrs. J. W. Bubnick, Mrs. S. D. Richardson and Mrs. C. T. Welker.

DRAMATIC BLACK WOOL costume with all the news of Fall 1960 is shown in this wonderfully simple dress with long torso lines. The supple little jacket which completes the ensemble, a fashion favorite of the season, is lined in striking black and white fake pony fur. A matching high crown hat of fake fur will accompany its wearer on many occasions.

Questions And Answers Guide For Homemakers

By BETTY PEPIS

Q. — Please give me wall color suggestions for my living room. This room is 18x11 with wall-to-wall carpet in beige. Draperies are a modern print of beige, dark brown and turquoise. Sofa is toast and one chair is turquoise. The other chair is tangerine, and furniture is mahogany.

A. — A medium tone would seem the best bet here. It will provide a soft background for deep wood tones and upholstery will blend well with it. You might use the beige of your carpet in a slightly deeper shade, turquoise, or, to introduce another color, a medium green or rusty gold. If you choose either of the last two colors, you might purchase a few accessories, sofa pillows, perhaps, or some ashtrays which will repeat wall color and help unify the room.

Girl Scout News

Girls of Troop 32 are working on a timely service, which they recommend to other troops in different neighborhoods. They are making door - knob hangers urging citizens to vote and plan to distribute them in their own immediate neighborhoods. As their first badge work of the year they have chosen "My Government" the Community Life Field. Very appropriate, not only to the times, but to Scouts and all of us at all times. Mrs. J. E. Wood is leader of this troop of seventh - grade girls.

Troop 33 prides itself on being prompt with registration, a custom we commend highly. They've completed four years of Scouting and now begin their fifth. Leaders are Mrs. C. E. Vaughan, Jr. and Mrs. J. R. Hood. Serving on the troop committee is Mrs. W. C. Choitz. Girls in this active troop are: Susan Allen, Pamela Clay, Paula Choitz, Martha Easley, Maureen Halpin, Janet Hood. Theresa Langley, Carol Madden, Linda Montrozas, Barbara Smith, Carol Ullman, Kitty Vaughan.

Transferring from Shreveport into Troop 33 is Kathy Rambin.

Troop camping is high on the list of what Girl Scouts like to do best. We are sure that Troop 46 will vote that way after their overnight at Pine Wood, their very first, since they flew up from Brownie Scouting only last spring. Troop leaders, Mrs. C. W. Cain, Mrs. Herbert Mayo, Mrs. Paul Banks, in planning with the girls, kept plans simple, so that everything could be fun, even kapers, and working by patrols.

All 20 girls in the troop shared in the fun, as follows: Lynn Banks, Candy Cain, Jan Claridge, Margaret Denoux, Linda Dixon, Linda Greene, True Guerriero, Emma Humble, Evaline Jones, Mary Kokinos, Linda Law, Nancy Leigh, Betty Jean Lovelady, Suzanne Mayo, Diana Mickel, Ashley Pickett, Linda Stewart, Susan Willey, Niki Williams, Zell Williams. Members of the troop are making a fine showing in their new green uniforms and red ties.

About 30 registrations had been received for the arts workshop Thursday and Friday. Planners and instructors for the two days were Mrs. Charles Overton, training Chairman, Mrs. A. B. Gregory, Jr., Mrs. N. L. Huckabee, Mrs. George Herrell, Mrs. Walter Bell, Mrs. F. M. Waren. The long hall at the office was devoted to display space with examples of origami (Japanese paper folding) weaving, papier mache', simple sewing projects, kitchen cupboard mosaics, weaving, collage, paper cutting. The display is colorful and intended to help leaders find ideas for good craft work. The display will be left up for about two weeks. Anyone interested is invited to drop by to see it.

Training days this week are Wednesday and Friday for new leaders, Wednesday being set aside for simple out of door skills. Wednesday is College Neighborhood meeting, at 1:15, Memorial Methodist Church. Fall playday at Pine Wood is Saturday, October 29.

Kiroli School PTA Carnival Set October 27

W. W. Ward, superintendent of Ouachita Parish schools, was guest speaker for the Kiroli School P-TA when it met last Thursday.

Mr. Ward discussed school curriculum and outlined the major and and minor subjects taught in each grade, which includes nine in the first grade to 12 in the fifth grade. Mr. Ward pointed out that West Monroe high school has one of the best curriculums in the United States with 10 required courses, 128 units offered and 80 different subjects taught.

Miss Margaret Whitman, school librarian, gave the devotional based on the book "Heaven in My Hand."

The membership chairman, Mrs. J. D. Milam, announced the present membership totaled 413 compared to 168 last year. Mrs. John Richey, magazine chairman, reported 58 subscriptions to the P-TA magazine had been sold.

Plans were announced for the annual school carnival to be held Thursday, October 27 with Mrs. D. A. Shell, chairman. Mrs. Shell named committees for the various events and reported a Tom Thumb wedding will highlight the program.

Mrs. W. E. Beard, president, urged all parents, and delegates to attend the next meeting of Ouachita Parish P-TA council meeting at Kiroli School. Room count was won by Mrs. Sybil Calhoun's second grade.

Dried Floral Arrangements Shown By Club

Dried arrangements created by members of the Sprig and Twig Garden club of Monroe, were analyzed and displayed at a meeting of the club Tuesday, October 4, in the home of Mrs. Vernon Whitlock.

Arrangements were analyzed by Mrs. R. F. Wilson. Miss Ginger Wyatt created a mass arrangement using a variety of dried foliage with cattails and bronze colored straw flowers, in a black rectangular container.

Mrs. B. L. Talton's arrangement with driftwood featured yellow and bronze straw flowers combined with dock and wheat in a crescent design. Mrs. Joe Adams used dock, golden magnolia leaves and wood roses in a mass arrangement placed on a circular piece of wood.

The door prize of artificial fruit was won by Mrs. Adams and at the conclusion of the afternoon refreshments were served by the hostess to Mrs. Adams, Mrs. W. M. Rasberry, Mrs. Talton, Mrs. Wilson, Miss Wyatt and Mrs. Neil Butler.

Handbag Hues, Sizes Keynote Fall Costumes

Colors to keynote costumes, novel sizes, interesting shapes and unusual detailing constitute the fashion news in fall handbags.

Rich autumnal shades in smooth, grained or suede leather handbags provide color counter point for neutral or understated costume colors. Muted plaids, checks or solids can be set off with a bright red, deep blue, rich green or earth brown bag in hand or swinging from the shoulder.

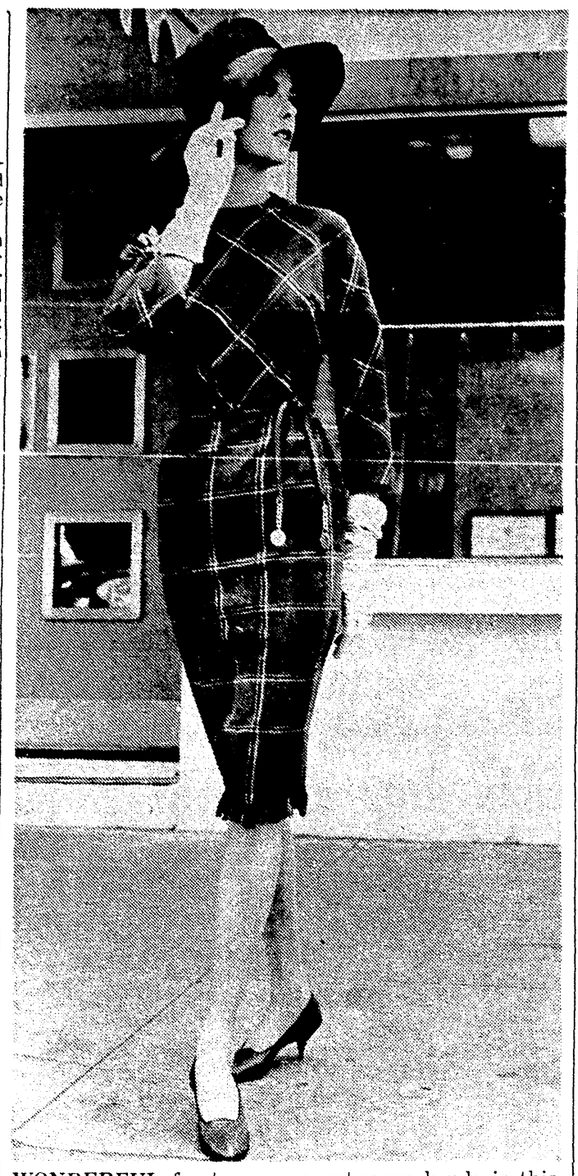
Pouches, totes, boxes, envelopes and tailored bags add fashion frosting to the new coat and suit silhouette.

Knitted tunic separates, seen in beiges, grays and tans, can change their fashion personality with a change of handbag. A cylindrical oblong box bag in grained cocoa brown leather gives a tailored look to a tunic suit for business wear.

The same tunic and skirt takes on a festive late-day early-evening elegance with a change of accessories. A deep red shirred suede pouch purse with matching leather gloves can accomplish the mood magic.

For fall's perennials - suits and coats in checks and plaids - tote bags of calfskin in bone, charcoal sand or beige serve as a smart understatement.

Suede and kid leather clutch bags for evening are small in size, having more length than depth and come in a range of intens colors.



WONDERFUL for town or country weekends is this dashing plaid dress for Fall. Interesting features in this casual style are the biased bodice, leather thong belt and fringed hemline.

A Sharp Music Coterie Elects New Officers

New officers were elected at the first fall meeting of the A Sharp Music Coterie held October 8 at 10 a.m. in the home of Mrs. Grayson Guthrie.

New members were welcomed preceding the election. Those chosen to serve for the ensuing year are Diane McGee, president; Eleanor Harmon, vice - president; Judy Cobb, secretary; Cynthia Leigh, treasurer; Peggy Lanier, historian and Mary Ann Caldwell, reporter.

Sponsors for the year are Mrs. H. G. McDonald and Mrs. Guthrie.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting to Diane McGee, Judy Cobb, Eleanor Harmon, Peggy Lanier, Gale Kelly, Cynthia Leigh, Linda Atkinson, Laura Griffith and Sandy Heller.

Good Salad

Some cooks like to mix lime and lemon flavored gelatin as a base for a salad, folding in grated carrot and crushed pineapple. Serve the salad on crisp greens with mayonnaise.

Questions And Answers About Women's Fashions

By FLORENCE de SANTIS

Q.: I'm trying to find a pink raincoat for my daughter. Is it possible, as I've tried several stores without success.

A.: This color is more common for spring and summer, as fall outerwear naturally tends to be made in deeper tones. However, as clothes for holiday and resort wear come into the stores, pink may show up. Try again during November. In some stores, a buyer may be willing to special-order for you, if you ask her.

Q: Last spring I bought an expensive cotton knit suit and a cotton knit sheath dress in light beige. I'd like to get more wear out of them. Can I wear them now? How shall I accessorize them?

A: Unless there is something summery - looking about their styling, you can wear both all winter. Brown shoes would be best, and a brown bag and gloves. For your important accessory contrast try orange silk scarf tucked in the suit neckline and an orange hat.

Leopard - printed accessories are also fine for beige — a hat and bag, for instance, or a hat and scarf.

If the dress is simply styled, mass necklaces of beads in green, brown and crystal for a smash accent.

Beige has now become an all-year basic color, like black, and should be dramatically accessorized for maximum effect.

Q: My son is being married and I'm making my own dress for the wedding. Is pink too light a shade for the fall? As I am a size 18½ what kind of neckline would look best? Can light brown shoes and beaded bag be used with it?

A: Pink can be used for a wedding, but you will not get much use of such a dress until next spring. If you can make it in a darker shade, rose or royal blue, it could be used through the fall.

The neckline should be a fairly open one, to create a longer look to the neck. If your face is round, choose a square or wide V shape. Scoop necklines are good for the thin face.

Brown can be used as an accessory color if the shoes are in smooth calf or satin. But the beaded bag may be too dressy. A plain satin clutch would perhaps be better.

Accessory Cue

Simplicity is the key fashion word for girls who wear glasses. Eliminate long or fussy earrings and keep all jewelry neat and clear cut. Handsome pins are usually preferred to elaborate necklaces, unless the strands are well away from the face. Wear all the bracelets you like, however, and in line, color and texture remember that anything competing for interest with glasses frames must be concise.

YOUR BABY AND MINE

Child's Constant Tears May Be Emotional Upset

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Mothers are understandably distressed when their children cry too much. There always will be some crying by infants and children even when there is nothing terribly amiss with them. Always we must see that infants are comfortable, well-fed and lovingly attended.

The child beginning to run about cries most often because his efforts to walk, to run, to climb and to use his toys do not match his desires. He feels frustrated by his clumsiness.

The older child may also feel frustrated, though he has outgrown his tendency to cry over every little injury. But his attempts to play with children, especially older ones may meet with a poor response.

WANTS TO BE LIKED

He wants to be liked and popular and he gets teased or left out when they undertake new projects. His only recourse is to cry and cry he does, running home to mother to pour out his emotional injuries.

Sometimes he comes home without crying and then when something goes wrong at home he bursts into tears. His mother, not sensing this as a belated reaction to his inital hurt, shames him with, "cry baby, cry baby."

This is manifestly unfair. If the child is given to frequent crying spells, then he needs attention for either his physical or emotional health.

The whole set-up of the family should come in for scrutiny. Perhaps the child is being ignored for the sake of younger children. He may be overly criticized and corrected so he begins to feel inferior and unhappy. How else can he express these emotions except by aggression or by crying?

DOESN'T FEEL COMPETENT

The child whose feelings are easily hurt and who gains the label of "sensitive" is the one who doesn't feel competent to hold his own with the family or with other children. He needs encouragement for the personality he is and for the talents and skills he possesses, rather than constant humiliation for his crying.

When a child builds up confidence in himself, when he feels that his family looks upon him with pride and love, then his own sense of worthiness helps him to bear any of the blows to his prestige he may get from other children. This is the way to help him stop pitying himself and avoid use of tears as an expression of his unhappy emotions.

Just one word of warning. Sick children often are whiny, cross children. This aspect of constant crying dare not be overlooked.

If you would like to have our 25-cent booklet "When Mother Must Be Nurse," send 25 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of this newspaper.

Beta Sigma Phi Has Suppressed Desire Party

Another in the series of rush parties being given by Beta Pi Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi was held Tuesday night, October 11 in the home of Mrs. Roger Somsen, 3906 Forsythe Avenue.

Theme for the party was "Suppressed Desire," for which members donned costumes suggestive of their suppressions of where or what they would like to be.

Prize for the best costume was presented to Mrs. Anthony Messina, dressed as a Turkish maiden.

Members of the social committee, composed of Mrs. Woodrow Bailey, chairman, Mrs. Alvis Gossett, Mrs. Ted Carter and Mrs. George Smale, had charge of arrangements.

A salad course was served at the conclusion of the evening. Guests present were Mrs. Robert E. Schott, Mrs. Messina and Mrs. Nelwyn Reeves and members attending were Mrs. Robert Whitelaw, Mrs. Carl Johnson, Miss Joyce Lanier, Miss Sally White, Mrs. V. A. Hubka, Mrs. Somsen, Mrs. Steve Savanna, Mrs. Jim Phelps, Mrs. Walter Hinkley, Mrs. Marty Schempf, Mrs. A. A. Kemp, Mrs. Norman Smith and the social committee.

Cadeville Club Sets Election On November 2

Election of officers will be held by the Cadeville Home Demonstration club at a meeting November 2 in the home of Mrs. James Sturdivant, at 9:30 a.m.

Mrs. J. R. Haynes was hostess for the October 5 meeting of the club, which was presided over by Mrs. Sturdivant.

Plans were made for erecting a booth at the Parish fair and a report of the recent council meeting was given by Mrs. C. R. Wilder.

Mrs. Ellis Fowler read a poem, "The Cluttered Years," after which Mrs. Lee Wilder gave a report on health and safety and home management. Mrs. C. R. Wilder, nutrition leader, gave a demonstration on "Simple Time Saving Meals," during which an oven luncheon was prepared with the assistance of the hostess and served to the group.

Those present were Mrs. W. O. Roberts, Mrs. James Sturdivant, Mrs. S. M. Wood, Mrs. Lee Wilder, Mrs. Ellis Fowler, Mrs. C. R. Wilder, Mrs. M. Bagwell and Mrs. J. R. Haynes.

Hosiery Accents Costume Hues

Color is the watchword for fall hosiery, ranging in spectrum from deep purple to pale bronze, to accent every costume in the wardrobe. And hosiery gets a further lift from new textures.

Hosiery mills are turning out stockings to blend and complement each ensemble, from glittering lacey effects for the most formal occasions to casual textured hose for culottes and tweeds.

Shades for daytime wear are seen in pale lavender, olive green blackened browns and pale beiges. For evening wear there are darker shades of the basic colors plus glittering gold and silver. And for casual wear there will be textures and brown shades with a blackened over tone.

More Clams To Appear On Dinner Table

By ALTON BLAKESLEE

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Coming for your dinner table—more clams on the half shell, from the Gulf of Mexico.

This is the promise in new experiments in mariculture, or seafarming. For it appears that northern hard clams can be seeded and grown profitably in warm, nutritious Gulf waters, augmenting the nation's supply of clams.

The experiments are described by Dr. R. W. Menzel of the Florida State University Oceanographic Institute, along with some lore about clams.

For one thing, most clams start life as males, but many change to female, and the sexes conveniently wind up about 50-50 when they are adult.

(Many oysters, he adds, do the same kind of sex switch. One species, in fact, alternates from female to male and back to female.)

If you order Cherrystone or Little Neck clams, you're getting the same thing — the only difference is size and locality where they grew. For all these clams belong to the same species, Mercenaria mercenaria.

Dr. Menzel is interested in sea farming as one method ultimately of meeting an expanding population's need for more food. Seacoasts offer millions of acres of additional land suitable for mariculture.

From Dr. V. L. Loosanoff, director of the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service Laboratory, Milford, Conn., he obtained 300,000 tiny young clams, ranging up to one-fifth of an inch in size. Dr. Loosanoff has perfected a technique of spawning and rearing baby clams. The entire shipment was flown down in a briefcase.

Dr. Menzel planted them at various depths at Alligator Harbor, Fla., where the Oceanographic Institute has a Marine laboratory.

Within a year, on the average, the clams had grown to nearly 1½-inch length, and two inches by two years. Some reached three inches.

Apparently, he reports, two-inch clams for half-shell consumption can be grown at a concentration of 50 per square foot. This would mean over 2,500 bushels per acre over a two-year period, and one man could probably farm the entire lot.

A big problem, though, is predators, especially blue crabs which pick on small clams.

Panhellenic Coffee Set For Thursday

Mrs. Lewis C. Slater, president of Monroe Panhellenic, will be hostess to the organization at a coffee Thursday, October 20.

The coffee party will be held at the Lotus Club from 10 until 11:30 a.m. All members of all sororities are invited to attend.

Plans for the annual Christmas project of the Panhellenic are scheduled to get underway in the near future, according to Mrs. Slater.

Best Dressed Avoid Extras

The art of dressing in the "best dressed" tradition, is knowing when an extra jewel, frill or what have you is too much.

The truly chic woman, in the French manner, when completely dressed, studies herself in the mirror and then takes the superfluous item off. Thus, according to fashion experts, plan on two spots of glitter per outfit, per outing. With hugh glittering earrings, wear more glitter on your wrist, perhaps. And by the same token, with a "bead curtain" necklace the earrings could be too much.

In a season of high drama in baroque costume jewelry, in other words, don't let the scenic effects clutter the main fashion action in the play.

Moment Musical Coterie Elects Year's Officers

First meeting of the new season was held by the Moment Musical Coterie Saturday in the home of Mrs. Briscoe Trousdale.

During the business session election of officers was held. Those chosen for the ensuing term are Susan Kilpatrick, president; Mary Ann Salisbury, vice-president; Ann Murphy, secretary; Kay Odom, treasurer; Myla Grace Lance, historian and Elizabeth Ann Heard, reporter.

Other members present were Anice Ammon, Nancy Bradley, Carol Husted, Judy Jacobs, Martha Keeling, Marca Alice Allen, Marilyn Maxwell, Ann and Jan McLemore, Emily Seegers, Debbie Warren, Carol Waschka, and Susan Willey.

Refreshments were served by the hostess.

Handbag Hues, Sizes Keynote Fall Costumes

Colors to keynote costumes, novel sizes, interesting shapes and unusual detailing constitute the fashion news in fall handbags.

Rich autumnal shades in smooth, grained or suede leather handbags provide color counter point for neutral or understated costume colors. Muted plaids, checks or solids can be set off with a bright red, deep blue, rich green or earth brown bag in hand or swinging from the shoulder.

Pouches, totes, boxes, envelopes and tailored bags add fashion frosting to the new coat and suit silhouette.

Knitted tunic separates, seen in beiges, grays and tans, can change their fashion personality with a change of handbag. A cylindrical oblong box bag in grained cocoa brown leather gives a tailored look to a tunic suit for business wear.

The same tunic and skirt takes on a festive late-day early-evening elegance with a change of accessories. A deep red shirred suede pouch purse with matching leather gloves can accomplish the mood magic.

For fall's perennials - suits and coats in checks and plaids - tote bags of calfskin in bone, charcoal sand or beige serve as a smart understatement.

Suede and kid leather clutch bags for evening are small in size, having more length than depth and come in a range of intens colors.

WONDERFUL for town or country weekends is this dashing plaid dress for Fall. Interesting features in this casual style are the biased bodice, leather thong belt and fringed hemline.

A Sharp Music Coterie Elects New Officers

New officers were elected at the first fall meeting of the A Sharp Music Coterie held October 8 at 10 a.m. in the home of Mrs. Grayson Guthrie.

New members were welcomed preceding the election. Those chosen to serve for the ensuing year are Diane McGee, president; Eleanor Harmon, vice - president; Judy Cobb, secretary; Cynthia Leigh, treasurer; Peggy Lanier, historian and Mary Ann Caldwell, reporter.

Sponsors for the year are Mrs. H. G. McDonald and Mrs. Guthrie.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting to Diane McGee, Judy Cobb, Eleanor Harmon, Peggy Lanier, Gale Kelly, Cynthia Leigh, Linda Atkinson, Laura Griffith and Sandy Heller.

Good Salad

Some cooks like to mix lime and lemon flavored gelatin as a base for a salad, folding in grated carrot and crushed pineapple. Serve the salad on crisp greens with mayonnaise.

Store It Right

When you are having a party and there are more vegetables and fruit on hand than will go into your refrigerator crisper, put them in moisture - proof wrapping in the regular food compartment.

Questions And Answers About Women's Fashions

By FLORENCE de SANTIS

Q.: I'm trying to find a pink raincoat for my daughter. Is it possible, as I've tried several stores without success.

A.: This color is more common for spring and summer, as fall outerwear naturally tends to be made in deeper tones. However, as clothes for holiday and resort wear come into the stores, pink may show up. Try again during November. In some stores, a buyer may be willing to special-order for you, if you ask her.

Q: Last spring I bought an expensive cotton knit suit and a cotton knit sheath dress in light beige. I'd like to get more wear out of them. Can I wear them now? How shall I accessorize them?

A: Unless there is something summery - looking about their styling, you can wear both all winter. Brown shoes would be best, and a brown bag and gloves. For your important accessory contrast try orange silk scarf tucked in the suit neckline and an orange hat.

Leopard - printed accessories are also fine for beige — a hat and bag, for instance, or a hat and scarf.

If the dress is simply styled, mass necklaces of beads in green, brown and crystal for a smash accent.

Beige has now become an all-year basic color, like black, and should be dramatically accessorized for maximum effect.

Q: My son is being married and I'm making my own dress for the wedding. Is pink too light a shade for the fall? As I am a size 18½ what kind of neckline would look best? Can light brown shoes and beaded bag be used with it?

A: Pink can be used for a wedding, but you will not get much use of such a dress until next spring. If you can make it in a darker shade, rose or royal blue, it could be used through the fall.

The neckline should be a fairly open one, to create a longer look to the neck. If your face is round, choose a square or wide V shape. Scoop necklines are good for the thin face.

Brown can be used as an accessory color if the shoes are in smooth calf or satin. But the beaded bag may be too dressy. A plain satin clutch would perhaps be better.

Accessory Cue

Simplicity is the key fashion word for girls who wear glasses. Eliminate long or fussy earrings and keep all jewelry neat and clear cut. Handsome pins are usually preferred to elaborate necklaces, unless the strands are well away from the face. Wear all the bracelets you like, however, and in line, color and texture remember that anything competing for interest with glasses frames must be concise.

YOUR BABY AND MINE

Child's Constant Tears May Be Emotional Upset

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Mothers are understandably distressed when their children cry too much. There always will be some crying by infants and children even when there is nothing terribly amiss with them. Always we must see that infants are comfortable, well-fed and lovingly attended.

The child beginning to run about cries most often because his efforts to walk, to run, to climb and to use his toys do not match his desires. He feels frustrated by his clumsiness.

The older child may also feel frustrated, though he has outgrown his tendency to cry over every little injury. But his attempts to play with children, especially older ones may meet with a poor response.

WANTS TO BE LIKED

He wants to be liked and popular and he gets teased or left out when they undertake new projects. His only recourse is to cry and cry he does, running home to mother to pour out his emotional injuries.

Sometimes he comes home without crying and then when something goes wrong at home he bursts into tears. His mother, not sensing this as a belated reaction to his inital hurt, shames him with, "cry baby, cry baby."

This is manifestly unfair. If the child is given to frequent crying spells, then he needs attention for either his physical or emotional health.

The whole set-up of the family should come in for scrutiny. Perhaps the child is being ignored for the sake of younger children. He may be overly criticized and corrected so he begins to feel inferior and unhappy. How else can he express these emotions except by aggression or by crying?

DOESN'T FEEL COMPETENT

The child whose feelings are easily hurt and who gains the label of "sensitive" is the one who doesn't feel competent to hold his own with the family or with other children. He needs encouragement for the personality he is and for the talents and skills he possesses, rather than constant humiliation for his crying.

When a child builds up confidence in himself, when he feels that his family looks upon him with pride and love, then his own sense of worthiness helps him to bear any of the blows to his prestige he may get from other children. This is the way to help him stop pitying himself and avoid use of tears as an expression of his unhappy emotions.

Just one word of warning. Sick children often are whiny, cross children. This aspect of constant crying dare not be overlooked.

Beta Sigma Phi Has Suppressed Desire Party

Another in the series of rush parties being given by Beta Pi Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi was held Tuesday night, October 11 in the home of Mrs. Roger Somsen, 3906 Forsythe Avenue.

Theme for the party was "Suppressed Desire," for which members donned costumes suggestive of their suppressions of where or what they would like to be.

Prize for the best costume was presented to Mrs. Anthony Messina, dressed as a Turkish maiden.

Members of the social committee, composed of Mrs. Woodrow Bailey, chairman, Mrs. Alvis Gossett, Mrs. Ted Carter and Mrs. George Smale, had charge of arrangements.

A salad course was served at the conclusion of the evening. Guests present were Mrs. Robert E. Schott, Mrs. Messina and Mrs. Nelwyn Reeves and members attending were Mrs. Robert Whitelaw, Mrs. Carl Johnson, Miss Joyce Lanier, Miss Sally White, Mrs. V. A. Hubka, Mrs. Somsen, Mrs. Steve Savanna, Mrs. Jim Phelps, Mrs. Walter Hinkley, Mrs. Marty Schempf, Mrs. A. A. Kemp, Mrs. Norman Smith and the social committee.

Cadeville Club Sets Election On November 2

Election of officers will be held by the Cadeville Home Demonstration club at a meeting November 2 in the home of Mrs. James Sturdivant, at 9:30 a.m.

Mrs. J. R. Haynes was hostess for the October 5 meeting of the club, which was presided over by Mrs. Sturdivant.

Plans were made for erecting a booth at the Parish fair and a report of the recent council meeting was given by Mrs. C. R. Wilder.

Mrs. Ellis Fowler read a poem, "The Cluttered Years," after which Mrs. Lee Wilder gave a report on health and safety and home management. Mrs. C. R. Wilder, nutrition leader, gave a demonstration on "Simple Time Saving Meals," during which an oven luncheon was prepared with the assistance of the hostess and served to the group.

Those present were Mrs. W. O. Roberts, Mrs. James Sturdivant, Mrs. S. M. Wood, Mrs. Lee Wilder, Mrs. Ellis Fowler, Mrs. C. R. Wilder, Mrs. M. Bagwell and Mrs. J. R. Haynes.

Hosiery Accents Costume Hues

Color is the watchword for fall hosiery, ranging in spectrum from deep purple to pale bronze, to accent every costume in the wardrobe. And hosiery gets a further lift from new textures.

Hosiery mills are turning out stockings to blend and complement each ensemble, from glittering lacey effects for the most formal occasions to casual textured hose for culottes and tweeds.

Shades for daytime wear are seen in pale lavender, olive green blackened browns and pale beiges. For evening wear there are darker shades of the basic colors plus glittering gold and silver. And for casual wear there will be textures and brown shades with a blackened over tone.

More Clams To Appear On Dinner Table

By ALTON BLAKESLEE

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Coming for your dinner table—more clams on the half shell, from the Gulf of Mexico.

This is the promise in new experiments in mariculture, or sea-farming. For it appears that northern hard clams can be seeded and grown profitably in warm, nutritious Gulf waters, augmenting the nation's supply of clams.

The experiments are described by Dr. R. W. Menzel of the Florida State University Oceanographic Institute, along with some lore about clams.

For one thing, most clams start life as males, but many change to female, and the sexes conveniently wind up about 50-50 when they are adult.

(Many oysters, he adds, do the same kind of sex switch. One species, in fact, alternates from female to male and back to female.)

If you order Cherrystone or Little Neck clams, you're getting the same thing — the only difference is size and locality where they grew. For all these clams belong to the same species, Mercenaria mercenaria.

Dr. Menzel is interested in sea farming as one method ultimately of meeting an expanding population's need for more food. Seacoasts offer millions of acres of additional land suitable for mariculture.

From Dr. V. L. Loosanoff, director of the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service Laboratory, Milford, Conn., he obtained 300,000 tiny young clams, ranging up to one-fifth of an inch in size. Dr. Loosanoff has perfected a technique of spawning and rearing baby clams. The entire shipment was flown down in a briefcase.

Dr. Menzel planted them at various depths at Alligator Harbor, Fla., where the Oceanographic Institute has a Marine laboratory.

Within a year, on the average, the clams had grown to nearly 1½-inch length, and two inches by two years. Some reached three inches.

Apparently, he reports, two-inch clams for half-shell consumption can be grown at a concentration of 50 per square foot. This would mean over 2,500 bushels per acre over a two-year period, and one man could probably farm the entire lot.

A big problem, though, is predators, especially blue crabs which pick on small clams.

THE HOME SHIFT

Fall Garden Season Here

By MILDRED SWIFT

October, cool and clear, is the beginning of the winter garden season. So many of the jobs we start now carry over into the winter.

LET'S START

Tulip bulbs are in. Put these bulbs in the refrigerator 30 to 90 days before planting. Plant from the last of November through December. Plant hyacinth bulbs any time now, through December.

We've already talked about planting the narcissus group of bulbs. Let me warn you, don't let fresh commercial fertilizer come in contact with the bulbs. Work the fertilizer in several weeks before planting. Bone meal is best to use with bulbs. It can be worked in the soil at planting time as it does not burn.

Remember amaryllis and lycoris bulbs should be planted with necks above ground.

October is the time to dig and store caladium bulbs. These should be taken up before the first frost. When the large leaves begin to fade and droop, dig up the plant with the foliage intact. Shake off the excess dirt from the bulbs and spread the plants in a shaded dry place for about three weeks. After the plants are dry, pull off the dead leaves. These can be stored in old nylon stockings, mesh bags or boxes of well dried peat moss or sand. Lots of people store them satisfactorily without the sand or peat. Store in attic or other dry place which is warm enough to keep the bulbs from freezing. Wait until planting time next spring to divide the bulbs.

MORE

Work up rose beds, using some humus. Work the 8-8-8 in now. You plant roses the last of January or February. October is a good month to make hydrangea and hibiscus cuttings.

Pansy plants can be set out now, as soon as they come in at the nurseries and seed stores.

SEED TO PLANT

Plant these seed this month: ageratum, candytuft, coreopsis, pinks, gaillardia, gypsophila, calendula, verbena, alyssum, foxglove, hollyhock, stock, California poppy, Texas blue bonnet, larkspur, poppy, cornflower, sweet peas.

Some bulbs to plant are: agapanthus, amaryllis, daylily, ginger lily, Dutch iris, narcissus, scilla, anemone, crinum, oxalis, calla, daffodil jonquil ranunculus, sternbergia, watsonia.

STILL MORE

Snap dragons are rather uncertain to plant from seed. You're safer to buy the plants when they come to the nursery. The Dutch iris are very beautiful and bloom in early spring. Their colors are white, blue, yellow. Remember scilla likes an acid soil.

A BEAUTY

The red leaf barberry is a spring ornamental shrub whose pleasing growth habit and colorful foliage add beauty to the landscape nine months of the year. Also, the branches are attractive when cut and arranged in the house.

The plant grows fairly fast, requires little care except for an occasional trimming and shaping which can be done any time of the year. One of the nicest things, the plant seems to be free from insects and diseases. They need no protection in the winter. This barberry loses its leaves in the winter.

There's a dwarf barberry growing only about 12 inches high, but its a slow grower.

DISBUD

Disbud exhibition dahlias and chrysanthemums. That means remove all of the bloom buds in one cluster except one. The idea is to grow a few exceptionally fine flowers. All of the strength of each stem goes into that one flower. The flower will be much larger, generally have a better color and finer stems.

HOUSE PLANTS

It's time to give some thought to your ornamental house plants that have been out in the summer sun. Before bringing these inside for the winter, check for any bugs or insects that may be clinging to them. If insecticides need to be applied, follow the directions on the container for house plants. Apply this out of doors. Dipping in a chemical and water mixture is sometimes more convenient than spraying. To avoid spilling the soil while dipping the plant, hold paper or a cardboard over the top of the pot.

An easy way to control a light infestation of aphids on house plants is to use a cotton swab saturated with your insecticide. (Malathion or nicotine spray). Some insects can be washed from broad - leafed plants with a lukewarm spray of water or by washing with soapy water and a soft brush or cloth.

Keep leaves of houseplants clean. There's more dust in the air than meets the eye.

EVENING STYLES

The look for evening is going to be brilliant. According to those who make the styles not only will they be long on dazzle, glittering with glitter, but they'll cover up. In fact the covered up evening dress has never been more in. Also, in the picture will be the sweater-y look. These new sweaters come in anything from silks to sequins or fabulous bead effects.

Evening jewels have never been so triumphantly untimed. Necklaces are long and dangling. As for earrings in the evening, wear them big-long and dazzling.

And — don't complain because you've lost an earring — particularly if it's the long, heavy bejeweled type. You can wear its mate — alone — and be in the height of fashion these fall evenings.

MORE ON STYLES

So many of the new clothes for afternoon and evening wear are fairly simple. Because of this, jewelry will be more important than ever. The lavishly beaded or embroidered dresses which are seen so often these days have plenty of glitter of their own.

The new jewelry pieces are big and bold, with emphasis on color. Gold is more popular than ever. Large stones, longer necklace lengths, hair jewelry are all getting the spotlight.

Black is a jewelry color this year, especially in glistening jet. Nothing recalls the glamor of the 30's so strongly as the long, drop black earrings.

"Spit" curls and bangs are showing up in the short, short hair cuts.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Your Open House TV programs for next week are: Monday, Sue E. Cupit will show us how to set permanent creases in resin finished cottons; Tuesday, Jesse Peterson will make flagstones for walks or patios; Wednesday, flower arrangements with John Wright; Thursday, marketing with Mildred; Friday, cotton style show

See you next Sunday.

New Stamps Show Beauty Of Islands

The islands of Trinidad and Tobago, situated off the coast of South America and discovered by Columbus in 1498, have issued a set of 14 new stamps featuring beautiful local scenes. Each design includes a medallion portrait of Queen Elizabeth II and the St. Edward's Crown.

Trinidad is the most southern of the archipelago known as the West Indies. The island was colonized by Spain in 1532 and remained in Spanish possession until ceded to Great Britain in 1802. Tobago, off the northeastern coast of Trinidad, has been an island ward of Trinidad since 1888.

The main stamp designs are as follows: 1 cent — Cipriani Memorial; 2 cents — Queen's Hall; 5 cents — Whitehall; 6 cents — Treasury Building; 8 cents —Governor General's House; 10 cents —General Hospital; 12 cents — oil refinery; 15 cents — The Crest; 25 cents — The Scarlet Ibis; 35 cents — Pitch Lake; 50 cents — Moslem Mosque; 60 cents —Anthurium Lily; $1.20 — The Humming Bird; $4.80 — Map of Trinidad and Tobago.

Mahatma Ghandi will be honored on U. S. "Champion of Liberty" postage stamps (4 cents and 8 cents) on next Jan. 26, reports Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield. The stamps will be issued At Washington, D. C., to coincide with India's national holiday, Republic Day. Further details including first day cover information will be announced in this column soon.

Israel's 25 agorot stamp commemorating the National Stamp Exhibition in Tel Aviv will be dark olive and olive grey. They will be printed in sheets of 20 with five descriptive tabs adjacent to the bottom row. The 50 agorot souvenir sheet will be placed on sale only at the exhibition post office but your local stamp dealer should be able to supply you with them.

Two new stamp sets have been issued by Poland. A 2.50 zlotys stamp honors the centenary of the birth of Ignacy Paderewski, musician and statesman. A seven value set is for the "Altar of St. Mary's Church in Cracow." The values are 20 gr., 30 gr., 40 gr., 60 gr., 2.50 zl., and 5.60 zl.

Paraguay has issued its second World Refugee Year set. It is similar in design to the set issued earlier this year but in different colors. The values are 25 c, 50 c, 75 c, 1.50 g, and 3 g. Future sets from Paraguay will honor the United Nations, "Our Lady of Asuncion" Catholic University, the new Paraguay merchant fleet and the International Bridge between Paraguay and Brazil.

Fairy Tales, Music Aid In Tot Denistry

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI)—The sounds of music, fairy tales and rushing water now are helping to extract the pain from many a child's visit to the dentist.

The sounds—acoustic analgesia—reach the tiny patients via stereo tape recordings beamed into their brains through two huge, padded earphones.

A child in the dentist's chair with such gear on his head looks like a pint-sized astronaut headed for the moon. The child manipulates two knobs — one in each hand—which control the volume of the sounds.

He's working, in other words, while the dentist is working on his teeth.

Dr. Jerome S. Mittelman, a New York dentist, reports on the use of acoustic analgesia in the current issue of Dental Survey, a professional journal.

PAIN KILLERS

The big thing about the technique is that in many cases it makes it possible to avoid using injectable pain killers — and the needle.

"When the dental work starts to hurt," Dr. Mittelman said in an interview, "the patient turns the knob that controls the sound of rushing water.

"It's an electronic sound that apes the sound of a great waterfall, say Niagara Falls. From what we have learned, this sound appears to lessen the patient's awareness of pain."

It's also figured that the juvenile story or fairy tale coming through the other earphone helps to distract the child, relaxing him.

Dr. Mittelman said the new-type analgesia — pain - killer — seems to work best with children who are five or older. With younger children there is reluctance to view the earphones as friendly, helpful devices and the children sometimes become alarmed.

The dentist said that the effectiveness of the auditory analgesia varies from individual to individual and that the success to a great extent depends on how much the patient understands what is going on.

"Results are most gratifying when patients are fully aware that they are largely responsible, through their cooperation, for successful elimination of pain," he said.

Dr. Mittelman said that the acoustic analgesia helps to solve dental problems encountered when patients cannot take the injectable type pain killers.

Trenton Group Schedules Talk By Missionary

A missionary from Korea, the Rev. Parker Marler, will be speaker at the quarterly associational meeting of the Trenton's Women's Missionary Union, October 19 at Ridge Avenue Baptist Church, West Monroe.

The meeting will get under way at 9 a.m., said group president, Mrs. R. E. Wilson, and continue until noon when lunch will be served by the host church.

Nursery facilities will be provided for children.

CAMERA NOTES

Style Changes Seen In Camera Equipment

SHUTTER BUGS: What's the first thing photo columnists do when they attend an international camera fair? Why they take pictures of each other, as this group is doing upon arrival in Cologne for Photokina 1960.

COLOGNE (AP) — The Leitz company, famed for its Leica cameras, has entered the home movie field for the first time.

Its 8mm motion picture camera was one of the features of Photokina 1960, the world's biggest photo fair, held every two years on the banks of the Rhine.

Leitz introduced two uniquely designed cameras with: fully automatic electric - eye operation, reflex through - the - lens viewing and focusing, a battery-powered motor drive. The new cameras are: the Leicina 8S which accepts interchangeable lenses via a plug - in bayonet mount; the Leicina 8V, a zoom camera with an f-1.8 varifocal lens whose unprecedented range from 8 to 48mm is a magnification of six times.

The unusual 13-element zoom lens is a joint development with the Jos. Schneider lensmaker and will be available for other 8 mm movie cameras in a C-mount.

Both Leicinas feature a radically different body design with a folding hand grip, thumb-operated release button, and a steadying - bar to be pressed against the forehead to prevent camera motion, especially in panning.

Leitz also unveiled the world's fastest wide - angle lens. It's an f-1.4 35 mm Summilux to be produced by their Canadian subsidiary for the Leica M2 and M3.

Another firm that made news at Photokina 1960 was Franke & Heidecke, makers of the well-known Rolleiflex. Automatic electric - eye operation which invaded the 35mm camera field, will now appear on the 2¼x2¼ twin-lens reflex camera in their new Rollei-magi 6 x 6. Filter factors are coupled with the automatic exposure control mechanism. For flash or time exposures, however, the camera is shifted from automatic control. Normally 12 pictures are produced but with a mask, the camera yields 16 pictures: 1⅝ x 2⅛ or 1⅝ inches square.

The firm also branched out into another field by producing its first slide projector — the Automatic Universal Rollei projector. It's the first machine that will accommodate all slide sizes in any type of mount arranged in any order. The mixed group can be shown in any forward or reverse sequence automatically or by remote control.

The design innovation which makes these features possible is the use of two different slide magazine tracks on the same machine. One holds the larger size slides and the other holds the smaller slides.

This projector is good news for camera fans who have several cameras of different sizes or who may change their camera in the future and for schools or camera clubs which have to show slides from many sources.

Zeiss - Ikon's contribution was aimed at making it easier for those photographers who find it necessary to change film types while shooting from color to black-and-white or from slow to fast film, etc. They came up with a workable interchangeable magazine back that fits their Contarex and Contaflex cameras. Changing to a different back with another type of film is accomplished without losing a frame and lets one camera take the place of two or more without sacrificing film.

They also uncovered — literally — the largest piece of precisioned optical glass attached to a miniature camera that I've seen for some time. It was a 500 mm f-4.5 Zeiss mirror objective lens. This is an extremely long focal length and unusually high speed for a 35mm single lens reflex camera, I have been told. It would be great for taking sports or nature study pictures in poor light.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Plant Symbol Of Chivalry

By MARY JARDINE

It is interesting and sometimes romantic to delve into where our garden flowers originated. Today we will talk of iris. King Louis VII of France chose a common European wildflower as his emblem when he marched to the Crusades. His followers called it "fleu de Louis" a name later shortened to fleur-de-lis.

The plant symbolized chivalry because its leaf was a sword and its heart a lily. In reality this "lily" of France was an iris, but in those days almost any pretty flower was referred to as a "lily." The flowers of Louis were named Iris (from the Greek for "rainbow") because of their many colors. Greek legend claims Juno actually created these flowers to honor Iris, goddess of the rainbow. Hence the ancient poets called them "children of gods" and "ground rainbows."

BEARDED

The bearded (miscalled German) Iris guards its nectaries from ants with hairy "beards." European parents of this modern hybrid long have been cultivated for their roots. It was believed to be a cure for ulcers, acne and loose teeth. Men would chew fragrant dried orrisroot (iris roots) to remove garlic and tobacco smells from their breath. Orrisroot is still used in perfumes and for flavoring.

The huge Japanese iris, almost a foot wide, results from centuries of devoted cultivation. Oriental families would adopt a single strain, passing the improved plants on as a family heritage. The more recent Dutch iris was developed commercially in Holland from a Mediterranean species. Both of these flowers have the aristocratic "mark of the iris," flattened styles that resemble petals and protect the pollen and nectar.

STOPPED AT EQUATOR

It is interesting to note that no native iris grow south of the equator, through they circle the globe in northern latitudes from cold Siberia to southern Louisiana. As you would expect the Siberian iris is especially hardy in northern gardens.

The crested dwarf iris of southeastern and central U. S. prefers warmer climates and is in high favor for rock gardens. The lovely low growing flowers have fluted ridges or crests on their three large sepals. These obligingly point the way to the nectar for the passing bees. Another crested species, the roof iris, has been planted for centuries by the Japanese on the ridges of their thatched roofs.

Wherever iris grow wild, they have been favorite flowers. The Egyptians copied them in architectural designs. Babylonians deemed them a symbol of royalty. They were cultivated in the gardens of ancient Pompei and Persia. Early Mohammedans considered their native iris a money symbol and planted them on the graves so the dead would have wealth in the next world. Clovis, king of the Franks, chose the iris for his emblem, but its greatest fame came as France's fleur-de-lis. This still appears as the symbol of north on compasses and maps.

SOUTHERN GARDNER

Sunflower Is Unusual

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Once in awhile, these days, one sees what is undoubtedly one of the strangest plants native to Texas and states north of it. This strange plant is a sunflower 10 or 12 feet tall with little narrow leaves so thick on the stem that the whole plant looks like a green Afghan hound! You may find it towering over some back fence in an old garden somewhere. The name is Helianthus orgyalis, and, in spite of the fact that it looks like something an artist might have dreamt up after an all - night orgy, it is really beautiful. If you want something very tall and spectacular for a corner in your garden, this is it.

BIG YEAR

This has been a big year for sunflowers of all kinds. The big Jerusalem artichokes never were more showy, and the greenish yellow flowers of Helianthus mollis, that big one that grows everywhere in all kinds of impossible places along roads, are still to be seen now in October.

This fine wild sunflower has leaves that are very rough to the touch when you rub them between your fingers. If you have a spot where you grow wild flowers that will take care of themselves, this one is at home in sun or even in part shade. The English, who appreciate a lot of our wild flowers more than we do, grow it in their gardens very effectively.

One of the most popular sunflowers has always been the double perennial that many people call "Golden Glow," and the first thing gardeners say, when this plant is mentioned is, "Well, I used to grow Golden Glow, but it went single, and I threw it away." When it gets very crowded and needs dividing, this perennial will sometimes go single. If the people who threw it away would look on the city dump, they would see that it had doubled up again with some new soil! Perhaps this is why one so often sees Golden Glow on dumps in the cans and junk.

For many years, your columnist has been singing the praises of those golden yellow crocus-like flowers of September and October that are not crocuses at all, but in the Amaryllis family. Gardeners are lazy about ordering plants, and so, year after year, they come and rave over the golden show of sternbergias in my test gardens, and say they "must have them." Even lazy gardeners may now have them without ordering them, for the dime stores have them! They call them "yellow fall crocus" or something like that. Here is hoping that people will buy every single one of them, and make the south a golden place in early autumn.

Orient's Ear Tuned To Odd Sound Notes

TOKYO (AP)—You will never convince a Japanese that a cow says moo. It says moe in Japan, and that is that.

And, a cat says niago instead of meow, and dogs bark wung, wung.

Its all the way sounds are heard and repeated. Virtually everything sounds differently than it does to an American ear.

Automobile horns, for instance, sound boo boo, not beep beep, or honk honk. Church bells toll kang kang, not ding dong. And clocks say katchi katchi, not tick tock.

Plant Few Crocuses

By AUDREY DAWSON

If you, Mrs. Gardener, want early blooms in your garden, be sure to plant a few crocuses. They are small and should, therefore, be set only about two inches deep and two inches apart. Group several dozen of them in borders or other places where desired. They will die down early in the spring and come back year after year.

If you want blooms in the house from Chrustmas to late winter, plant bulbs in glass bowls. Make a planting every two or three weeks from now until late January. Fill the bowls half or more full of pebbles or small rocks. Space bulbs among the pebbles, not allowing them to touch.

Put in sufficient water just to reach the bottom - third or fourth of the bulbs - then add more water as needed. The bottom of the bulbs must touch water all times. Place your bowls in a closet or dark place three or four weeks or until roots start to grow. Then, place, preferably near a window where sunshine will reach them a few hours a day. Ideal temperature is 60 to 70 degrees. A cooler or hotter temperature will not produce the best blooms.

NEW PRODUCTS

The manufacturer of the original liquefier blender has announced the addition of a super de luxe model with a handler container. To make it possible to blend heavier loads and heavier consistencies, this model has been equipped with a more powerful motor at both high and low speeds.

One of our big corporations has announced that it has received license to use santized antibacterial additives in the manufacture of rayon and acetate fibers. It is said that fabrics made with this yarn will inhibit the growth of bacteria which cause perspiration odor.

A new gas clothes dryer is on market which has an automatic sprinkler that performs the clothes dampening job. Water is placed in a built - in dispenser and the clothes are tossed in drum to evenly disperse the water. Another feature about the clothes sprinkler - the directions for use are printed on it.

SHIRT FASHIONS

The sport shirt designers have gone all out for styling the causual shirt for fall. Take a look at the new collars - these are frequently smaller in shape. Some of the newer button - down type have less of a roll and many of the spread collars have been pared down too. There is also an increased number of pullover models for fall.

The fabrics are all dazzling-ranging from broadcloths through challis - like rayons to hopsack weaves. The traditional fabrics include madias type plaids district checks, herringbone weaves and the classic checks, plaids and stripes.

HOMEMAKING HINTS

Do you, Mrs. Homemaker, have porcelain cups and saucers stained with tea and coffee. To do the best job of cleaning, make a paste of baking soda and rub onto stained portion. This will do the job quickly for you.

It's apple baking time - so try this. Lightly pierce the skin of the apple around the middle with the tip of a paring knife. As the apple bakes the upper part will lift up like a "top hat".

JUST TALKING

Some researchers say pizza surpassed hotdogs in popularity during 1959. By the way to say "pizza pie" is being repetitive, for "pizza" means pie in Italian.

Many homemakers ask why are there so many soaps and detergents on the market today. The reason is that each is tailored for a purpose and no one product is best for all laundrying. The all-purpose products are for the family wash - light - duty ones are for fine fabrics that are lightly soiled.

Fall Garden Season Here

By MILDRED SWIFT

October, cool and clear, is the beginning of the winter garden season. So many of the jobs we start now carry over into the winter.

LET'S START

Tulip bulbs are in. Put these bulbs in the refrigerator 30 to 90 days before planting. Plant from the last of November through December. Plant hyacinth bulbs any time now, through December.

We've already talked about planting the narcissus group of bulbs. Let me warn you, don't let fresh commercial fertilizer come in contact with the bulbs. Work the fertilizer in several weeks before planting. Bone meal is best to use with bulbs. It can be worked in the soil at planting time as it does not burn.

Remember amaryllis and lycoris bulbs should be planted with necks above ground.

October is the time to dig and store caladium bulbs. These should be taken up before the first frost. When the large leaves begin to fade and droop, dig up the plant with the foliage intact. Shake off the excess dirt from the bulbs and spread the plants in a shaded dry place for about three weeks. After the plants are dry, pull off the dead leaves. These can be stored in old nylon stockings, mesh bags or boxes of well dried peat moss or sand. Lots of people store them satisfactorily without the sand or peat. Store in attic or other dry place which is warm enough to keep the bulbs from freezing. Wait until planting time next spring to divide the bulbs.

MORE

Work up rose beds, using some humus. Work the 8-8-8 in now. You plant roses the last of January or February. October is a good month to make hydrangea and hibiscus cuttings.

Pansy plants can be set out now, as soon as they come in at the nurseries and seed stores.

SEED TO PLANT

Plant these seed this month: ageratum, candytuft, coreopsis, pinks, gaillardia, gypsophila, calendula, verbena, alyssum, foxglove, hollyhock, stock, California poppy, Texas blue bonnet, larkspur, poppy, cornflower, sweet peas.

Some bulbs to plant are: agapanthus, amaryllis, daylily, ginger lily, Dutch iris, narcissus, scilla, anemone, crinum, oxalis, calla, daffodil jonquil ranunculus, sternbergia, watsonia.

STILL MORE

Snap dragons are rather uncertain to plant from seed. You're safer to buy the plants when they come to the nursery. The Dutch iris are very beautiful and bloom in early spring. Their colors are white, blue, yellow. Remember scilla likes an acid soil.

A BEAUTY

The red leaf barberry is a spring ornamental shrub whose pleasing growth habit and colorful foliage add beauty to the landscape nine months of the year. Also, the branches are attractive when cut and arranged in the house.

The plant grows fairly fast, requires little care except for an occasional trimming and shaping which can be done any time of the year. One of the nicest things, the plant seems to be free from insects and diseases. They need no protection in the winter. This barberry loses its leaves in the winter.

There's a dwarf barberry growing only about 12 inches high, but its a slow grower.

DISBUD

Disbud exhibition dahlias and chrysanthemums. That means remove all of the bloom buds in one cluster except one. The idea is to grow a few exceptionally fine flowers. All of the strength of each stem goes into that one flower. The flower will be much larger, generally have a better color and finer stems.

HOUSE PLANTS

It's time to give some thought to your ornamental house plants that have been out in the summer sun. Before bringing these inside for the winter, check for any bugs or insects that may be clinging to them. If insecticides need to be applied, follow the directions on the container for house plants. Apply this out of doors. Dipping in a chemical and water mixture is sometimes more convenient than spraying. To avoid spilling the soil while dipping the plant, hold paper or a cardboard over the top of the pot.

An easy way to control a light infestation of aphids on house plants is to use a cotton swab saturated with your insecticide. (Malathion or nicotine spray). Some insects can be washed from broad - leafed plants with a lukewarm spray of water or by washing with soapy water and a soft brush or cloth.

Keep leaves of houseplants clean. There's more dust in the air than meets the eye.

EVENING STYLES

The look for evening is going to be brilliant. According to those who make the styles not only will they be long on dazzle, glittering with glitter, but they'll cover up. In fact the covered up evening dress has never been more in. Also, in the picture will be the sweater-y look. These new sweaters come in anything from silks to sequins or fabulous bead effects.

Evening jewels have never been so triumphantly untimed. Necklaces are long and dangling. As for earrings in the evening, wear them big-long and dazzling.

And — don't complain because you've lost an earring — particularly if it's the long, heavy bejeweled type. You can wear its mate — alone — and be in the height of fashion these fall evenings.

MORE ON STYLES

So many of the new clothes for afternoon and evening wear are fairly simple. Because of this, jewelry will be more important than ever. The lavishly beaded or embroidered dresses which are seen so often these days have plenty of glitter of their own.

The new jewelry pieces are big and bold, with emphasis on color. Gold is more popular than ever. Large stones, longer necklace lengths, hair jewelry are all getting the spotlight.

Black is a jewelry color this year, especially in glistening jet. Nothing recalls the glamor of the 30's so strongly as the long, drop black earrings.

"Spit" curls and bangs are showing up in the short, short hair cuts.

New Stamps Show Beauty Of Islands

The islands of Trinidad and Tobago, situated off the coast of South America and discovered by Columbus in 1498, have issued a set of 14 new stamps featuring beautiful local scenes. Each design includes a medallion portrait of Queen Elizabeth II and the St. Edward's Crown.

Trinidad is the most southern of the archipelago known as the West Indies. The island was colonized by Spain in 1532 and remained in Spanish possession until ceded to Great Britain in 1802. Tobago, off the northeastern coast of Trinidad, has been an island ward of Trinidad since 1888.

The main stamp designs are as follows: 1 cent — Cipriani Memorial; 2 cents — Queen's Hall; 5 cents — Whitehall; 6 cents — Treasury Building; 8 cents —Governor General's House; 10 cents —General Hospital; 12 cents — oil refinery; 15 cents — The Crest; 25 cents — The Scarlet Ibis; 35 cents — Pitch Lake; 50 cents — Moslem Mosque; 60 cents —Anthurium Lily; $1.20 — The Humming Bird; $4.80 — Map of Trinidad and Tobago.

Mahatma Ghandi will be honored on U. S. "Champion of Liberty" postage stamps (4 cents and 8 cents) on next Jan. 26, reports Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield. The stamps will be issued At Washington, D. C., to coincide with India's national holiday, Republic Day. Further details including first day cover information will be announced in this column soon.

Israel's 25 agorot stamp commemorating the National Stamp Exhibition in Tel Aviv will be dark olive and olive grey. They will be printed in sheets of 20 with five descriptive tabs adjacent to the bottom row. The 50 agorot souvenir sheet will be placed on sale only at the exhibition post office but your local stamp dealer should be able to supply you with them.

Two new stamp sets have been issued by Poland. A 2.50 zlotys stamp honors the centenary of the birth of Ignacy Paderewski, musician and statesman. A seven value set is for the "Altar of St. Mary's Church in Cracow." The values are 20 gr., 30 gr., 40 gr., 60 gr., 2.50 zl., and 5.60 zl.

Paraguay has issued its second World Refugee Year set. It is similar in design to the set issued earlier this year but in different colors. The values are 25 c, 50 c, 75 c, 1.50 g, and 3 g. Future sets from Paraguay will honor the United Nations, "Our Lady of Asuncion" Catholic University, the new Paraguay merchant fleet and the International Bridge between Paraguay and Brazil.

The bearded (miscalled German) Iris guards its nectaries from ants with hairy "beards." European parents of this modern hybrid long have been cultivated for their roots. It was believed to be a cure for ulcers, acne and loose teeth. Men would chew fragrant dried orrisroot (iris roots) to remove garlic and tobacco smells from their breath. Orrisroot is still used in perfumes and for flavoring.

The huge Japanese iris, almost a foot wide, results from centuries of devoted cultivation. Oriental families would adopt a single strain, passing the improved plants on as a family heritage. The more recent Dutch iris was developed commercially in Holland from a Mediterranean species. Both of these flowers have the aristocratic "mark of the iris," flattened styles that resemble petals and protect the pollen and nectar.

STOPPED AT EQUATOR

It is interesting to note that no native iris grow south of the equator, though they circle the globe in northern latitudes from cold Siberia to southern Louisiana. As you would expect the Siberian iris is especially hardy in northern gardens.

The crested dwarf iris of southeastern and central U. S. prefers warmer climates and is in high favor for rock gardens. The lovely low growing flowers have fluted ridges or crests on their three large sepals. These obligingly point the way to the nectar for the passing bees. Another crested species, the roof iris, has been planted for centuries by the Japanese on the ridges of their thatched roofs.

Wherever iris grow wild, they have been favorite flowers. The Egyptians copied them in architectural designs. Babylonians deemed them a symbol of royalty. They were cultivated in the gardens of ancient Pompei and Persia. Early Mohammedans considered their native iris a money symbol and planted them on the graves so the dead would have wealth in the next world. Clovis, king of the Franks, chose the iris for his emblem, but its greatest fame came as France's fleur-de-lis. This still appears as the symbol of north on compasses and maps.

SOUTHERN GARDNER

Sunflower Is Unusual

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Once in awhile, these days, one sees what is undoubtedly one of the strangest plants native to Texas and states north of it. This strange plant is a sunflower 10 or 12 feet tall with little narrow leaves so thick on the stem that the whole plant looks like a green Afghan hound! You may find it towering over some back fence in an old garden somewhere. The name is Helianthus orgyalis, and, in spite of the fact that it looks like something an artist might have dreamt up after an all - night orgy, it is really beautiful. If you want something very tall and spectacular for a corner in your garden, this is it.

BIG YEAR

This has been a big year for sunflowers of all kinds. The big Jerusalem artichokes never were more showy, and the greenish yellow flowers of Helianthus mollis, that big one that grows everywhere in all kinds of impossible places along roads, are still to be seen now in October.

This fine wild sunflower has leaves that are very rough to the touch when you rub them between your fingers. If you have a spot where you grow wild flowers that will take care of themselves, this one is at home in sun or even in part shade. The English, who appreciate a lot of our wild flowers more than we do, grow it in their gardens very effectively.

One of the most popular sunflowers has always been the double perennial that many people call "Golden Glow," and the first thing gardeners say, when this plant is mentioned is, "Well, I used to grow Golden Glow, but it went single, and I threw it away." When it gets very crowded and needs dividing, this perennial will sometimes go single. If the people who threw it away would look on the city dump, they would see that it had doubled up again with some new soil! Perhaps this is why one so often sees Golden Glow on dumps in the cans and junk.

For many years, your columnist has been singing the praises of those golden yellow crocus-like flowers of September and October that are not crocuses at all, but in the Amaryllis family. Gardeners are lazy about ordering plants, and so, year after year, they come and rave over the golden show of sternbergias in my test gardens, and say they "must have them." Even lazy gardeners may now have them without ordering them, for the dime stores have them! They call them "yellow fall crocus" or something like that. Here is hoping that people will buy every single one of them, and make the south a golden place in early autumn.

Orient's Ear Tuned To Odd Sound Notes

TOKYO (AP)—You will never convince a Japanese that a cow says moo. It says moe in Japan, and that is that.

And, a cat says niago instead of meow, and dogs bark wung, wung.

Its all the way sounds are heard and repeated. Virtually everything sounds differently than it does to an American ear.

Automobile horns, for instance, sound boo boo, not beep beep, or honk honk. Church bells toll kang kang, not ding dong. And clocks say katchi katchi, not tick tock.

Plant Few Crocuses

By AUDREY DAWSON

If you, Mrs. Gardener, want early blooms in your garden, be sure to plant a few crocuses. They are small and should, therefore, be set only about two inches deep and two inches apart. Group several dozen of them in borders or other places where desired. They will die down early in the spring and come back year after year.

If you want blooms in the house from Chrustmas to late winter, plant bulbs in glass bowls. Make a planting every two or three weeks from now until late January. Fill the bowls half or more full of pebbles or small rocks. Space bulbs among the pebbles, not allowing them to touch.

Put in sufficient water just to reach the bottom - third or fourth of the bulbs - then add more water as needed. The bottom of the bulbs must touch water all times. Place your bowls in a closet or dark place three or four weeks or until roots start to grow. Then, place, preferably near a window where sunshine will reach them a few hours a day. Ideal temperature is 60 to 70 degrees. A cooler or hotter temperature will not produce the best blooms.

NEW PRODUCTS

The manufacturer of the original liquefier blender has announced the addition of a super de luxe model with a handler container. To make it possible to blend heavier loads and heavier consistencies, this model has been equipped with a more powerful motor at both high and low speeds.

One of our big corporations has announced that it has received license to use santized antibacterial additives in the manufacture of rayon and acetate fibers. It is said that fabrics made with this yarn will inhibit the growth of bacteria which cause perspiration odor.

A new gas clothes dryer is on market which has an automatic sprinkler that performs the clothes dampening job. Water is placed in a built - in dispenser and the clothes are tossed in drum to evenly disperse the water. Another feature about the clothes sprinkler - the directions for use are printed on it.

SHIRT FASHIONS

The sport shirt designers have gone all out for styling the causual shirt for fall. Take a look at the new collars - these are frequently smaller in shape. Some of the newer button - down type have less of a roll and many of the spread collars have been pared down too. There is also an increased number of pullover models for fall.

The fabrics are all dazzling-ranging from broadcloths through challis - like rayons to hopsack weaves. The traditional fabrics include madias type plaids district checks, herringbone weaves and the classic checks, plaids and stripes.

HOMEMAKING HINTS

Do you, Mrs. Homemaker, have porcelain cups and saucers stained with tea and coffee. To do the best job of cleaning, make a paste of baking soda and rub onto stained portion. This will do the job quickly for you.

It's apple baking time - so try this. Lightly pierce the skin of the apple around the middle with the tip of a paring knife. As the apple bakes the upper part will lift up like a "top hat".

JUST TALKING

Some researchers say pizza surpassed hotdogs in popularity during 1959. By the way to say "pizza pie" is being repetitive, for "pizza" means pie in Italian.

Many homemakers ask why are there so many soaps and detergents on the market today. The reason is that each is tailored for a purpose and no one product is best for all laundrying. The all-purpose products are for the family wash - light - duty ones are for fine fabrics that are lightly soiled.

SURVEY SHOWS

College Education Costs Now Higher

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP)—One year of college education for a boy or girl costs an average of $1,500 out of pocket—and although more than half of the nation's college students earn a part of their expenses, 21 per cent of parents find "real difficulty" in financing such educations.

This is one of the significant findings of a University of Michigan survey on "How People Pay for College."

Conducted by the university's survey research center for the U. S. Office of Education, the study examines the effect of college expenses on a family-by-family basis.

The authors of the study, John B. Lansing, Thomas Lorimer and Chikashi Moriguchi, compiled their findings from interviews with 2,700 families across the United States.

The results, they say, reveal that now, more than ever before, American parents are counting on sending their children to college and are doing some hard-headed financial planning to get them there.

"There seems to be little question that parents are now taking more adequate provision for the future than did the parents of children who have recently been to college," the report says.

But..."the experience of many parents whose children recently attended college was one of financial difficulty. Hence, there is substantial room for improvement in planning ahead."

Only one family in 10, the survey shows, expects financial aid from inheritances, gifts or scholarships, and four out of five expect the student to help pay his way with a summer or part-time job.

It's an increasingly common pattern for some additional member of the family — usually the mother — to go to work to help support the student. The survey shows this happening in one of every five families.

This is regarded as normal, the researchers report, and parents generally prefer this or almost any method of finance to borrowing.

The average annual cost of $1,550 was derived from survey results which found the expenses for unmarried undergraduates ranging from $950 to $2,450.

It indicated costs have risen since 1952-53, when the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare estimated an average annual cost of $1,385.

Most parents contribute between $500 and $1,500 annually—from whatever source—toward the education.

Sues Robert Mitchum

NEW YORK (AP) — Arthur Reich, a New York attorney, filed a $250,000 damage suit Friday against movie star Robert Mitchum, charging that the actor beat him up last June 26 on a London street corner. No motive was indicated.

Mitchum's attorney, John E. Faigney, told newsmen that the actor denies the charges.

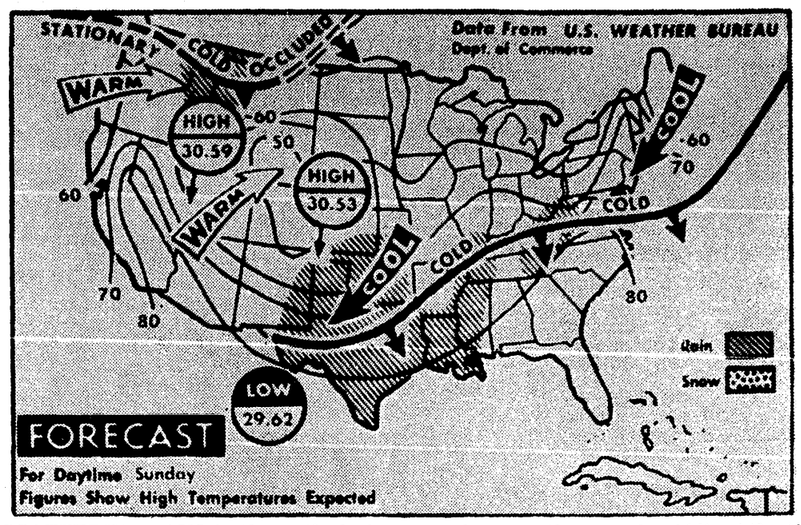
The most active weather this Saturday afternoon was in the Southern Plains region and over the Southern Rockies. There are two sharply contrasting air masses associated with these conditions. Through the frontal zone in the cold air, rain has been falling and is mixed with snow in Colorado, the Oklahoma Panhandle, Northwest Texas and in Northern New Mexico and Arizona as well as Southern Utah. Temperatures in this region are mostly in the 30's or low 40's. A short distance to the southeast of the front in Central and Southern Texas temperatures this afternoon have been in the mid-80's and along the lower Rio Grande Valley have climbed to the mid-90's. Showers are beginning to break out in the warm air over Central and Northcentral Texas and advisories have been issued for scattered severe thunderstorms in Northcentral Texas tonight. A late report just received indicates hail and heavy rain fell late this afternoon at Sterling City, Texas which is about 40 miles northwest of San Angelo. Hail was reported as baseball size with 5 to 8 inches of rain. Scattered showers occurred this afternoon in Eastern Tennessee, Eastern Kentucky and Southern Ohio. A few isolated showers fell in Virginia. Significant precipitation amounts at major reporting points in the last 6 hours ending at 7 p.m. EST are as follows. reater Cincinnati airport in Kentucky, 1.19 inches; Crossville, Tennessee, .55 inch and Amarillo, Texas .56 inch.

Temperatures during the afternoon in the east were mostly in the upper 70's and in the low 80's. Across the Upper Lakes westward through the Northern Plains to the Pacific coast readings were generally in the 50's and low 60's. Warm temperatures were noted in California and some interior valley stations reported readings in the mid-80's.

Outlook for Sunday — Cloudy weather with scattered showers are indicated for most of the eastern third of the nation and it will be cooler in northern regions. Colder with rain and scattered showers and thunderstorms can be expected over most of the Southern Plains region. Showers will also fall over the Gulf states. Most of the Plateau and Rocky Mountain region as well as the Northern Plains can expect fair skies tomorrow and it will be a little warmer with decreasing winds. In California the forecasts are for mostly clear and very dry weather with strong winds in mountain passes and a high fire danger.



SCATTERED RAIN is the outlook for Sunday over lower Mississippi Valley, southern Plains, northern Rockies and southern Appalachians. It should be cooler along northern and middle Atlantic coast and southern Plains, warmer over northern Plains and across the Rockies. (AP Wirephoto Map)

Auxiliary Meets Here Saturday; Officers Attend

Some sixteen members and guests of the Thompson Wood Lee Auxiliary of the United Spanish War Veterans Auxiliary enjoyed a luncheon at the Penn Hotel yesterday.

Present at the luncheon on their annual inspection tour were department President Mrs. Ethel Marshall and Department Secretary, Mrs. Zelda Granberry, both of Deridder.

Mrs. Marshall spoke to the group on the accomplishment of the national convention in Milwaukee, Wis., which was held in September. She also complimented Mrs. Sarah Gossett, local member, on her honor of being elected national assistant conductor at the national convention.

Mrs. Gossett said that next year's national convention will be held in Little Rock, Ark.

She added that one of the projects that the local auxiliary undertakes each year is visiting the leper colony at Carville.

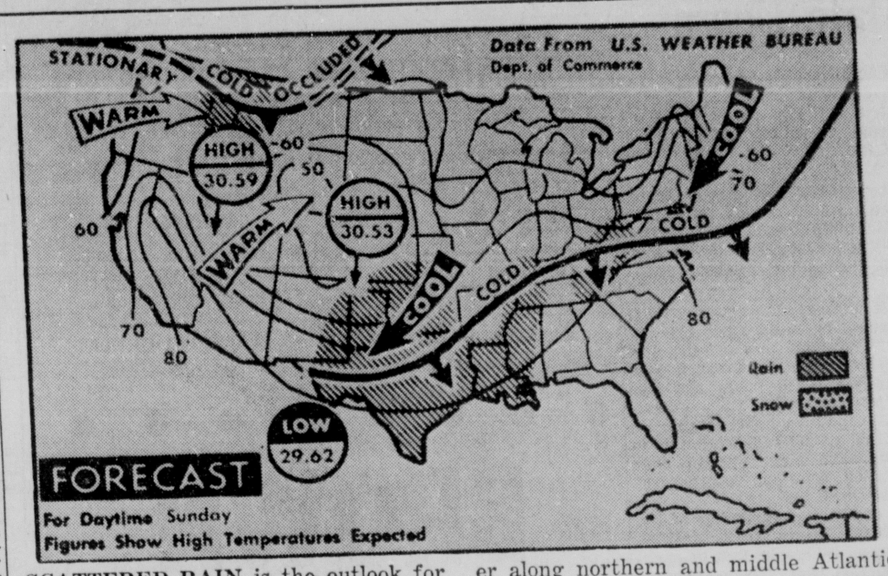
Most of the Plateau and Rocky Mountain region as well as the Northern Plains can expect fair skies tomorrow and it will be a little warmer with decreasing winds. In California the forecasts are for mostly clear and very dry weather with strong winds in mountain passes and a high fire danger.



SCATTERED RAIN is the outlook for Sunday over lower Mississippi Valley, southern Plains, northern Rockies and southern Appalachians. It should be cooler along northern and middle Atlantic coast and southern Plains, warmer over northern Plains and across the Rockies. (AP Wirephoto Map)

Auxiliary Meets Here Saturday; Officers Attend

Some sixteen members and guests of the Thompson Wood Lee Auxiliary of the United Spanish War Veterans Auxiliary enjoyed a luncheon at the Penn Hotel yesterday.

Present at the luncheon on their annual inspection tour were department President Mrs. Ethel Marshall and Department Secretary, Mrs. Zelda Granberry, both of Deridder.

Mrs. Marshall spoke to the group on the accomplishment of the national convention in Milwaukee, Wis., which was held in September. She also complimented Mrs. Sarah Gossett, local member, on her honor of being elected national assistant conductor at the national convention.

Mrs. Gossett said that next year's national convention will be held in Little Rock, Ark.

She added that one of the projects that the local auxiliary undertakes each year is visiting the leper colony at Carville.

Voting Age Negros In State Down

WASHINGTON (Special) — The Census Bureau reported Saturday that about 29.4 per cent of all persons of voting age in Louisiana are Negro — a slight decline since 1950.

The bureau said that estimates based on 1960 census returns indicate there are 51.000 adult Negroes in Louisiana, while the total adult population is about 1,770,000

The number of Negroes over 21 increased by 38.000 since 1950 but the white population increased at a faster rate. The proportion of Negro adults 10 years ago was 30.5 per cent.

The estimates have no relation to actual voting registration or to disenfranchisement due to alien status on criminal records, the bureau said.

By contrast, the number of Negro adults in Mississsippi dropped from 497.354 in 1950 to about 423.000 this year. The percentage drop was even greater — from 41.5 per cent to 36.4 per cent.

The report showed proportional declines of Negro adults in virtually all southern states and corresponding increases in the north.

New York gained more — 1,000.000 Negro adults in a decade and now contains more — 761.000 — than any other state. Illinois gained about 123.000 Negro adults, who now comprise 9.1 per cent of the potential electorate in that state.

Solon Requests Fair Cuba Trial For American

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Charles O. Porter, D-Ore., Saturday sent a cablegram to Prime Minister Fidel Castro urging a fair trial for Robert Fuller, an American accused of taking part in an invasion of Cuba.

Porter, who has been a critic of Castro and the manner in which his trials are conducted, said Fuller should be allowed to have his own lawyer and the right of a proper appeal.

Fuller is among a group of Americans charged in Castro's military courts with counterrevolutionary activities. Eight persons, including one American, have been executed for allegedly taking part in the small-force invasion.

Porter said he sent his cable after clearing it with the State Department. He said the department's intervention had failed to help Anthony Zarba, the American who was executed after a summary trial.

Porter said he had been informed that Fuller has used the alias of Paul Hughes, because his family lived some 15 years in Oriente Province in Cuba.

He said Fuller's mother still lives in Oriente. His father, William O. Fuller lives in Miami.

"Truly The Sportsmen's Paradise"

The State of Louisiana is the most verdant, tropical state in the nation—abounding in every form of game, fish and fowl . . . and, in this respect, Louisiana is the envy of every sportsman (fisherman or duckhunter) wherever located outside of Louisiana.

Louisiana encourages this great natural attraction in its State, and one of the finest methods it has undertaken to encourage the growth of this great state Asset, is to authorize the construction of D'ARBONNE LAKE, in Union and Ouachita Parishes . . .

D'Arbonne will be the largest body of water on the Mississippi Flyway—15,000 acres of water . . . and we now offer you

"Truly The Sportsmen's Paradise"

The State of Louisiana is the most verdant, tropical state in the nation—abounding in every form of game, fish and fowl . . . and, in this respect, Louisiana is the envy of every sportsman (fisherman or duckhunter) wherever located outside of Louisiana.

Louisiana encourages this great natural attraction in its State, and one of the finest methods it has undertaken to encourage the growth of this great state Asset, is to authorize the construction of D'ARBONNE LAKE, in Union and Ouachita Parishes . . .

D'Arbonne will be the largest body of water on the Mississippi Flyway—15,000 acres of water . . . and we now offer you

OCTOBER IS HALF GONE
Winter will be along shortly.

Remember last winter? How you fussed about that old drafty house you bought 10 or 20 years ago? With no central heat? No pretty factory built kitchen cabinets? Only one bath? And that one not a ceramic tile job?

How about it? Ready to trade it in on a new one?

We are in a position today to make you the best offer you can imagine.

Select the monthly payment that suits your budget, and let's talk business on one of these

NEW BRICK HOMES

$71.00 per mo.	Among the trees of Oakdale Street just a few blocks from Olin. 3 bedrooms, 7 large closets with folding louvered doors, Factory Built kitchen cabinets, built in oven and range. Only one bath, but it's a beauty. Only $440 cash required.
$80.00 per mo.	No trees, but so convenient. Pelican Drive just west of Tranton Street. 3 bedrooms, factory built kitchen cabinets, built in oven and range. $550 down will be the best investment you ever made.
$83.00 per mo.	How close is the school? Are you "kiddin"? There's 3 of them, elementary, junior high and high practically next door. Slack Street just east of North 7th, 3 bedrooms and all the extras for only $490 down (includes closing costs).
$88.00 per mo.	Westwood Drive, out New Natchitoches Road. Save $500 by assuming present loan on this 3 bedroom Holiday Hillstone beauty with built in oven and range. $600 is all the cash you need.
$92.00 to $101.00 per mo.	Henderson Road, Western Hills, the most talked about subdivision in Ouachita Parish. Several new homes, 3 bedrooms, two tile baths, attractive built in features, large lots with a grand view of the surrounding hills and lakes.
$109.00 per mo.	Mallard Street. Three blocks from Country Club. This one you must see. 3 bedroom Holiday Hillstone, 2 baths with vanities, double carport, a built in kitchen right out of "House Beautiful." Corner lot 125' x 150'. Ask us how you can save $1000 on this attractive home.
$125.00 per mo.	Jersey Street. A very attractive addition to Sunshine Heights. Let us show you this 3 bedroom beauty. We almost guarantee it will be "love at first sight."
$140.00 per mo.	Mesa Drive, Western Hills. The very latest in modern homes with FOUR bedrooms, 2 complete tile baths with tubs, a den that will accommodate the Sunday School Class. White crushed marble roof with a four foot overhang. Air conditioned. Plenty trees on the ¾ acre lot. Total price is only $25,000.

PROFESSOR-POLITICIAN

Kennedy Harvard Backer Center Of Controversy

Editor's Note—The tallest man behind Kennedy is a 6-foot-8 Harvard economist named Galbraith. The towering professor has become a tower of controversy since he began telling Americans what he thinks is wrong with the economy and Democratic hopefuls what to say in speeches.

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
Associated Press Writer

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—When classes began at Harvard this fall a timorous freshman approached economist John Kenneth Galbraith for permission to take his "Social Theory of Enterprise," a course normally open only to juniors and seniors.

"You'll forgive me for rushing things, sir," he blurted, "but it's my distinct impression that if Sen. Kennedy is elected, you won't be around here much longer."

The remark rang in the professor-politician's head like one of Pavlov's dinner gongs. His reflex, if not conditioned, was awesomely instantaneous.

Uncoiling to his full 6 feet, 8 inches—a spectacle that has impressed corporation presidents and investigating senators as often as it has unwary undergraduates—Galbraith made haste to explain that he has no intention of forsaking the delights of a full professorship and the rewards of best-selling authorship for the harried life of a minor bureaucrat.

Not that Dr. Galbraith could ever become a minor bureaucrat. Size alone would preclude that.

So would his burgeoning eminence as America's most widely read economist, as the witty and erudite critic of what he calls "the affluent society," as a founder and faithful consultant of the Democratic Advisory Council, as the private tutor and sometime oratorical ghost of Adlai Stevenson, and currently as the advisor of and constant speech maker (but not writer) for John F. Kennedy.

Galbraith is in the academic life to stay; just as he is in politics to stay. He sees no conflict between the two. Neither does Harvard nor any of the other leading universities that have contributed so many of their best brains to the "Men Around Kennedy" and the "Scholars for Nixon," the two opposing academic camps.

As a practicing economist of great originality, Galbraith sees the United States as a wealthy nation doggedly dedicated to an economic philosophy that was valid only in a world of grinding poverty. In our worship of full production as an answer to mass employment, he insists, we wind up satisfying frivolous wants, created on Madison Avenue, and ignore the public services that would make us happier, healthier and better educated.

The resulting social imbalance, Galbraith argues, gives us flashier automobiles and decrepit highways, better vacuum cleaners and dirtier city streets, bigger TV sets and violence-ridden public parks, better beer and safer deodorants at the expense of better schools and better hospitals.

"The scientist or engineer or advertising man who devotes himself to developing a new carburetor, cleanser or depilatory for which the public recognizes no need and will feel none until an advertising campaign arouses it is one of the valued members of our society," he says wryly. "A politician or public servant who dreams up a new public service is a wastrel."

His solution is increased public spending to produce the things Americans need rather than the things they don't want until Madison Avenue tells them how badly they want them.

As a practicing politician of unflagging vigor and unswerving devotion to the Democratic party, Galbraith is realist enough to know that the changes he advocates won't come about in the next four or eight years, no matter who wins. But he regards Sen. Kennedy's approach to federal aid to education and medical care for the aged as a small step in the right direction.

Galbraith happily numbers himself in the infamous foursome whom Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Sen. Barry Goldwater regularly seek to immolate with the cry that "the party of Jackson, Wilson and Roosevelt has become the party of Bowles, Schlesinger, Galbraith and Walter Reuther."

The line of decent has a certain validity in tracing the growth of politician-professors on the American campus, particularly at Harvard. Times have changed considerably since the fateful day when the faculty invited the wrath of a conservative alumni by granting an honorary degree to Andrew Jackson.

By the turn of the century, politics had become so commonplace in Harvard Yard that the students anxiously awaited the appointed day when President Charles Eli would descend from his ivory tower to announce his presidential choice.

"Invariably, he chose the Democratic candidate," says Galbraith, "but his constancy did not detract from the excitement."

Wilson, a former Princeton president, and Roosevelt with his brain trust both brought many professors into government as advisors and bureaucrats, but the most significant change took place in the last eight years when professors began working directly with the respective parties as active campaigners, speech writers and even curbstone handshakers.

Born on a farm at Iona Station in Ontario, Canada, Galbraith got his first taste of uninhibited American politics when some friends who had crossed the border to help with the wheat harvest reported that they had twice voted for Al Smith.

"Their unbridled enthusiasm," he says, "probably rubbed off on me. Anyhow, I've been a Democrat ever since."

Trained in agriculture and economics at Toronto University, California and Cambridge, he began his academic career as an instructor at Harvard, where as a tutor at Winthrop House he first met the Kennedy brothers, Joseph Jr. and John F.

He made his first big splash in government service as deputy administrator in charge of price control for the Office of Price Administration in the early days of World War II. Galbraith battened down the price hatch so tight that the resulting howl from businessmen brought about his resignation in two years and made him a never-to-be-forgotten figure in Washington.

Galbraith eventually returned to Harvard as a full professor, increased in fame and fortune as a best-selling author, and joined Thomas K. Finletter in the singular task of tutoring Adlai E. Stevenson in things that every president-to-be ought to know.

Once a month at five-hour sessions in Galbraith's book-lined Cambridge living room or in Finletter's Manhattan apartment, distinguished lawyers, professors, writers and politicians gathered to prepare "positional papers" on a wide variety of issues. These resulted in the famous "big black books" that Stevenson carried along as source material for speeches, policies, anecdotes, even ad libs. The group itself eventually evolved into the Democratic Advisory Council, which now is doing the same thing but on a greatly expanded scale for all Democratic candidates.

As a Harvard professor, he never has missed a class or lecture because of politics. As a stump speaker for Kennedy, he enjoys himself far more on the political platform than on the lecture platform, "because it gives you a chance to be aggressive in a way that would be out of place in a classroom."

NUERNBERG, Germany (AP)—Foreign workers in West Germany totaled 325,900 Sept. 30, or three times more than a year previous and 50,000 more than three months previous. Italians numbered 143,700, followed by Greeks with 20,600 and Spaniards with 16,400.

PROFESSOR-POLITICIAN

Kennedy Harvard Backer Center Of Controversy

Editor's Note—The tallest man behind Kennedy is a 6-foot-8 Harvard economist named Galbraith. The towering professor has become a tower of controversy since he began telling Americans what he thinks is wrong with the economy and Democratic hopefuls what to say in speeches.

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
Associated Press Writer

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—When classes began at Harvard this fall a timorous freshman approached economist John Kenneth Galbraith for permission to take his "Social Theory of Enterprise," a course normally open only to juniors and seniors.

"You'll forgive me for rushing things, sir," he blurted, "but it's my distinct impression that if Sen. Kennedy is elected, you won't be around here much longer."

The remark rang in the professor-politician's head like one of Pavlov's dinner gongs. His reflex, if not conditioned, was awesomely instantaneous.

Uncoiling to his full 6 feet, 8 inches—a spectacle that has impressed corporation presidents and investigating senators as often as it has unwary undergraduates—Galbraith made haste to explain that he has no intention of forsaking the delights of a full professorship and the rewards of best-selling authorship for the harried life of a minor bureaucrat.

Not that Dr. Galbraith could ever become a minor bureaucrat. Size alone would preclude that.

So would his burgeoning eminence as America's most widely read economist, as the witty and erudite critic of what he calls "the affluent society," as a founder and faithful consultant of the Democratic Advisory Council, as the private tutor and sometime oratorical ghost of Adlai Stevenson, and currently as the advisor of and constant speech maker)but not writer) for John F. Kennedy.

Galbraith is in the academic life to stay; just as he is in politics to stay. He sees no conflict between the two. Neither does Harvard nor any of the other leading universities that have contributed so many of their best brains to the "Men Around Kennedy" and the "Scholars for Nixon," the two opposing academic camps.

As a practicing economist of great originality, Galbraith sees the United States as a wealthy nation doggedly dedicated to an economic philosophy that was valid only in a world of grinding poverty. In our worship of full production as an answer to mass employment, he insists, we wind up satisfying frivolous wants, created on Madison Avenue, and ignore the public services that would make us happier, healthier and better educated.

The resulting social imbalance, Galbraith argues, gives us flashier automobiles and decrepit highways, better vacuum cleaners and dirtier city streets, bigger TV sets and violence-ridden public parks, better beer and safer deodorants at the expense of better schools and better hospitals.

"The scientist or engineer or advertising man who devotes himself to developing a new carburetor, cleanser or depilatory for which the public recognizes no need and will feel none until an advertising campaign arouses it is one of the valued members of our society," he says wryly. "A politician or public servant who dreams up a new public service is a wastrel."

His solution is increased public spending to produce the things Americans need rather than the things they don't want until Madison Avenue tells them how badly they want them.

As a practicing politician of unflagging vigor and unswerving devotion to the Democratic party, Galbraith is realist enough to know that the changes he advocates won't come about in the next four or eight years, no matter who wins. But he regards Sen. Kennedy's approach to federal aid to education and medical care for the aged as a small step in the right direction.

Galbraith happily numbers himself in the infamous foursome whom Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Sen. Barry Goldwater regularly seek to immolate with the cry that "the party of Jackson, Wilson and Roosevelt has become the party of Bowles, Schlesinger, Galbraith and Walter Reuther."

The line of decent has a certain validity in tracing the growth of politician-professors on the American campus, particularly at Harvard. Times have changed considerably since the fateful day when the faculty invited the wrath of a conservative alumni by granting an honorary degree to Andrew Jackson.

By the turn of the century, politics had become so commonplace in Harvard Yard that the students anxiously awaited the appointed day when President Charles Eli would descend from his ivory tower to announce his presidential choice.

"Invariably, he chose the Democratic candidate," says Galbraith, "but his constancy did not detract from the excitement."

Wilson, a former Princeton president, and Roosevelt with his brain trust both brought many professors into government as advisors and bureaucrats, but the most significant change took place in the last eight years when professors began working directly with the respective parties as active campaigners, speech writers and even curbstone handshakers.

Born on a farm at Iona Station in Ontario, Canada, Galbraith got his first taste of uninhibited American politics when some friends who had crossed the border to help with the wheat harvest reported that they had twice voted for Al Smith.

"Their unbridled enthusiasm," he says, "probably rubbed off on me. Anyhow, I've been a Democrat ever since."

Trained in agriculture and economics at Toronto University, California and Cambridge, he began his academic career as an instructor at Harvard, where as a tutor at Winthrop House he first met the Kennedy brothers, Joseph Jr. and John F.

He made his first big splash in government service as deputy administrator in charge of price control for the Office of Price Administration in the early days of World War II. Galbraith battened down the price hatch so tight that the resulting howl from businessmen brought about his resignation in two years and made him a never-to-be-forgotten figure in Washington.

Galbraith eventually returned to Harvard as a full professor, increased in fame and fortune as a best-selling author, and joined Thomas K. Finletter in the singular task of tutoring Adlai E. Stevenson in things that every president-to-be ought to know.

Once a month at five-hour sessions in Galbraith's book-lined Cambridge living room or in Finletter's Manhattan apartment, distinguished lawyers, professors, writers and politicians gathered to prepare "positional papers" on a wide variety of issues. These resulted in the famous "big black books" that Stevenson carried along as source material for speeches, policies, anecdotes, even ad libs. The group itself eventually evolved into the Democratic Advisory Council, which now is doing the same thing but on a greatly expanded scale for all Democratic candidates.

As a Harvard professor, he never has missed a class or lecture because of politics. As a stump speaker for Kennedy, he enjoys himself far more on the political platform than on the lecture platform, "because it gives you a chance to be aggressive in a way that would be out of place in a classroom."

NUERNBERG, Germany (AP)—Foreign workers in West Germany totaled 325,900 Sept. 30, or three times more than a year previous and 50,000 more than three months previous. Italians numbered 143,700, followed by Greeks with 20,600 and Spaniards with 16,400.
